Strange But True

By F. E. MacArthur

The 27 islands, making up the group known as the Cocos Islands, are one of the few feudal communities left in the world. There is no money used and payment is made on a barter system. Crime and income tax are non-existent. Oh, to live in this paradise of the South Pacific!

The notion is prevalent that it is unhealthy to eat at night just before going to bed. Don't believe it. When we first come into the world we must be fed before we will sleep. Digestion goes on as the stomach begins to empty. We use the oft-quoted phrase, "Sleeping like an infant" because this slumber of a child follows immediately after its stomach is full.

The drowsiness which so many people feel after a well-ordered meal is itself a testimony of nature to this fact. A healthy person who goes to sleep on a full stomach will usually wake up in the morning with a good appetite for his breakfast.

So, if you're disturbed or kept awake after eating, better go to your doctor for a check-up.

There are persons who do not know how to waste their time alone, and so become the scourge of busy people.

Recently a three-month-old baby underwent surgery in a Toronto hospital after the family physician said a rat apparently chewed at the child's head and bit off a piece of the scalp the size of a "silver dollar."

A skin graft operation was successful.

Did you know that our pioneer parents made pumpkin and bottled yeast? Pumpkin yeast was made as follows: "Boil a pumpkin soft, and mash fine, and thicken it with Indian meal and a handful of salt. When cool, add two cups of yeast. This is very convenient and nice for winter use as it will keep for a long time if kept in a cool cellar."

Bottled yeast was put up this way: "Boil down one quart of hops in two quarts of water. Mash 12 boiled potatoes and add them to the liquid, together with one cup of sugar, a tablespoonful of flour, and ½ cup of salt."

What is a month? Well, most of us would answer four weeks, or 30 days, or the 12th part of a year.
