Recount Cost Increases To $250 This Year

OTTAWA (CP) — A defeated candidate in the Nov. 8 election must make a deposit of $250 if he wants the ballots counted again. The deposit is security for the court costs of the candidate originally declared the winner and to discourage mischief-makers.

It is generally agreed a recount is pointless if the winning candidate has a lead of more than 500 votes, and recounts of much closer races have not been overly successful.

After the last election, a recount with an unusual twist made a winner out of an apparent loser. It was the first time in many years that a recount changed the result. Recounts often change the figures slightly but that's all.

In 1963 there were four completed recounts, in the Quebec ridings of Rimouski, Pontiac-Temisamingue and Bellechasse and in the Ontario constituency of Lambton-Kent.

Pontiac-Temisamingue was a cliff-hanger.

Paul Martineau, then mines minister in the Conservative government finished ahead of Liberal Paul-O. Goulet on election night but trailed by 16 votes when the armed services votes were added a week later.

Mr. Martineau requested a judicial recount and it produced a tie. Returning Officer J. Denis Moodie cast the deciding vote in Mr. Martineau's favor after flipping a coin.

The National Liberal Federation filed a petition in Quebec Superior Court seeking to void the election but the action later was dropped.

A candidate appears before a judge to ask for a recount within four days after the official count.

The date for the official recount — a tally of vote totals listed on a slip or paper inside each ballot box—is set by the riding returning officer and can be no earlier than the week after the election. It cannot begin until the armed services vote is added to the civilian count.

In asking for a recount, a candidate must have a sworn affidavit of a "credible witness" alleging that ballots were improperly counted or rejected on election night, or that the returning officer improperly added the vote totals from each poll.

MOVE COMPLETED

ARGENTIA, Nfld. (CP) — A United States Navy spokesman said Monday two remaining squadrons of the airborne Early Warning Wing (Atlantic) have now completed their moves from the navy base here to points in the U.S. The spokesman said the move of the two wings began July 1 and was completed late last month. He said an air patrol squadron remains at Argentia, together with U.S. Coast Guard airborne facilities.

To The Average Islander The Canada Pension Plan and its benefits

Here is what the Canada Pension Plan will do for people like John Jones a 60 year old laborer who earns $250 a month ($3,000 a year)

If John's earnings continue at this rate until he reaches age 65, he will receive a retirement pension of only $31.25 a month from the Plan.

WHAT WILL THE PLAN COST?

If, like John, you are employed and have earnings of $3,000 spread evenly over the year, you will pay at the rate of $3.60 a month.
