First Island Fins And Adie's Favor

By GEOFF TURNBULL

A generous audience went to Confederation Hall last night to see for the first time a concert by Islanders in the beautiful new hall.

Christopher Gledhill, director of music for the province, introduced the two island musical groups, the Youth Chorus, and a harp soloist of some merit, prepared the evening program.

Request the Centennial committee and under the sponsorship of the Charlottetown Kiwanis.

Featured performer for the night was Maifida Williams, island-born mezzo-soprano who has studied music in Europe for the past couple of years.

Her glorious, concert-sized voice was heard on both sides of the stage, and her response from the audience.

The chorus was formed last fall under the direction of Christopher Gledhill, and since then has advanced in technique and quality to the point where last night's performance was a credit to the stage of Memorial Theatre.

ALL STUDENTS

Young girls singing old familiar songs and some new. This was the format. And the girls are all young, students from Charlottetown, area, whose apparent confidence belied their ages.

Joining by the faces watching the girls - some rapt, some smiling, some recognizing with a nod a daughter, sister, or niece - their evening was a success.

Mr. Gledhill displayed his mastery of a difficult instrument when he played two groups of selections for harp soloist, one entitled Elizabetha virginia music and the other harp soloist.

HARPSICORD MUSIC

The short selections were played on an instrument built in Charlottetown last year by Charles Hamm, with technical assistance by the versatile Mr. Gledhill. The harpist was described by a member of the recently seen Baroque Trio as an excellent player with a little instrument that was designed for it.

A minute and an invitation by Haydn's Sonata in D Major were the other selections from Mr. Gledhill's harpsichord.

As one member of the audience put it after the concert, "it was certainly nice to see some of the Island's musical talent perform here. It seems to me that the harpist was a very good player."

A reception and dinner awaited with the promoters and guests after the concert ceremony. Then five of the promoters, with the exception of Mr. Smallwood, who left almost immediately in his private plane for Newfoundland, were honored guests at the last performance of the evening.

The branch president Arthur Desroches welcomed the delegates from all five branches and spoke briefly before turning the meeting over to sons chairman R.D. McKinnon who thanked everyone for the support and cooperation he had received as one commander for the past two years. He expressed his pleasure working with the zone secretary J.A. McLean.

The minutes of the last annual meeting and correspondence was read by the secretary J.A. McLean. Zone secretary was sergeant-at-arms.

The following new slate of officers were elected for the coming year: zone commander, Clavis Donovick; zone vice commander, William G. O'Leary; and zone secretary, Frank Goodwin, Tignish.

The nominating committee was chaired by William G. O'Leary, zone vice commander, Joseph Gledhill and Fred Hastings. Proposed the meeting was presided over by the Ladies Auxiliary of the Legion.

Musical Ride Thrills 4,000 At Ch'town Driving Park

Around 4,000 people were on hand Saturday night at the Charlottetown Driving Park to witness the first of two performances of the RCMP Musical Ride here.

Under the direction of Inspector Joseph Downey, the ride was performed in two performances to the accompaniment of the Prince Edward Island Regimental Band.

The ride drew round after round of applause from the crowd following each maneuver as they rode their way through a series of stunts, domes and cross-over patterns, finishing with the famous charge with two lines of horses with riders' lances lowered. When halted the charge lines stopped in perfect order.

Many of the Driving Park patrons, there for the ride mainly, were thrilled at the first two dashes of the harness racing card which were run before the ride began.

The crowd came to its feet cheering during the second heat when all horses rounded the final turn and drove for the wire in a bunch, the Sheik emerging as the winner.

The ride was sponsored by the Charlottetown Rotary Club in aid of the crippled children and was attended by Mayor A. Walton Gaudet and Mrs. Gaudet.

The ride will be again performed tonight at the Charlottetown Driving Park.

At 8 p.m. Proceeds are again for the crippled children
