

92nd Anniversary Of Zion Church On Sunday

The 92nd Anniversary of the congregation of Zion Presbyterian Church here will be celebrated this Sunday with special services in the morning and evening. The church first came into existence in 1860 when two previously formed congregations united. The two were the Free Church, on Prince street and the Queen's Square Church, on Richmond street. At the time they each had a settled minister. Since the union there have been only 10 inducted ministers at Zion. They were Rev. Alexander Falconer, Rev. John M. MacLeod, Rev. W. H. Sedgewick, Rev. George Ross, D.D., Rev. R. G. Strathie, Rev. George Taylor, Rev. M. Scott Fulton, D.D., and the present pastor, Rev. G. Carlyle Webster.

Rev. D. A. Campbell

Special speaker for the morning service will be Rev. Donald A. Campbell who will take as his sermon "Why I Believe in the Church". A native of Heatherdale, P.E.I., Rev. Mr. Campbell is a son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Campbell. His father was a long-time member of the Provincial Legislature.

Rev. T. H. B. Somers

He attended Prince of Wales College for three years, during which period he went as a delegate of the College's Student Christian Movement to the 1931 conference of the Student Volunteer Movement at Buffalo, N.Y.

Rev. Mr. Campbell later graduated in Arts from McGill University and received his theological training at the Presbyterian College, Montreal. At the outbreak of the Second World War he enlisted in the ranks of the R.C.A.F. and later while attached to the Royal Air Force saw service in Palestine, Syria and North Africa. After his return he became minister of his present charge at New London, P.E.I.

The evening service will be conducted by the Rev. T. H. B. Somers, minister of the Kirk of St. James here. He has been the pastor there since his induction on September 25, 1941. A native of Toronto he received his education at Harbord Collegiate Institute, University College and the School of Graduate Studies of the University of Toronto where he received his degrees as Bachelor of Arts and Master of Arts. He later entered Knox College in 1936 and after leading his class in Theology in each of the three years was awarded the Post-Graduate Travelling Fellowship. He was licensed by the Presbytery of Westminster and was ordained by the Presbytery of Toronto on May 4, 1939. At the Union Theological Seminary, New York, he received his Master's Degree in Theology and on his return to Canada was called to his present pastorate.

Rev. Mr. Somers was Moderator of the Presbytery of P.E.I. in 1945 and of the Synod of the Maritime Provinces in 1947. He is Clerk of the Presbytery and Treasurer of the Charlottetown Ministerial Association while also serving on the General Assembly's Board of Administration, the Board of Education and the Board of Knox College.

We And Our Neighbours

by Ruhamah Scheinfeld Frank

PARENTS CAN BE WRONG

From Dan even to Beer-sheba, one of the most absorbing problems for hundreds of parents these days throughout the rich and flower-fragrant land of P. E. I., is what to do about the further education of sons and daughters. Sometimes the worry begins in grade 8, but the real periods of decision are at the end of grades 9 and 10, the P.W.C. entrance examinations and the first half of grade eleven.

The problem has many angles. First, there is the economic question. "If we lived handy to town," said Mr. Sims thoughtfully, "we might manage. Jim is a bright boy and wants to go on with his studies, but he has the offer of a good job and we need the money."

Mr. Campbell believed education was useful and he could get along without the lad's earnings but sending a boy to school meant not only board and room but tuition and books and better clothing and extras. If Roy wanted to go to school later and be all the better for it.

Marion Brown wants more than anything else to be a teacher. She has a scholarship and Mr. and Mrs. Brown plan to draw on a school fund, if necessary. Vacation work too will help pay for her schooling.

Judging from conversations with many parents and young people, the lack of money is a factor in the question of more education, but it does not seem to be the chief obstacle. Rather, the main reason for leaving school on P. E. I., appears to lie in the dissatisfaction of the students themselves with the school situation even where their parents are able and willing to send them further.

Perhaps the most important source of discontent and desire to leave school, is failure in school accomplishments. This failure usually occurs in grades 9 and 10 and in the P.W.C. entrance examinations. In many instances poor work in grade eleven is the final blow. These failures are not due to laziness or too much interest in the normal teen-age social activities, but often are the result of school-work gets more complicated and the pressures to pass greater in the upper grades, and the student who could keep up until then, may find himself unable to cope with his studies. And often when school examinations, he finds the competition in the larger school much keener and life may become a struggle without the day by day compensations he found at home. The less a school system considers the needs of the individual, of course, the more frequent failures with all their attendant ill effects.

Sometimes too, the sense of ability but of personality. Jean, for example, was not a good mixer but known and liked in the village where she was born and raised. She had a few good friends and was quite well-adjusted. But she felt lonely and frightened in the big city school. Jane was gay and popular in her country district but ill-at ease in the larger school where she believed the other girls dressed better and had more accomplishments. Or Steve was quite the life of the party in his own group, but felt awkward and out of things in his new school. "What is to be done in such cases?" the parents ask. They want to stop school, but are fifteen, or sixteen or even seventeen year old boys and girls old enough to decide? There is no set answer to any question concerning human behavior. No two individuals react in exactly the same way. One teen-ager may be far more mature than another. Or to one student, doing the work of the semester over again, may be a fine experience. Another may be so humiliated by his failure and his separation with his former class-mates and the activities he shared with them, that repeating the work may result in no improvement in his studies, and much harm to his mental health.

But shy Jean and awkward Steve may in time learn to get along better in large groups, but on the other hand, Jean may withdraw still further, and Steve lose whatever self-assurance he had. Skillful guidance often helps, and understanding parents may work out some compromise with their children.

A visit to friends in another town may give the shy and awkward ones more social poise. A larger allowance for clothes and perhaps dancing lessons may restore the confidence of self-conscious girls. Careful tutoring and opportunities for outside satisfactions and for meeting former classmates, may help to reconcile the slow boy or girl to repeat a grade. And in some cases a job may be the wisest solution.

Then there are the bright young people who question more the methods of teaching available to them. They may have a desire for an education that is "the high adventure" spoken of in a recent "Guardian" editorial. They may be looking for education more related to their own interests and goals. But here too, if the family relationship is good, it is possible to lead them to choose what is best for them out of what is offered at school. Summer jobs, part-time work, trips, all if carefully planned, can supplement the regular school course, and sometimes actual job experience for a while may make the student eager to return to school.

And finally, young people leave school in rebellion against fulfilling the ambitions and needs of their parents, but felt awkward and out of things in their new school. Mr. and Mrs. Henry for instance, decided from the day of his birth that their son should be a professional man and not tied down to a small store as they were. They did everything they could to discourage his marked interest in machinery and used punishment and bribery to keep him in school. But at the end of one semester at P.W.C. he announced that he had a job at the garage. Last week, Mrs. Henry pointed to a tall young man peering into the inside of an old car in the garage she said, "His heart wasn't in books. Now he is happy as a lark. He plans to go to school where they teach diesel and pay him while he is learning."

But Mr. Bell who is a farmer with a secret belief that he would have made a good lawyer, is not resigned to his son's intention to leave school and learn on the farm, how to be a good farmer. "He could have been anything," Mr. Bell said regretfully, "and the understanding parents may work out some compromise with their children."

MEMORIAL FIELD PLAYGROUND — During the past week a start was made by the officials in charge of developing Memorial Field, on opening up a playground adjacent to the Field. Situated among the white birches which stand between Brighton Road and the Field bleachers, a more ideal spot could not be found. It provides a shady, cool spot for parents and kiddies alike. To date a slide and sand box have been placed and both are already quite busy. During the next week or so, tilts and swings, also a few benches, will be added. These bits of equipment will make a fairly complete playground set-up for all kiddies wanting to make use of same. It will be particularly nice for the children of the Brighton area. Mr. Earl Riggs, caretaker of Memorial Field, is deeply interested in the welfare of the children and is prepared to spend a certain amount of time in supervision of the Playground. The Memorial Field Canteen nearby will also be kept open daily for the convenience of children and parents and it is hoped it will receive a certain share of patronage as it is the receipts from the Canteen which go to the upkeep of the main athletic field.
