MR. AND MRS. HOWARD ROSS

Pink And White Peonies Adorn Church Sanctuary

St. John's Presbyterian Church, Belfast, was the scene of a pretty summer wedding on July 11, 1964 when Rev. Donald Nicholson united in a double ring wedding ceremony, Kathleen Lulu, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archie G. Campbell, Melville and John Howard, only son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Ross, Garfield.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length gown of white silk organza with a fitted bodice buttoned in the back. The long tapered sleeves ended in points and buttoned at the wrist. Handclipped lace appliques retouched with teardrop pearls and crystal enhanced the scooped neckline and voluminous skirt which billowed over bridal satin and hoop.

Her veil was shoulder length, tiered and scalloped silk tulle illusion falling from a coronet of seed pearls. She carried a cascade of white shasta daisies and red Bettertime roses entwined with ivy.

The bride's only jewellery was a single strand of pearls, gift of the groom.

Her maid of honor, Edith Glover, and bridesmaids Ann MacLeod and Phyllis Craswell wore identical gowns of pink chiffon georgette with fitted bodice, cap sleeves and full skirts accented at the waist with white silk braid and teardrop pearls. Their headdresses were pink imitation flowers with a veil of matching mitgne. They carried nosegays of pink and white carnations. Best man was Grant Crockett. The ushers were Irwin Campbell, brother of the bride and Wayne Gillis, newphew of the groom.

The bride's mother wore a blue brocaded sheath with matching jacket and white accessories. Her corsage was of pink sensation roses. The groom's mother chose a powder blue shantung sheath with a cross-over bodice and blue and white accessories. Her corsage was of pink sensation roses.

The sanctuary was decorated with standards of pink and white peonies. Guest pews were marked with deep red roses backed by white lace doilies. The roses were gathered from a bush planted by the bride's brother, Gnr. J.E. Campbell, who lost his life in World War II.

Organist for the ceremony was Mrs. Martin MacDonald, who accompanied Mrs. Jame. Fletcher as she sang "The Voice That Breathed O'er Eden" prior to the ceremony and "O Perfect Love" during the signing of the register.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at Hill side Inn, Montague. The bride table was centered with a three-tier wedding cake decorated in the traditional manner. A toast to the bride was proposed by Rev. Donald Nicholson and responded to by the groom.

The groomsman, Grant Crockett, proposed a toast to the bridesmaids. Robert Delahunt acted as master of ceremonies. Caroline Buchanan, friend of the bride, circulated the guest book. Telegrams of best wishes from Alfred Casey and Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Wecher were read by the best man.

Following the reception the bride and groom left on a honeymoon trip to points of interest in the Maritimes and Unity, Maine. For travelling the bride chose a powder blue waffle weave suit with white accessories and a corsage of pink and white roses.

Out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Preston Gillis, Wayne, John and Brenda, Unity, Maine, Mrs. Alfred Casey and Ross, Halifax, Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon Campbell and Tommy, Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. Lea mon MacLeod, Oakville, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Delahunt, Moncton and Miss Caroline Buchanan, Vancouver.

The young couple are residing at 275 Kent St., Charlottetown where the groom is employed with Robinson Supplies Ltd. and the bride with H. M. Simpson Ltd.

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT S. ZELINSKI

Duffy-Zelinski Ceremony Solemnized At Ch'town

The Church of the Most Holy Redeemer, Charlottetown, was the scene of a charming summer wedding on August 1 when Mary Sylvia Duffy, Montreal daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Duffy of Charlottetown was united in marriage to Robert Stanlov Zelinsky, Montreal son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanlov Zelinsky of Calgary, Alta.

Very Rev. Frank Maloney CSsR. officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Mrs. Bill Campbell was in charge of the nuptial music and accompanied the soloist James Flanagan.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a haute couture floor - length gown which combined sheer norganza and imported chantilly lace Filigree lace appeared both on the skirt and bodice. The long printed sleeves were also of sheer norganza. A tiara of rhinestones and pearls held her two tier bouffant veil. She wore cultured pearl earrings and necklace, a gift of the groom, and carried a corsage bouquet of red roses and stephanotis.

Karen Duffy sister of the bride as maid of honor was gowned in white organza over taffeta with lace top trimmed with pink. She wore a matching headdress and carried a nosegay of pink and white carnations.

The bridesmaid Dianna Duffy, sister of the bride, was gowned in yellow, organza over taffeta with jacket to match. She wore matching headdress and carried a nosegay of yellow and white carnations.

Walter Duffy acted as best-man, and the ushers were Merrill Whelan and Alvin Johnston.

Mrs. Duffy mother of the bride chose a powder blue shantung dress with matching jacket, beige accessories and corsage of pink carnations.

A reception for fifty-five guests was held at the Basilica Recreation Centre, where the brides's table was centered with a three tier wedding cake topped with miniature bride and groom.

The toast to the bride was proposed by the best man. The groom responded. Telegrams were read by Merrill Whelan, Mary McGonnell circulated the guest book.

For a honeymoon trip the bride chose a pink dress and coat with navy accessories and corsage of white carnations.

Prior to her marriage the bride was given a shower by Mary McGonnell and Carol McCallum in Montreal, and by Mrs. Graham Thompson, Charlottetown.

Out of town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Walter Duffy, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Whelan, Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Ramsay, Mary McGonnell and Marie Duffy all of Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. Zelinsky will reside in Calgary, Alta.

ELLEN'S DIARY

The Golden Light Fades, Shadows Fall On Fields

By this the members of the certified herd favored at Alderlea, will have been paraded in competition with other fine animals of their breed at the Fair. It will be to win placings here and there in some classes and in others to lose. And we will be remembering that after all, it is not only "How did he win?" but also "How did he lose?" that measures the ture size of a man.

Today however — this Thursday before it — a lad of the place busied himself by collecting the gear which attends such an excursion: the halters and leading - lines, the brushes and all, to an old pine chest, in preparation for these days now here.

"There's no work to it" Mack commented, "but it's work I enjoy." He was seated then on a box by the garage, on the far side of the golden willow, polishing a halter until it shone. Peter lingered near by, somewhat lonely now that Alex his usual companion was missing. He is holidaying with a young cousin at a Century Farm, the fruitful old fields of which slope down to the shore... At night from the windows there, when the lights from the summer cottages down on the far side of that tidal river commence to show, you liken the picture to a necklace worn on the gown of the twilight — one of finest jewels: opals and diamonds and rubies and other shining gems.

Peter had stopped his tricycle to watch Mack, who also had other viewers. Scampie was seated close by, in an attentive attitude, which missed no single movement about, including those of the three bantams now, to his mind, edging much too near. One of Tabby's kittens, tiger - striped like his mother, rubbed against Mack's trouser-leg.

"You're a nice little thing, aren't you?" Mack commented, pausing in his polishing to smile down at the small one.

"Do you like kittens?" Peter questioned.

"Of course I like kittens!"

"And" Peter glanced at Scampie, "dogs?"

"Some dogs" Mack amended.

"And!" Peter continued, catching sight of James pouring a pail of water to the tub beside the fence in the paddock, "sheep?"

"Yes."

"And cows and calves?"

"And cows and calves most of all" Mack grinned. "But where is this conversation getting us?" he queried.

"Oh, I was just wondering about things" Peter said, cycling away. A light wind stirs tonight's leaves. They are dark against the moonlight. Shadows have fallen on the fields, where a while ago, a golden light from the afterglow lingered, touching lastly the hill tops before it faded. The dew is on the white clovers. There is a delightful scent of night — flowerings on the air.

"I guess, Ellen" James comments, hanging up his cap at day's end, "there'd be a lot of hay saved over the Island to day. Yes, a nice day for haying this was. But it's good we have ours done."

Until tomorrow — Diary — Good - night.....
