Federation of Agriculture Newsletter

FARM FIRES

Due to the construction of farm buildings and the nature of their contents the farm fire is usually rapid and completely destructive in the absence of fire fighting equipment of any kind. Very rarely is a farm provided with chemical fire extinguishers and in many cases the water supply is located in a building involved in the fire. Where a pressure water system is available a hose which will reach to the highest building can be a real asset. While it may be impossible to take precautions that will be one hundred percent effective against fire, it should be a must to have sufficient insurance to adequately cover losses. Fire insurance on farm property is not expensive but in far too many cases the victim of the fire reports either a small amount of insurance or none at all.

WORK COMA

Some societies the man who works is not counted gentleman but in North America the opposite view exists, if you don't work your social status is quite likely to be impaired.

However, this association of work and gentlemanly qualities leads many people to prodigious exertions in order to qualify as a ranking citizen. This approach is particularly evident on the part of many farmers who carry their love of work to the point where work is their inspiration, work is their relaxation and work their entire existence, they have no time for anything but work and may justly be described as being in a "work coma." In all fairness it should perhaps be pointed out that many farmers are at the present time being forced into this condition through lack of help and the necessity of working harder and harder to pay for machinery and equipment which becomes more costly each day.

We believe that some people look forward to some period of rest on earth but at the moment there seems to be slight prospect of a great many farmers ever getting it.

DISASTER RELIEF

Harvesting difficulties in Ontario have reached the point where the government of that province is discussing the possibility of having a disaster relief act set up, such an act would give the government authority to guarantee loans to farmers in an emergency. Ontario has had a very difficult harvesting season and estimates place the crop at 10 percent normal for eastern Ontario and 60 percent for the Hamilton Toronto area. Our province has had one of the finest harvests on record and in addition has had almost ideal weather for saving it. The other hand our neighbours in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia have been plagued with late ripening, too much moisture and have had some real difficulties. So far as the Island grain crop is concerned the stars have been in conjunction this season.

NUFFIELD SCHOLARSHIPS

Once again through the Canadian Federation of Agriculture the Nuffield Foundation of England is offering travelling scholarships to two Canadian farmers either men or women. These scholarships provide an opportunity of travelling in Great Britain for six months and of studying various aspects of its agriculture. The preferred age is from 30 to 35 but some leeway may be allowed here. Applications should be completed in October and any Islanders who are interested should immediately apply to the Prince Edward Island Federation of Agriculture, Box 546, Charlottetown, for further information and application forms.

LIVESTOCK SALES

October is the month for feeder and stocker cattle sales from British Columbia to the Atlantic. These sales bring the seller and buyer together with a minimum amount of effort and travelling. In many cases these sales are sponsored by the Department of Agriculture and Federation of Agriculture jointly. Such is the case with the sale to be held in Moncton next Tuesday where three hundred head of beef type of cattle will be offered in a sale sponsored by the New Brunswick Department of Agriculture and the Federations of Agriculture in Westmoreland, Albert and Kent Counties.

HUGE SURPLUS DEAL

The biggest surplus disposal deal in history has been made by United States and India.

The deal will get rid of $360,000,000 worth of American farm surpluses to India over a three year period. The surpluses are actually worth nearly twice this amount, figured at what the U.S. Government has paid for them in the price support program. The $360,000,000 is based on current world prices. It includes 130,000,000 bushels of wheat, 500,000 bales of cotton, 200,000 tons of rice, 6,000 tons of tobacco and $5,000,000 worth of dairy products.

India will pay for the surpluses in its own currency and most of the money will be loaned back to India by United States for economic development. The U.S. will keep only 15 per cent for itself and this money must be spent in India. Under the terms of the agreement, United States also will pay $4,000,000 for shipping the surpluses to India.

The length of the U.S. loan has not yet been agreed on nor have the terms. India is understood to be asking for a 40 year loan of the money while the U.S. has proposed a 25 year loan. Washington also has suggested an interest rate of three percent, but India has requested a lower rate.

U.S. Agriculture Secretary Ezra Taft Benson says the deal with India will reduce the American surplus of wheat by 15 per cent and will cut the U.S. surplus of rice by 25 per cent. The Indian Government has jalled the deal as a great stimulus for its new Five Year Plan.

PORK IS UP

Hogs delivered to the plant are being quoted at $30.00 an increase of approximately $5.00 since last May. Recently a well-informed livestock official remarked that he had never known of pork prices to increase in the month of October and he was surprised that it happened this year in view of the large supply of other meats available. While it is dangerous to make predictions one interpretation of the present strength in the hog market is the possibility of still higher price during early winter.

THE BEAUX ARTS TRIO

Three Great Artists Heard At P. W. College

The Beaux Arts Trio is composed of Daniel Guillet, violin; Bernard Greenhouse, Cello; and Menahem Pressler, piano. This trio last evening gave the opening concert of the Community Concert Association series held at the Prince of Wales College Auditorium.

An inspiring experience was Arturo Toscanini's verdict after hearing the Beaux Arts Trio play "fine chamber music with impeccable taste and musicianship." When Robert Casadesu heard them, he immediately called them "the finest trio I have heard in America."

These praises for the Beaux Arts Trio have been echoed over and over again by the strictest judges of musical excellence, i.e., others of their fellow musicians.

Daniel Guillet, violinist, was born in France. He is concert master with the Symphony of the Air. He has appeared as soloist under Toscanini. He plays the beautiful "Earl of Darnley" Stradivarius, dated 1712.

Bernard Greenhouse, cellist, is a graduate of Juilliard and has also had two years of study in Europe with Pablo Casals. He plays the famous "Visconti" Stradivarius Cello, dated 1684.

Menahem Pressler, pianist, was born in Germany, but fled to Palestine with his family when Hitler came to power. Winning the Debussy Prize in San Francisco gave him international prominence. Embarking on his first American tour, he was soloist five times with the Philadelphia Orchestra, and preceded three-year-contract for appearances each season with that famous symphony. He plays the Steinway piano.

Last night's programme began with the Trio in B-flat major by Schubert, played by the Beaux Arts Trio. This Trio was written over a century ago, but is today more alive than ever. It lives because it possesses to a marked degree those characteristics which have won for Schubert's music the admiration of all music-lovers - lovely melody, delicacy and perfection of form, and emotional content tinged with gentle melancholy all of which have immediate appeal.

This was followed by Sarabande a showpiece for every violinist. Witold Lutoski composed primarily for his own concert use. This is a very famous number. This group was played by Mr. Guillet and Mr. Pressler. The third group, Legend (Legend) by Isaac Albeniz, Nocturne in E-flat by Frederic Chopin and Nialla Waltz by Delibes-Dohnanyi were played by Mr. Pressler. All these numbers were beautiful but the delightful Nialla waltz is certainly distinguished by its melodiousness, vivacity and elegance.

The fourth group consisted of Allegro by Pietro Locatelli, Piece en forme de Habenera by Maurice Ravel and At the Fountain by Karl Daviold. These were played by Mr. Greenhouse and Mr. Pressler.

Locatelli as an 18th century violinist settled in Amsterdam where he established regular public concerts. His technical feats were considered marvellous at the time and Paganini is said to have profited by his innovations.

The Trio in D minor, op. 49 by Felix Mendelssohn, closed the programme. Schumann wrote of this work "This is the Master-trio of our time, even as Beethoven's in E-flat and D. and Schubert's in E-flat were masterpieces in their day; it is an exceedingly fine composition which will gladden our grandchildren and great-grandchildren for many years to come."

The unequivocal stamp of approval has been awarded the ensemble playing of the very great artists, Daniel Guillet, Bernard Greenhouse and Menahem Pressler. Charlottetown is indeed fortunate and honored to be in a position to hear such artists.
