Low Great Lakes Level Causes Growing Alarm

MONTREAL (CP) — The annual move to maintain the water level in Montreal harbor has been completed, but authorities feel a major problem remains in the Great Lakes.

Lake Ontario water, backed up for the last six weeks by the dam at Cornwall, Ont., was released to its normal flow down the St. Lawrence River Monday when Montreal harbor levels dropped three inches.

The move by the international joint commission, which controls water supplies common to Canada and the United States, permitted Montreal harbor levels to rise to 35 feet, four inches.

However, the key to the problem is in the Great Lakes where levels ar as much as two feet below normal, the worst since officials started keeping records in 1960.

"We have no visible reserves left," Capt. I. C. Oppens, assistant Montreal port manager, said.

The St. Lawrence Seaway and Welland Canal level of 25 feet, six inches, has been maintained.

However, shipping spokesmen said low levels in the water system linking Lake Huron and Lake Erie, as well as the Sault locks linking Lake Huron to Lake Superior, mean they can't bring fully loaded ships to Montreal.

LOSS OF CARGO TONS

A Canada Steamships Line spokesman pointed out that forced under-loading of one inch in some of its bigger carriers represents a cargo loss of 113 tons.

The water level meant only two grain elevator docks at the Lakehead permitted full loading of ships, he added.

The lack of water in the Great Lakes system hasn't impeded the schedule for moving Canadian grain to Russia, a spokesman for March Shipping Limited, agents for ships carrying the wheat, said.

"There's been no slowdown at all," B. W. Corbett, in charge of the operation, said. "The 35-foot ship channel to Montreal is normal for most types of vessels but precludes the monsters from coming to Montreal."

Capt. Oppens said much rain is needed over a period of months to replenish the Great Lakes waters and the Ottawa River. The Cornwall decision was taken specifically because of the low Ottawa River water levels whiih also affert Montreal harbor levels.

Birth Control Law Is Upheld In Connecticut

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Connecticut's highest court has held the constitutionality of the state birth control law, clearing the way for a second appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court.

The ruling by the State Supreme Court of Errors came in a test case brought by the Planned Parenthood League of Connecticut against the 85-year-old statute which bans the use of contraceptives. A related law makes it illegal to give information on the use of contraceptives.

In 1961 the U.S. Supreme Court said the statute amounted to no more than "dead words" because no one had ever been prosecuted for violating it.

The next day the league announced it would open a birth control clinic in New Haven. Police closed the clinic 10 days after it opened and arrested Dr. C. Lee Buxton, 59, its medical director, and Mrs. Richard W. Griswold, 63, league executive director. They were fined $100 each, and appealed.

In rejecting their appeal, the Connecticut Supreme Court rules that the courts 'may not interfere with the exercise by a state of the police power to conserve the public safety and welfare, including health and morals, if the law has a real and substantial relation to the accomplishment of those objects."

It was the fifth time in 24 years that the State Supreme Court has reviewed the law.

U.S. Probes News Release Of Ore Find

WASHINGTON (CP) — The U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission is investigating the manner in which Texas Gulf Sulphur Corporation of New York made public its discovery of a huge deposit of copper, zinc and silver near Timmins, Ont., an official said here.

The official emphasized that the investigation is of a routine nature usually made when there has been heavy activity in some particular stock or some unusual stock market flurry.

The price of Texas Gulf stock soared after the discovery was confirmed, setting off one of the wildest speculative sprees in the history of the Toronto Stock Exchange.

The official said the investigation is centering on what was reported to have been two announcements last month, one suggesting that reports of a huge ore discovery were exaggerated, followed by a second statement later confirming the size of the find.

The comission wants to determine whether there was any deliberate misuse of information for the purpose of personal profit at the expense of others, the official added.

He emphasized that the commission is making no accusations of any one at this time and that the investigation may lead to no other action.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By B. JAY BECKER

You are South, both sides vulnerable. The bidding has been:

East	South	West	North
Pass	Pass	Pass	1 heart
Pass	?

What would you now bid with each of the following five hands?

1. ♠72 ♥J652 ♦84 ♣AK653
2. ♠A64 ♥J63 ♦K92 ♣KJ85
3. ♠A75 ♥Q964 ♦6 ♣AJ942
4. ♠73 ♥AJ72 ♦KQ83 ♣J64
5. ♠Q83 ♥7 ♦AKJ853 ♣J72

1. Two hearts. The normal bidding structure — the meanings of bids and their forcing quality — is greatly affected when a player passes originally. His bids thereafter take on a different meaning because, since he passed originally, he is known to lack the requirements for an opening bid.

Thus, in this case, if South responds two clubs, the bid is not forcing and North may pass, whereas the response would have been 100 per cent forcing if South had not passed before. In situations like this, it is better to show the heart support than risk a pass of two clubs. The trump raise is more apt to induce a further bid from North than would two clubs.

2. Two notrump. Ordinarily, this response would show 13 to 15 points, but in view of the pass this range becomes impossible. The range changes to 11 to 13 points after passing. The jump to two notrump is not forcing and North may pass if he opened fourth hand with skimpy values.

3. Four hearts. A jump raise to three hearts would not be forcing, and no risk should therefore be run of having the hand die under game. In effect, this hand ranks as a full opening bid, once a heart fit is discovered. The value of a hand rises or falls, depending on partner's bids, and this hand rises greatly in value opposite a heart bid. The jump to game, after passing, is not a shutout bid, and partner with a strong opening bid may carry on towards a slam.

4. Three hearts. Here, with fewer distributional values than in the preceding hand, there should be no anxiety about the possibility of North's passing three hearts, Game is by no means certain opposite a minimum opening bid and North should be given the opportunity of exercising his judgment. The jump raise shows 11 to 13 points.

5. Two diamonds. Although this hand is close to an opening bid, standing by itself, it does not justify more than a two diamond response to the heart bid. The point is that the heart opening has injured, not helped, the value of the hand. A singleton in partner's suit is not an asset but a liability. If partner passes two diamonds, it is unlikely that a game can be made.
