BARGAIN CORNER.

A DECEPTIVE DUDELET.

A MODERN AND EXAGGERATED TYPE OF EUGENE WRAYBURN.

The Man Who Frolicked With Him Got Somewhat Damaged—How the Lake Tough Was Taught a Needed Lesson—Grand Finale.

At the foot of Yonge street a policeman found a young man sitting on a barrel with both eyes bunged up, his nose knocked out of shape, and a mouth full of loose teeth. All was over before he got there, but some of the crowd still lingered, and a boy undertook to explain matters.

"We was all a-sittin' here," he began, "when that feller there, whose name is Jim, and who thinks he is bad, got hungry to fight some one. He got so hungry that he almost cried."

"Wanted to fight, did he?" queried the officer.

"Yes, the awfullest way. He sassed about six men, but they wouldn't stop. He jest cried because two great big loafers wouldn't pitch inter him and let him throw hisself. By and by a dude of a chap kem along. He was little and he was purty, and you orter seen his bewtiful pants! He was a lookin' fur the Niagara boat, ye know."

"Yes, and what happened?"

"Why, Jim begins to smile as soon as he sees the little dude, and we who knows Jim knows that sunthin' was up. The chappie he comes up, rests one of his patent leathers on that there box, and says: "Fellahs, I'm lookin' fur the Niagara boat, ye knaw." With that Jim jumps up and wants to know who dares call him a fellah."

"Wanted to pick a fuss, I suppose?" observed the officer.

"He did. He wanted to pick a mortal combat. He meant to break that little dude right in two and use the pieces fur fish-bait. The little chappie looks at Jim in a weary way, and puts up an eye-glass like this and says: "Ah, me dear fellah, it's custom, ye knaw, but I beg pawdon. Does the——aw——boat leave from this dock?" He looked mighty scart, and that encouraged Jim, and Jim he begins to cuss and blow."

"Still anxious, eh?"

"The anxiousest kind of anxious. He feels that he has got to tackle that dude or chaw a rag, and as a starter he hauls off and spit terbacker-juice on the little one's shiny shoes. Mebbe he expects the dude to run away, but he didn't fly wuth a cent. He stays right there and looks Jim all over and smiles and says: 'Me deah fellah, will you kindly take your handerchief and remove the—aw—ye knaw?'"

"But Jim didn't remove?" queried the officer.

"Becher life he didn't! He jest looks all around to see if there's a copper in sight, and then he reaches out and tries to poke his finger into the little one's eye. He don't git there, however. Chappie jumps back and says: 'Weally, me deah boy, I cawn't put up with such familiarity, doncher knaw—cawn't possibly do it! If you go to frolic with me I shall be obliged to hurt ye, doncher knaw!'"

"And then, of course, Jim sailed in to mash him?"

"Of course. Spit on his hands and sailed in to wreck chappie's bloomin' future, but sunthin' happened. The little feller drops his cane, puts up his dukes, and in one blessed minute Jim was a licked man. Chappie skips around him, and climbs over him, and fights two-handed, and by and by he swings fur the jaw and Jim goes over that box and falls asleep like a bloomin' summer even', and it wasn't two minits ago that he opened his bloomin' eyes."

"But about the dude?"

"Oh, he stops a minit to pick up his cane and shake a wrinkle outer his pants, and then goes off sayin': 'Sorry to do it, ye knaw, but I weally had to. Wanted to poke me in the eye, doncher see, and I nevah allow it—nevah. Fellahs, au revoir.'"

Racked with Rheumatism

Unable to Walk, owing to excruciating pain.

After ten years' terrible torture, Cured by Scott's Sarsaparilla.

A. H. Christiansen, writing from the Clifton House, Niagara Falls, says: "I owe you more than I can ever pay. For ten years I suffered the tortures of the damned with rheumatism. Father had it before me, and I believe it is an hereditary disease. My knee joints would get inflamed and if I was out in any "weather" I was sure to be laid up, which to a travelling man is a calamity. In a score of Canadian towns local doctors treated me, some giving relief, others none. I read that Sarsaparilla was a rheumatic cure, and I asked a druggist for "a bottle of the best Sarsaparilla on the market." He gave me Scott's, remarking that it was an improvement on all others, and that he could honestly recommend it. I have taken four bottles, and am as free from pain as a man can hope to be. I was out in a rainstorm two days ago and never felt a twinge. As I said before, to Scott's Sarsaparilla I owe more than I can ever repay."

The best remedy for rheumatism, sciatica, and neuralgic pains—all arising from the presence of poison in the blood—is Scott's Sarsaparilla, a modern concentrated medicine, prompt in its curative effects. Doses from one half to one teaspoonful. At $1 per bottle at your druggist.

Wasted at a Leaking Faucet.

Interesting results are arrived at if it is figured out how much water is lost by the leaking of a faucet by which water escapes in drops if the washer is not tight. A chemist who measured exactly the amount of waste found that about 50 drops fell every minute; within 90 minutes there would be 4,500 drops of water, which is equivalent to a quart, so that there would be a loss of four gallons every twenty-four hours. In a year almost 1,500 gallons of water will have been wasted uselessly from such a faucet. It is considered that leaking faucets are quite frequent, and the immense waste of water becomes more apparent.—American Builder.

Cultivate Ease and Repose.

"In your own person you must live up to what the social world asks," says Ruth Ashmore in an article addressed to young girls in August Ladies' Home Journal. "Achieve the stillness of form that is the great charm of the English woman. Learn to be quiet of body, do not jerk, do not wriggle, do not move from chair to chair, do not restlessly pick up first one and then another of the trifles on the table and toy with them, do not bite your lips, do not set your jaws as if you were going to fight a battle, do not tap your foot, and do not show, by moving your hands backward and forward, that the enemy of good form, restlessness, is controlling you. Then, when you talk, avoid all those little smart speeches that seem to you so clever, but which are very apt to be coined at the expense of somebody else."

WHEN a woman is pale, anaemic, low-spirited, nervous, sleepless, there is no pleasure in life for her till she has her system put right by

"Noblesse Oblige" in Athletics.

To those who believe in the physical and disciplinary value of outdoor sports, it is not more gratifying to see their extraordinary popularity than to note the better standards which the most far-seeing, enthusiastic, and gentlemanly devotees have succeeded in establishing almost everywhere in the conduct of competitive athletics. Especially in colleges there has been an enormous stride forward in the matter of drawing clearly and exactly the lines of professionalism. To one who is a stranger to the inside of colleges competitive games it may seem at first thought that the efforts for such strict tests of professionalism are resulting in very hair-splitting arguments, but any one who has realized the dishonorable effects of mixing to the slightest degree the professional spirit with the amateur spirit will need no argument to understand how important it is that the colleges should cease playing on their teams men who are having their way paid through college, or who are playing for money, or who ever have played for money. A good fight has been made, and has succeeded not only in the East, where these matters have been under discussion for a very long time, but also in the South and West, which have come to the front in athletic competitions so rapidly that no time had been given to prevent these abuses.—From "The World's Sporting Impulse," by Charles D. Lanier, in Review of Reviews for July.

LETTER FROM THE LADY SUPERIOR OF THE GREY NUNS.

Sacred Heart (Grey Nuns) Convent,
Ottawa, March 4th, 1895.

S. S. Ryckman, Esq., M. P.,
Hamilton, Ont.

Dear Sir,—It is with great pleasure that I write to inform you that your valuable remedy, "Kootenay Cure," has been tried in our Institution with most gratifying results. I can say this, as I am one of those who have conscientiously tested it. I have no hesitation in recommending it as a wonderful medicine for rheumatism, a disease which has baffled the efforts of medical science for so many years. To my own knowledge also the remedy has proved most beneficial in cases of dyspepsia.

I have much pleasure in communicating the foregoing testimony as regards the benefits which I know "Kootenay Cure" has conferred on many sufferers, and you have my full permission to make use of this testimonial in any way you think fit.

Bees and Spraying.

It has been often argued that when orchards are sprayed with arsenical poisons while the trees are in bloom a great many bees are killed. The bees are not only useful as honey gatherers, but they are very helpful in fertilizing the flowers. Some experiments show conclusively that bees may be killed in large numbers by spraying while the flowers are open, and since this practice is never necessary at that time for the destruction of injurious insects it should be avoided. The trees should be sprayed just before flowering, and as soon as the blossoms have fallen, but never while they are in bloom.

NIAGARA'S NEW BRIDGE.

It Will be One of the Wonders of the World.

The new metal arch-bridge at Niagara Falls will be noteworthy in two respects. The new bridge is to be built over the old suspension structure, without interruption to the traffic on the latter. The span from end pier to end pier will be 840 feet, making it the largest span in the world.

The suspension bridge now in use which has been familiar to all visitors to the great natural wonder for forty years will be kept in place until the new arch is ready, as it would be impossible to construct false works over the Niagara gorge to sustain a structure of this class.

The span will have a rise of 150 feet from the level of the piers at the skewbacks to the center of the ribs at the crane of the arch which point is 170 feet above low water. The depth of the trusses is 26 feet, and they will be 68 7 inches apart. The bridge will carry one floor, 46 feet wide, divided longitudinally into three parts. On the middle portion, which is 22 feet 9 inches wide, will be two trolley tracks. Each side of these tracks will be a roadway for carriages 8 feet wide and outside of these, raised 6 inches from the level of the roadway will be footpaths.

The construction of this remarkable span is from plans of L. L. Buck, engineer of the new East river bridge between New York and Brooklyn, and the author of the plans by which the railroad suspension bridge at Niagara was replaced by an arched bridge.

The approaching or flanking spans will be 190 feet long on the American side and 210 feet on the Canadian side. The total metal in the new structure will be about 4,000,000,000 pounds. Every confidence is expressed in Mr. Buck's ability to carry out his plans. The replacing of the railroad bridge by another without an hour's interruption of business was one of the engineering feats of the decade.

Those who have not seen the great structure at Niagara which it is intended to displace will hardly realize the stupendous character of the undertaking. Imagine the task of displacing the simplest sort of bridge without interrupting traffic, and then add about 1,000 per cent. to the difficulty. This will give something of an idea of what confronts engineers and builders.

In an undertaking of this nature the slightest error might be productive of infinite disaster. Every measurement must be accurate to a hair's breadth. Every portion of the great arch must perform its particular share of the great combination that will be one of the marvels of the world.

All that is done must be accomplished quickly, for in affairs of this nature time is, indeed, money. Every man who can be utilized will join the army of construction. Perhaps no work of recent years has required, or will yet need, more skilled labor. In fact, in bridge building it is becoming unsafe to utilize labor of any other class. The bridge, when complete, will in truth be a work of genius in point of construction, as well as point of conception.

The work of preparing the material for the great structure has been in progress for some time, as little can be accomplished in an enterprise of this nature until the preliminaries are complete When the effort of placing the different parts of the bridge in position is begun Niagara will be one of the busiest of busy places.—Railroad Gazette.

"Roderick Random."

There are critics who find no pleasure in "Roderick Random," because they are so scandalized at the character of the hero. Critics always will be wiser than their author. The most careless reader can see that "Rory" is not intended for a "plaster saint." The severest critic can scarcely deny that he is almost all that Smollett intended to represent. A brave, haughty, fairly accomplished lad, with an inflexible but very limited code of honor, and a temper not unnaturally soured by the consciousness of having been denied every ordinary chance in life, the wonder is, when we reflect on what he had to undergo, not that "Rory" sank so low as he undoubtedly did at times, but that he did not make utter shipwreck of his life; with his temptations and opportunities, that he never did anything to bring his neck into danger—even that alone is no small merit. He is taunted with his ungenerous behavior to Strap; but that could not but arise from the false position, intolerable to any man of Mr. Random's pride into which the two had fallen.

"Rory" is always generous to those who, he feels, are beneath him, as his conduct to "Rourk O'Regan" proves; but he could not endure patronage, however delicate, from an inferior. His blunt confessions, so constantly used against him, are themselves a sign of penitence. To be appreciated they should be compared with the hypocritical glossings of a really selfish man, which Thackeray has admirably reproduced in "Barry of London." The Chevalier Barry, we may be sure, never pleads guilty to an ungenerous act.—Gentlemen's Magazine.

Boils

It is often difficult to convince people their blood is impure, until dreadful carbuncles, abscesses, boils, scrofula or salt rheum, are painful proof of the fact. It is wisdom now, or whenever there is any indication of blood, to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, and prevent such eruptions and suffering.

"I had a dreadful carbuncle abscess, red, fiery, fierce and sore. The doctor attended me over seven weeks. When the abscess broke, the pains were terrible, and I thought I should not live through it. I heard and read so much about Hood's Sarsaparilla, that I decided to take it, and my husband, who was suffering with boils, took it also. It soon purified our built me up and restored my health so that, although the doctor said I would not be able to work hard, I have since done the work for 20 people. Hood's Sarsaparilla cured my husband of the boils, and we regard it a wonderful medicine." MRS. ANNA PETERSON, Latimer, Kansas.

Shredded Whole Wheat

BISCUITS.

The above-named Biscuits are made from the whole wheat berry, and therefore contain all the bran, gluten, etc., and are very easily digested.

They are highly recommended for invalids and children, and especially for anyone troubled with indigestion.
