Joanna Williams,

What should UPEI put in the time capsule that is to be placed in the Globe Theatre?

1st year Arts: "My Anthro. prof."

Lois Ann Bowness, 3rd year Arts: "A bill from residence."

Lindsay Russell, 1st year Science: "One of those old Panther t-shirts that the bookstore doesn't sell."

Tracy Rose, 3rd year Arts: "A list of tuition prices."

Sarah Rigley, 1st year Science: "A couple Panther Prints, or the Residence Times."

Jason Collings, 1st year Science: "Professor Shannon Murray (ha ha)... she's the one responsible for all this."

Jason Banks, 1st year Arts: "Expired milk."

Boundaries

You set up the boundaries on the night I questioned your feelings
I accepted the boundaries
You said you couldn't be anything more than a friend
And I accepted

As the days turned into weeks we've learned more about each other
And I want to know more
I feel I could tell you my inner most secrets
And you would accept them

We are friends who can share laughter and success
Bad thoughts don't invade us
If you looked closer you might see more than a sparkle in my eye
But I'm trying to hide it

I walked over the boundary the other night when I questioned your feelings
I forgot the boundaries
You said you couldn't be anything more than a friend
And I forgot

If I could step back over the boundary line to be your friend again
I would
My apologies for crossing that line please accept them
And please accept me
