Mrs. Mack Buys a Piano.
"How much will you take for this pianny?"
"Twenty pounds, ma'am."
"Do you sell on the slow pay plan?"
"Yes, occasionally we sell to reliable purchasers on the installment plan. The installment on this piano would be £1 a month."
"Will you throw in a cover and shute?"
"Hardly fair to ask it, ma'am, but we'll throw in these articles this time."
"And a buk of music?"
"Yes. We won't be mean about it."
"Now, if ye'll insure the pianny I'll take it."
"Well, really, ma'am, the purchaser usually insures the instrument, but to close the bargain we'll insure the piano and agree to take all risks."
"Ye see, betwame me and you," she said after she had made her mark on the necessary papers and deposited the first installment receipts in her bosom, "I'm glad to feel aisy about the insurance, as I want to get the better of my ole man, who tuk an oath that if I brought a pianny into the house he'd smash it wid an ax. And, faith, he's the b'y to do it the next time he gets dhrunk."—Scottish Nights.

She Told the Truth.
Mrs. Newby, in her modern male attire for women, was addressing a select audience. "I wear no man's collar!" she shouted.
"You have one of mine on now," squeaked her husband.
"I said 'no man's collar,'" she retorted, and Newby squeaked out the back way.—Detroit Free Press.

Of Excellent Taste.
Missionary—I had a very dear friend who came to your island long ago to labor among you—the Rev. Mr. Puddington. Ah, he was a delightful man!
Umbobo, the Savage Chief—Delightful is not the word, sir. Um-um! He was delicious.—Baltimore News.

The Difference.
He—Can you tell me the difference between an Irishman frozen to death and a Highlander on a cold day?
She—No.
He—Well, one's kilt with the cold and t'other cold with the kilt.—Funny Cuts.

New and Fashionable.
Dog Fancier—Yes, madam, I have all kinds of dogs here. Is there any particular breed you wish?
Old Lady (who reads the papers)—Oh, anything that's fashionable. Lemme see an ocean greyhound.—New York Weekly.

His Record.
"There's a man at the museum who has gone 60 days without water."
"That's nuthin,'" sneered the colonel. "I haven't tasted the stuff in 20 yeabs, sah."—Detroit Free Press.

Shattered Nerves.

THE MOST PREVALENT TROUBLE OF THE CENTURY.

It Attacks People of Both Sexes and All Ages—A Complete Breakdown Follows Unless Prompt Measures for Relief Are Taken. From the Newmarket Era.

Probably the most prevalent trouble on this continent today is nervous prostration. How frequently we hear this term, and yet how few appear to realize its full import. Nervous prostration is to be found among people of all walks in life, and among children as well as adults. Among those of more mature years it may be due to the cares of business, or to overwork, or worries in the home. But whatever the cause the inevitable results is a breaking down both mentally and physically unless prompt measures are taken to stay the ravages of the disease and restore the shattered nerve forces to their normal condition. One such sufferer who has regained health gives his experience for the benefit of those less fortunate. Miss Edith Draper who resides with her parents at Belhaven, Ont., is a young lady who is very popular among her circle of acquaintances, and they all rejoice at her restoration to health. To a reporter who called upon her she gave the following particulars concerning her illness and cure. "You know," said the young lady, "how I was last winter when my friends feared that I was going into a decline. In the early part of the winter both father and mother were attacked with a gripe, and I had to look after them as well as attend to the household work. The strain was more than I could stand, and the result was I fell ill. The doctor who was called in said my trouble was nervous prostration, and that it would take considerable time for me to recover. Under his care I was after a short while able to leave my room and go about the house, but my nerves did not seem to regain their strength. My limbs would twitch as though I had St. Vitus' dance, I was subject to headaches, had a very poor appetite, and was so weak that I could scarcely go about. I had been advised to try Pink Pills and one day spoke to the doctor about them, and he said he believed they would do me good. I got three boxes, and by the time I had used them I felt they were helping me and I got a further supply. By the time I had taken six boxes I was feeling stronger and better than I had for years. All the twitching in my limbs had disappeared and my nerves seemed as strong as ever they had been. I still took the pills for a little while longer to make certain that the cure was complete, and since the day I discontinued them I have not felt the slightest return of the trouble. I feel that my present excellent health is due to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I am glad to be able to recommend them to anyone whose nerves are in a shattered condition. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a tonic medicine. By their use the blood is renewed, and the nerves made strong and vigorous, and in this way disease is driven from the system. As a spring medicine Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are unsurpassed. If feeling languid or "out-of-sorts" a box or two will restore you to vigorous activity. Ask for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and take nothing else.

MESSAGE TO MEN.

Proving that True Honesty and True Philanthropy Still Exist. If any man who is weak, nervous and debilitated, or who is suffering from any of the various troubles resulting from youthful follies, excesses or overwork, will take heart and write to me, I will send him confidentially and free of charge the plan pursued by which I was completely restored to perfect health and manhood. After years of suffering from Nervous Debility, Loss of Vigor and Organic Weakness. If ve nothing to sell, and therefore want no money, but as I know through my own experience how to sympathize with such sufferers, I am glad to be able to assist any fellow-beings to a cure. I am well aware of the prevalence of quackery, for I myself was deceived and imposed upon until I nearly lost faith in mankind but I rejoice to say that I am now perfectly well and happy once more and am desirous therefore to make this certain means of cure known to all. If you will write to me you can rely upon being cured and the proud satisfaction of having been of great service to one in need will be sufficient reward for my trouble. Absolute secrecy assured. Send 5c silver to cover postage and address Mr. Geo. G. Strong, North Rockwood, Mich. 135&w.

A Most Compromise.

"Young man," said Senator Sorghum to the protege of whom he expects to make a successful politician, "I am afraid that you are drifting toward methods that do not invite the calcium glare of publicity."

"I don't quite understand," was the embarrassed answer.
"It seems to me that some of the plans you contemplate would cause you embarrassment if you were called upon to elucidate their details."
"Well, senator, you're what they call a practical politician yourself."
"Exactly," was the self appreciative reply, "and as such I am prepared to dismiss all considerations of sentiment and to acknowledge no criterion except success."

"Well, a good many men keep a few cards up their sleeves."
"Certainly, my boy. And the great mistake they often make is to insist on ringing them into the game when they hold the winning hand anyhow. I have seen many a man spoil a straight flush of natural ability and courage for the sake of holding an inadequate pair of aces in the way of chicanery."
"That isn't the way you talked some time ago."
"What did I say?"
"You remarked, among other things, that every man has his price."
"H'm! That's one of the sentences which I suspect are often repeated because they sound well and because nobody is able to produce proof one way or the other. But that aspect of the question is metaphysical and not political. Assuming that the proposition is correct as well as epigrammatic, it is a great mistake to hang out the price tag where everybody can see it. For people to get the impression that a politician is on the bargain counter may produce a temporary activity in trade, but it is certain in the end to cause a terrible let-down in the demand for the goods."—Washington Star.

A Philadelphia Feast.

The Philadelphia papers are trying to disprove the charge that the residents of that city are not as lively as they might be by telling with much apparent joy about a prank played the other day by four members of the Rittenhouse club. This was nothing less than the partaking of a champagne supper for breakfast. The staid Philadelphia Record admits that this deed was performed "more as a joke than anything else," but proudly declares that when the enterprising four "filed into the cafe of a popular Broad street hotel at 8 o'clock in the morning scrupulously attired in evening dress and looking as fresh as so many daisies they created something of a sensation." It seems that the "supper" had been previously ordered and consisted of the dishes usually popular late at night, with lots of champagne. The quartet disposed of their supper while the other guests were eating breakfast, ordered a four wheeler and drove away. Left the impression that these Rittenhouse were guilty of real wickedness should get abroad, The Record hastens to add that the four roisterers, instead of having been up all night, had retired at 11 o'clock the night before, and, getting up at 7, had donned their evening clothes and gone to the hotel as a lark.

Spitzbergen.

Though the island of Spitzbergen was discovered 300 years ago, and its shores have been so often visited by explorers and whalers as to make them the best known regions in the far north, the interior has been penetrated to any considerable distance only three times, and it was never crossed until last summer, when the expedition under Sir W. Martin Conway accomplished the difficult feat. Hitherto it had been believed that the whole center of the island consisted of a series of boggy plains, deeply covered with snow, but it was found to be in reality a tangle of ridges and valleys, forming a well developed mountain system. The northern and southern sections are covered with great accumulations of ice, but between them is a stretch of country in which there are many slopes which it is hardly an exaggeration to call fertile. The climate of Spitzbergen is strangely moist and mild, considering that it is almost constantly surrounded by enormous stretches of frozen ocean, and, with proper shelter and food, men can spend a winter there without any suffering except that which results from months of uninterrupted darkness.—New York Times.
