No complaints this week. (Satisfied?) The Student Council Committee looks like a good idea. No doubt any suggestions from you thru the Cadre will be readily considered by the Committee. Speaking of suggestions, our first letter has one that seems very narrow-minded and not very funny. But I'm not complaining. On the other hand, if anyone out there is reading this and is not satisfied with this paper, please do not be satisfied with making suggestions. Cadre-ers are virtually volunteers (although there are small salaries available) so whoever volunteers to make the paper, decides how the paper will be made. It's as simple as that.

Also, despite what some people think, at the present there is no boss. That position is open, along with layout organizers and newswriters.

For anyone out there short of cash, the student union is in desperate need of advertising managers for the Cadre and CIMN. This offers 15% commission and a good amount of money can be made with very little effort. A lot of money can be made with a lot of effort. See Mike Clow in the Student Union office.

Finally, the Student Union General Meeting. Take your friends. Don't miss it.

Is there something you do or don't like on campus? This is the place to complain or encourage. All submissions very much welcomed.

Stan ; Stay in exile

To: The Editor

Would you kindly omit any further "Letters from Exile" from your paper. Of course it should be stated that some students enjoy this article. If such is the case (I find it hard to believe) would the ones who do like the article please send their addresses to Mr. Dalton. This way they could receive their own personal "exile letters".

It is my wish and the wish of many other avid readers that Mr. Dalton be freed from exile only after he has been subject to reading all his own letters. Sincerely
A reader.

Stop That Junk

Dear Cadre:

As a concerned member of the anti-junk committee of UPEI, a committee set up by no one and who's meetings are attended by no one only because no meetings have been called, I would like to on behalf of this committee, make a suggestion.

I suggest that at least one vending machine carrying milk and apples and perhaps yogurt or cheese or some other HEALTHY items be installed in the day student lounge in the library. This is for the benefit of day student's who are forced to spend most of their day on campus, Blanchard hall residents who can't cook, and Beaver Food's unwilling victims.

Now I'm sure you will look into this matter promptly or bring it to the attention of someone on Council who will.

President of the AJC

Letter to the Guardian

Dear sir:

In regard to your recent advertisement in Saturday's copy of the Guardian, please consider this as a letter, for formal application for senior proof-reader at the Guardian. I have many points that make me feel that I would be an important addition to the staff of the Guardian. I have worked for several newspapers in the maritime provinces in the past two months (PEI, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia) and this alone makes me feel adequate for the job of senior proof-reader, at the Guardian. I read the Guardian all the time and always think how good you do at telling the stories. If just for a minute I can be allowed to be critical I would like just spelling but along with choice of word choice. I think as well as my mother and my father, that

You know you've been to the Hallowe'en Dance when

- you know who is wearing what because you all went in together
- you wake up the next morning wearing a different costume than the one you put on the night before
- you find out the fairy you picked up really is
- you try to find 8 people for a square dance and there

- are only 6 there
- you win a prize for best costume and you weren't wearing one
- half the people in the Barn are dressed as C.P.'s (and that's because they're working)
- seven different guys return your bras which they wore the night before because you're the biggest girl around!
- you trip on the welcome mat and it grunts
- you try to take the wart off your friend's nose and it starts to bleed
- you feel too embarrassed to walk back to your own residence next morning

because you're still wearing your costume

- the "hunk" you were hustling all night turns into a pumpkin at midnight
- you can't find any toilet paper in residence the next morning because everyone used it as stuffing
- you take a shower next morning and find out you have no clean towels. You wore them the night before.
- someone tells you the next morning that they saw you crossing campus with a beer under your bath towel
- you go to class on Monday and you're still wearing the same mascara, and you happen to be a guy

I could do this job to a degree of perplexion tyat you see in the big newspapers on the mainland. If I can say somemore i'd like to say that all the people I know read the Gardien. I think also that the evening chariot isnt anywhere as good as your newspaper sir and if I was one of your workers I would do as much as I could to demote the Gardian I know you are to have have preferences so that you can phone people to ask about me, but I hope you can see i am well acc accomplished for this job. Also if you could phome my mother on the weekend, she can tell you how well a worker I',. Her phone number is in the book.

You're truley,
John Barrett
