

Provincial Status Ruled Out For MacKenzie District Now

OTTAWA (CP) — Provincial status for the MacKenzie District of the Northwest Territories is ruled out for at least the next 10 years in a comprehensive report tabled in the Commons by Northern Development Minister Laing.

In its 50,000-word report, the Carrothers advisory commission on the development of government in the N.W.T. also recommended against a government-approved plan to divide the vast northern area into two separate territories—the territory of MacKenzie and the territory of Nunavut.

requires much study before he can comment on it. The commission was established in May, 1965, after Parliament and the North questioned the value of a government bill to divide the territories.

The cabinet sought an impartial opinion on division and political development of the N.W.T. "having regard to the present and prospective level of the social and economic development."

Mr. Laing said a white paper outlining government policy in the territories would follow the commission's report.

The commissioners said they are convinced that the political future of the North cannot be isolated from its social and economic future.

Their report was founded on the belief that Eskimos and Indians who form two-thirds of the population of 25,000 have a right to take part in northern government; that the political forms adopted should be able to deal with the social and economic problems; that Eskimos and Indians have a right to maintain their cultural and ethnic identities; and that the federal government has a major responsibility for the economic development of the North.

NEEDS MUCH STUDY

Mr. Laing said the report is both complex and important and

Labor Party Has Criticism Of Wilson Defence Policies

By CARL MOLLINS
BRIGHTON, England (CP)—The Labor government accepted rebuffs on aspects of its foreign and defence policies from its own party after winning overwhelming support for its policies in general.

The contradiction was the outcome of a party conference debate in which Foreign Secretary George Brown offered a six-point peace plan for Viet Nam: The plan, a variation of British, Canadian and Commonwealth peace proposals that have failed in the past, was called by diplomatic sources the most detailed yet presented by a Western, Communist or neutral nation. Brown is expected to push it at the United Nations General Assembly, Tuesday.

because his plan for easing the fighting is "almost an exact copy of American proposals". The English-language broadcast heard in London said both the U.S. and British proposals call for simultaneous reduction in hostilities on both sides.

"This puts the (American) aggressor and his victim on an equal footing, which makes the proposals unacceptable." Brown told the conference that he will urge acceptance of his plan on U.S. State Secretary Rusk and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko after he reaches the United Nations today.
