GRACE WELDON,

—OR—

FREDERICA, THE BONNET-GIRL,

CHAPTER XXV.—Continued.

CONCLUSION.

I.

'Who are you?'

'La Isla, the opera-singer.'

'The Jewess?'

'Yes.'

'Why have you sent for me? What do I do! lingering to gaze on your beauty! I must this instant leave you! If you have unhappily conceived a passion for me, forget me! Good night.'

'Stay—Oh cruel! Leave me not thus!'

'Ah, I have you at last, my Joseph Surface!' cried Philip, advancing, and confronting him. You don't know me, but I know you! You would seek the ruin of this lady under my protection. I shall detain you; for I have missed a diamond since you came in and I suspect you have it. I have already sent off to the police for an officer.'

James stood appalled. He saw at once the whole extent of his danger. He felt as if his ruin was sealed. Innocent, he was bold. He believed that this too was part of the conspiracy of the forgeries. The immediate peril his name and character were now in, inspired him with decision. With a well-directed blow he struck the mulatto down, and springing over his body he escaped from the room and from the house.

II.

The next day he informed Mr. Weldon of the circumstances. The Chief of the Police was presently sent for and the suspicions of Mr. Weldon and James were made known to him. In a word, they unfolded to him the whole affair of the drafts, and named Ellery as the person on whom their suspicions rested.

'Still,' said Mr. Weldon, 'there is every probability that the persons in this house are parties; for that two separate conspiracies for ruining James should be going on at the same time, by persons wholly unconnected with each other, is improbable.'

The head of the police was an experienced man, and a person of discriminating judgment. He argued with them; and after some discussion of the best mode of proceeding, it was decided that the house, No. —, Dormer Place, should be visited that night with a suitable force, and any suspicious persons there arrested.

'As to the young girl's being the celebrated opera singer, "La Isla," is, I think, improbable,' he said; 'this person, La Isla, is more respectable than the woman who laid the trap for Mr. Daily. Her character I suspect he can guess at if he tries. As she was once a sewing-girl she is probably now a kept-mistress of the man who would have arrested Mr. Daily.'

This was also the opinion of Mr. Weldon and James.

III.

The next evening at seven o'clock Carlton Ellery made his appearance at Clow's according to the previous appointment. He found the mulatto in his room, with his eye bandaged, and in a sullen mood.

'What has happened, Philip?'

'Nothing.'

'You are savage.'

'Don't make comments on my temper. You have come to see La Isla?'

'Yes.'

'You can't see her,' he answered very positively.

'Why?'

'She says if you will make her your wife on this very visit, you shall see her, and no other conditions.'

'I will do it. I have made up my mind. I have thought it over. She has infatuated me. I will marry her; but on a condition.'

'Name it.'

'That it is kept secret till my uncle's death. He has to-day had another of those paralytic attacks, and won't last long. I should not be surprised if he gave us the slip before another week.'

IV.

Half an hour after this conversation Isabel Clow was in her drawing-room dressed for the bridal. Her face was pale but firm. She was about to wed for revenge, to humble the pride of one of a race which she knew would crush her into the dust did they know her Ethiopian origin. She had not given up James Daily. Love for him was too deeply seated in her heart to be out-rooted by one rebuff. She gave the present to hatred and looked to the future, to time and circumstances, to throw around him to whom she had given her heart, the meshes of her beauty's power.

Carlton Ellery appeared, attended by Philip, a clergyman, and a Portuguese about fifty years of age. They were married; she by the name of Isabel, which Philip explained by saying that this was the first part of her name though seldom used by her, she being only known to the public as 'La Isla.'

Scarcely had the marriage ceremony passed than Philip Clow turned towards the bridegroom and with a smile of significant and most malignant triumph, said,

'Well, sir, now who do you you think have taken to be your wife?'

'Why, the daughter of this Signor,' he answered, glancing at the Portuguese.

'That Portuguese has no daughter. He is a miserable refugee whom I have chanced to meet here in the city, and whom I have hired to personate the character of your bride's father. He speaks not three words of English, and knows not who the bride is he has given away.'

'Is this true! Who is she, then? Have you deceived me? Is she a Jewess? You told me afterwards that she was not, but of pure Portuguese blood. Who is she? What means that hellish smile?'

'Ask her. She knows best.'

'Signora!' he cried, turning towards her with a look of mingled dread and inquiry; 'speak! what is this he says? Are you not the daughter of this Portuguese? Have you deceived me too? Am I the victim of a conspiracy, Clow?'

'Ask your wife who she is?'

'Who, then, are you?' he demanded, almost beside himself.

'I am the sister of Philip Clow; not a Jewess, but a mulatress!'

This was uttered with a proud, flashing eye, and in a tone full of fiendish triumph and vindictive hatred. The victim turned to Clow.

'Is this so?' he faintly demanded.

'Yes. Thy young wife is of African blood. She is my own sister. I have drawn you into this marriage to revenge myself upon you for your repeated insults to me upon my race; and also to elevate my sister to your own. She married you not because she loved you, but because she hated you and would degrade you. We hate all who despise us for our blood. We are at feud with the white race who hold in bondage the children of our fathers. Thy wife is my sister. Thou art my brother-in-law. Am I not ennobled by the alliance, or is it thou who art debased?'

Carlton Ellery stood like one in a dreadful waking dream. He looked from one to the other with a wild glare. The resemblance between the two forcibly struck him and he wondered he had not before discovered it. Dark passions were gathering in his breast, and he would have avenged himself on the spot upon the mulatto, when the heads of Jack Brigs and his boy, 'Little Jack,' were thrust in at the door. Jack had called to see Philip on the tavern front of his house to exchange some stolen plate for coin, when, not finding him in his room, and seeing the door beyond open, he had passed through in search of him. Clow had neglected, in his anxious solicitude to bring the marriage to a crisis, to close the communication between the houses, as he conducted Carlton to the bridal parlor, and Jack, following the passages, had thus broken in unexpectedly upon the scene. At the same instant the street door was opened by a master-key, and the Chief of the Police, attended by Mr. Weldon, our hero, James Daily, and followed by three policemen, ascended the stairs.

V.

The result of this timely visit, and the accidental discovery of all the guilty parties together, may easily be conceived. The Police Chief had been examing the premises during the day and obtaining such intelligence as to induce him to believe that he would be justifiable in arresting any one he might find in the house in the evening. He had set his spies, and Clow and Ellery had been seen to alight from a cab and enter together; for the mulatto had taken his intended brother-in-law there the second time by the same round-about way he had at first done. The fact that Ellery was in the same house where James had been decoyed, was at once communicated to our hero and Mr. Weldon, and in a short time all the parties we have named approached the house; for the fact of Ellery's presence there was clear proof that he was leagued with the female and the man whom James had knocked down; all three of whom were believed to be the parties who had committed the forgeries. Hence the boldness with which the Chief of the Police entered; and the force with which he was seconded. The sight of Jack Brigs (who was well known to him) showed him that he was likely to have more game than he had calculated upon. The arrests were not effected without a struggle. Jack and his boy fought hard, but were overpowered and ironed. Clow made an effort to escape by the window, but was arrested by James Daily and firmly held till he could be secured. Carlton Ellery struck to the right and left, knocked down one of the officers, and succeeded in reaching the passage communicating with the Inn. He was followed by the Chief of the Police, but being familiar with the place he succeeded in getting away; only, however, to be arrested the next day. Isabel disappeared in the very outset of the contest and was not discovered.

The confession of Brigs and the boy criminated Ellery in the forgeries, and clearly established the innocence of our hero. Ellery, rather than come to a trial, strangled himself in his cell. Clow was convicted of divers offences and sentenced to imprisonment for life; but attempting to escape on his way to prison he was shot through the head. Brigs and his boy, in consideration of becoming evidence for the State, received for their misdemeanors only seven years for the father, and two years for the son. Of Isabel Clow nothing more is known with certainty; though it is believed she was the same individual who a short time since made such a sensation in Paris as an opera singer under the sobriquet of 'La Belle Quadroon.'

Having thus disposed of the less worthy characters of our story, we now devote a closing sentence to those in whose fate we are more nobly interested. James's innocence being thus clearly established he became junior partner with Mr. Weldon, and a few weeks afterwards was married to Grace. Frederica gently declined the invitation to act as her bridesmaid, and ere the honeymoon of the happy pair was past, the winding-sheet of the dead was folded over the broken heart of the lovely bonnet-girl.

CHILDREN TEETHING

MRS. WINSLOW,

An experienced Nurse and Female Physician, presents to the attention of mothers, her

Soothing Syrup,

For Children Teething,

which greatly facilitates the process of teething, by softening the gums, reducing all inflammation—will allay all pain and spasmodic action, and is

SURE TO REGULATE THE BOWELS.

Dependupon it, mothers, it will give rest to yourself, and RELIEF AND HEALTH TO YOUR INFANTS.

We have put up and sold this article for over thirty years, and can say with confidence and truth of it, which we have never been able to say of any other medicine—never has it failed, in a single instance, to effect a cure, when timely used. Never did we know an instance of dissatisfaction by any one who used it. On the contrary, all are delighted with its operations, and speak in terms of highest commendation of its magical effects and medical virtues. We speak in this matter "what we do know," after thirty years' experience, and pledge our reputation for the fulfilment of what we here declare. In almost every instance where the infant is suffering from pain and exhaustion, relief will be found in fifteen or twenty minutes after the syrup is administered.

This valuable preparation is the prescription of one of the most experienced and skilful nurses in New England, and has been used with never failing success in

THOUSANDS OF CASES.

It not only relieves the child from pain but invigorates the stomach and bowels, corrects acidity, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. It will almost instantly relieve and overcome convulsions, which, if not speedily remedied end in death. We believe it the best and surest remedy in the world, in all cases of Dysentery and Diarrhœa in children, whether it arises from teething, or from any other cause. We would say to every mother who has a child suffering from any of the forgoing complaints—do not let your prejudices, nor the prejudices of others, stand between your suffering child and the relief that will be sure—yes, absolutely sure—to follow the use of this medicine, if timely used. Full directions for using will accompany each bottle. None genuine unless the fac-simile of CURTIS & PERKINS, New York, is on the outside wrapper.

GRIPING IN THE BOWELS, AND WIND COLIC

Sold by druggists throughout the world.

Principal Office, No. 48 Dey Street, New York.

Price only 35 cents per Bottle.

ALL CURES MADE EASY!

BY

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT.

Bad Legs, Ulcerous Sores, Bad Breasts, and Old Wounds.

No description of wound, sore or ulcer can resist the healing properties of this excellent Ointment. The worst cases readily assume a healthy appearance whenever this medical a ntis applied; sound flesh springs up from the bottom of the wound, inflammation of the surrounding skin is arested and a complete and permanent cure quickly follow the use of the ointment.

Piles, Fistulas, and Internal Inflammation

These distressing and weakening diseases may with certainty be cured by the sufferers themselves, if they will use Holloway's Ointment, and closely attend to the printed instructions. It should be well rubbed upon the neighboring parts, when all obnoxious matter will be removed. A poultice of bread and water may sometimes be applied at bed time with advantage; the most scrupulous cleanliness must be observed. If those who read this paragraph will bring it under the notice of such of their acquaintances whom it may concern, they will render a service that will never be forgotten, as a cure is certain.

Rheumatism, Gout and Neuralgia.

Nothing has the power of reducing inflammation and subduing pain in these complaints in the same degree as Holloway's cooling Ointment and purifying Pills. When used simultaneously they drive all inflammation and depravities from the system, subdue and remove all enlargement of the joints, and leave the sinews and muscles lax and uncontracted. A cure may always beeffected, even under the worst circumstance, if the use of these medicines be persevered in.

Eruptions, Scald Head, Ringworm, and other Skin Diseases.

After fomentation with warm water, the utmost relief and speediest cure can be readily obtained in all complaints affecting the skin and joints, by the simultaneous use of the Ointment and Pills. But it must be remembered that nearly all skin diseases indicate the depravity of the blood and derangement of the liver and stomach, consequently, in many cases, time is required to purify the blood, which will be effected by a judicious use of the Pills. The general health will readily be improved, although the eruption may be driven out more freely than before, and which should be promoted; perseverance is necessary.

Sore Throats, Diptheria, Quinsey, Mumps, and all other Derangements of the Throat.

On the appearance of any of these maladies the Ointment should be well rubbed at least three times a day upon the neck and upper part of the chest, so as to penetrate to the glands, as salt is forced into meat: this course will at once remove inflammation and ulceration. The worst cases will yield to this treatment by following the printed directions.

Scrofula or King's Evil and Swelling of the Glands.

This class of cases may be cured by Holloway's purifying Pills and Ointment, as their double action of purifying the blood and strengthening the system renders them more affable than any other remedy for all complaints of a scrofulous nature. As the blood is impure, liver, stomach and bowels being much deranged, require purifying medicin to bring about a cure.

Both the Ointment nd Pills should be used in the following cases:—

Bad Legs	Chilblains	Fistulas	Skin-diseases
Bad Breasts	Chiego-foot	Gout	Sore-nippes
Burns	Chapped Hands	Glandular	Sore-throats
Bunions	Corns (Softs)	swellings	Scurvy
Bites of Moschetoes and	Cancers	Lumbago	Sore-heads
Sand-flies	Contracted and	Piles	Tumors
Coco-bay	Stiff Joints	Rheumatism	Ulcers
	Elephantiasis	Scalds Yaws	Wounds

Sold at the Establishment of Professor Holloway, 244 Strand, (near Temple Bar,) London; and by all respectable Druggists and Dealers in Medicine throughout the civilised world, at the ollowing prices:—1s 1½., 2s. 9., 4s. 6., 11s. 22s., and 33s. each Pot.
