

On holidays in England two parties of men or boys will frequently get hold of opposite ends of a rope and pull on it, as a test of the strength of the two parties. They call it the "tug of war."

Many a hardworking man and woman in each day's toil, is pulling a "tug of war" with death for an antagonist.

They fail to take proper care of their health. When they suffer from indigestion or a slight bilious attack they "wear it out." After a while these disorders wear out the reckless man or woman and the result is consumption, malaria, rheumatism, or some blood or skin disease. Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser tells all about these diseases. It is free to all. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures all the maladies named. It cures the cause. It makes the appetite hearty, the digestion perfect, the liver active and the blood pure. It is the great blood-maker, flesh-builder and nerve tonic. Don't let a druggist impose on you with a more profitable substitute.

"I had a very severe pain in the small of my back, where my hips join on to my body, and it hurt so that I thought I was going to come apart," writes Wm. Z. Powers, Esq., of Erin Shades, Henrico Co., Va. "My doctor came and pronounced it rheumatism. He gave me a prescription, but I got no better, but worse. I purchased a bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery from my druggist and commenced to use it. It began to improve at once and got well. Now I am in perfect health,—no pain, no rheumatism."

Nearly every disease known to doctors and the treatment is described in Doctor Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser. One thousand and eight pages and over three hundred illustrations. FREE. Send thirty-one one-cent stamps, to cover customs and mailing only, to the World's Dispensary Medical Association, No. 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y., for paper-covered copy. French cloth binding, fifty stamps. This book is a veritable medical library in one volume.

in danger of forgetting our mission and breaking into gory hostilities, when, with the blood-red flush of the sunset upon them, we descried points of clustering minarets. A few minutes later the chimneylike turrets, at sight of which the famished traveler blesses himself, and the towers of a castle were drawn clear and firm against the dazzling splendours of the west. Then the children of the desert, with such whoops and howls as no throat on earth but their own can utter, clapped heel to flank, and the race became a mad scramble with most of the features of a battle and a rout combined. It was as the descent of wolves upon an unprotected sheepfold. Just before the final dash orders were issued by Suleiman that if either Tabal or myself showed the least sign of disloyalty we were to be speared without question or ceremony, the legality of the deed to be considered afterward. With the knowledge of these heartening instructions safely lodged in our minds, Tabal and I exchanged smiles of intelligence and rode gayly with the rest of the looting.

In spite of the forced march Suleiman's band was belated. Already the town was in the panic of a sack, and the company piled their spurs, growling viciously at the thought of finding the pillaging half done. The crooked channels of streets overlaid with shrieking people who had been lured out of their houses like rabbits out of burrows, to be chased for sport and revenge in the open. Their cries to heaven and the prophet were pitiable, but did not detain us, for the call was eager on every hand:—"To the castle, to the castle! In the castle is the big spoil!"

one or them might be right, but the probability was that most of them were wrong, and it was important to make the proper choice. As we were debating in our own minds which corridor to take, and with the aid of our weapons endeavouring to maintain our footing, Suleiman caught a man who seemed anxious to escape and punched him under the fifth rib till he yelled.

"Have a little forbearance, friend," said Suleiman, "what do they call thee?"

"Baruk," answered the man, ready to fall in terror.

"And thy office, gentle Baruk?"

"Chamberlain of the harem."

"By my faith, heaven is gracious," remarked Suleiman, softly. "Thou seest this dagger," drawing a crimson blade slowly before the man's eyes. "Take note of its colour. It is sharp and cruel, and will be on thy heart if we are not in Amood's most secret chamber within three minutes."

"How can it be?" asked Baruk, with a livid face.

"That is for thee to devise," answered Suleiman, quietly. "Thou art at home, and shouldst know thy way about. And I pray thee make haste, lest I be tempted to fall on thee where thou standest."

"My lord would go to the harem?" said Baruk.

CHARLOTTETOWN Business College Writing Academy

Let these eight of practice illuminate the dark places of Theory.

THOROUGHLY Progressive Practical Instruction, in which young men and women are not only taught Book-keeping (in all its applications to commerce) both in single and double entry, but are trained how to do business, by actual business transactions. The students act as buyers, sellers, traders, bankers, book-keepers and accountants, in actual business operations, and the currency issued by the college Bank and the mode issued in the Emorium, are used in bona fide business transactions, just the same as in mercantile and banking houses. Book-keeping in itself may be learned at home, but a knowledge of how to transact business, cannot be thus acquired. That our course system of training is eminently practical write for testimonials from business men, and from students who are now holding lucrative and responsible positions.
