THE Shediac Correspondent of the St. John Sun, says:—Harper & Webster are much rushed with fall orders, and are daily shipping large quantities of goods to the north shore of New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and P. E. I. They expect to make this year's output the largest in 15 years.
It is stated that the defendants in the Star route trials at Washington, who were acquitted by the jury will be placed on trial again, as there seems good reason to believe that at least one member of the jury was bribed. What is the good of going on with it? Two will be bribed at the next trial.
MR. A. M. SULLIVAN, M. P. for Meath, was interviewed in London by a correspondent of the New York World, previous to his departure for America. Mr. Sullivan stated that his first object in making the American tour was recreation and rest after the fatigues of a hard year's work. His wife is an American, and both want to see her native place, New Orleans, once more.
ROBERT KEILLOR committed suicide at Amherst a few days ago. Being missed from his boarding house, a search was made and papers were found showing that he had made all preparations for the deed, saying he would be found near Nappan Lake. He had also made his will and left it with other papers. A party going to the lake in search of the body found and brought it to Amherst.
A GREAT trotting race took place at Beacon Park, Boston, on Thursday. Seven horses were entered for the 2 1/2 mile race, for a prize of $10,000. Among the horses which competed were—Lingstone, Santa Claus (who won the $10,000 stalling race at the same Park last year), Fanny Witherspoon, and Edwin Thorne. The race was won by the last named horse, in three straight heats. Time—2:19, 2:19, 2:18 1/2.
A COMPANY of Gipsies are roving about Shediac, and disturbed the family of the Rev. J. C. Berrie one night during his absence, by applying at the door for water and bread during the small hours of the morning. They have also been on the look out for two little boys, for whom they offered the sum of fifty dollars. It would seem the traffic in human flesh and blood is not dead yet. Is there not a law for such wretches?
A CIRCULAR has been handed us from Mr. John Ross, music teacher, addressed to the parents and friends of the children attending the public schools of this city. Mr. Ross tenders his services as teacher of vocal music on very reasonable terms, and we are glad to find that his efforts meet the approval of the Board of Trustees of City Schools, and that the principals and teachers of the several schools are also favorable to Mr. Ross's arrangements, which will not in any way interfere with regular school work. We have surely arrived at that stage in our educational history, when music should have a prominent place in our common schools. Music has a powerful influence in making happy homes. The love of song has been long recognized as one of the strongest influences for good upon society, hence the desirability of extending its power in elevating the home circle. Let the heaven-born art of music, then, bless the homes and hearths of our people. Let young and old join in aiding those who are generally disposed to encourage the culture of the human voice. Families where music is cultivated, where parents and children mingle their voices together in sweet song, peace, love and harmony prevail, and vice has no abiding place. Children should be taught singing as well as other branches of learning in the elementary schools of our country, and we hope the time is not far distant when, in town and country, music will form an important part of school work.

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS.

The War Practically Over!
DeCHAIR SAFE!
Arabi and Toulba Prisoners, STOPPING SUPPLIES.

Special Despatch to the Examiner.
LONDON, Sept. 15.
London is jubilant over the receipt of Wolsley's latest despatch. The victorious General telegraphs, saying that the war is practically over, and all orders for men, transports, supplies, and war material be stopped.
Midshipman D. Chair is safe.
[Midshipman Dudley R. DeChair belonged to the ironclad "Alexandra." He was sent on horseback to Ramleh on Aug. 1, and while on the way was captured by the enemy and sent prisoner to Cairo. How he came to stray beyond his destination is not yet known. According to an official telegram, the outposts of the Egyptians took him prisoner near Aboukir. The commandant at Aboukir had him conveyed on horseback to Arabi Pasha, who conversed with him for nearly half an hour with great kindness, and subsequently sent him by rail to Cairo, with instructions that he should be well treated. The native officers who spoke English received orders to keep him company. The mother of the midshipman received letters daily from her son. A letter from the wife of General Pasha Strong, to the midshipman's mother, will be found in another column.]
Arabi and Toulba Pasha, the chief engineer of Arabi and the leading spirit of the Egyptian military movements, are both confined in our guard room. The men are overjoyed at the rapidity of the success. From the first battle there was not the slightest doubt that the fight would be short and certain. The Egyptian army was little better than a mob, but the picked men of Arabi's crack regiments did no mean work in the engagements. These were borne down by the undisciplined rush of the others.
The base of any operations will not be changed. We shall remain at Ismailia, not returning to Alexandria.
Considering the time of the year, the hurried marches, and the badness of the water, the health and the spirits of our men are excellent. Britain may feel justly proud of the brave lot of fellows out here.
The British forces will move forward from Alexandria this afternoon, with orders to disarm the five thousand of the enemy encamped at Kafredwar. No important opposition is expected, as the spirit of the Egyptian soldiers is completely broken down and there is a disposition on the part of their leaders to return to the allegiance of the Khedive.
The Khedive and the British Consul will proceed to Cairo as soon as we have the road in good order.
Over ten thousand Egyptians laid down their arms in Cairo, and submitted at once to our authority.

General Wolsley telegraphs from Cairo: "I have been received here with open arms by all classes. Soldiers are glad to return to their homes. Our cavalry did extremely well in the long forced march yesterday."

LONDON, Sept. 15.

GENERAL CABLE NEWS.

LONDON, Sept. 14.
The "Times" despatch from Tel-el-Kebir says the enemy's earthworks were insufficient to check the advance of our troops. The works are of immense extent, and are surrounded by a ditch four feet deep and four feet wide. The parapet is about six feet eight inches, but the works jut out so abruptly into the plateau surrounding that almost at any point it was possible to enfilade the enemy.
A despatch from Paris says M. Ducieril, French Minister of Foreign Affairs, sent a telegram to M. Tissot, French Ambassador to London, instructing him to convey to Lord Granville the congratulations of the French Government, and to assure Lord Granville of the cordial satisfaction he feels at the news of the splendid English triumph in Egypt.

The "Times" Alexandria despatch says: The demonstrations here last night in the celebration of the British victory, at Tel-el-Kebir will not readily be forgotten. Englishmen were treated as heroes by the residents here of other nationalities, while the very popular officers of the U. S. steamer "Nipsic" now here, expressed their pride at the Anglo-Saxon race.
The English advance guard have arrived at Cairo by rail. They were received enthusiastically. All personages of rank concerned in the rebellion have made their submission.
The Morning Advertiser has the following: Zagazig, Sept. 14, 9 p.m.—The English troops are now entering Cairo. General Wolsley to-day, in reply to a deputation of chiefs from Tel-el-Kebir, who asked that the country be spared the humiliation of a further advance of the British, said he would occupy Cairo to-night, and that in a few hours he would despatch the first train there with troops. This has since been done.

ALEXANDRIA, Sept. 14, 10 p.m.
Butros Bey, Reouff Pasha and Ali Pasha Roobi arrived to-day and proceeded to the Palace, where they presented the Khedive, on the part of the inhabitants of Cairo, with an address pledging loyalty and submission. Butros Bey told the Khedive that the rebel force at Tel-el-Kebir at the time of the British attack consisted of 30,000 regulars, 7,000 Bedouins and 3,000 volunteers.

The notice abruptly informs the public that if the samples of liquor in his possession are not immediately claimed, they will be "destroyed." Pray what mode of destruction will be adopted? An explanation is in order.
Yours truly,
