more recent "That Forsythe Woman."
"Blossoms in the Dust" revolves about Edna Kahley (Miss Garson), a belle of the Gibson Girl era. Her meeting with the dashing Texan, Sam Gladney (Pidgeon), their whirlwind courtship and marriage and their mutual efforts to establish a haven for homeless waifs make for a story which never wavers in its interest and is filled with dramatic and romantic highlights.
The story is the first in which the lovely, red-headed Miss Garson was photographed in Technicolor and she looks breathtakingly beautiful in the color medium. Apparent here also is the sympathetic appeal and dramatic fire which has made Greer Garson one of the foremost figures in the motion picture world.

"BLOSSOMS IN THE DUST" AT CAPITOL, SUMMERSIDE

—Among motion pictures which can be seen again and again with renewed enjoyment is "Blossoms in the Dust", M-G-M's magnificent Technicolor love story, co-starring Greer Garson and Walter Pidgeon, which has been returned to the Capitol screen as an M-G-M masterpiece reprint.
"Blossoms in the Dust" was the first picture to co-star Miss Garson and Pidgeon and, after watching their work together as husband and wife in this stirring story of an impetuous Texan who sweeps a society belle off her feet, it is easy to see why these stars have become so popular together in such of their subsequent hits as "Mrs. Miniver", "Mrs. Parkington", "Julia Misbelieves" and the
