

Mrs. Kenneth Graham was hostess for the August meeting of the Crawford Memorial Women's Missionary Society, Breadalbane, Mrs. Cuyler Matheson presided.

Mrs. John Hickox, devotional leader, read a story which emphasized the faith of one woman. Other members assisted with readings and poems on the same topic. Byrnes were sung. Mrs. James Craig read Psalm 27 which so vividly portrays David's abiding faith. The president asked Mrs. George T. Duke who was a visitor at this meeting for a few remarks. Mrs. Duke gave account of her ministerial work in Dumbarton, New Hampshire, where she has been pastor of a church.

After the prayer circle, Mrs. Allan Hickox read the mission lesson on the work of the church in Japan. Mrs. Kenneth Graham who had charge of the study book, "How to Speak and Pray in Public" gave a brief speech on "David and Goliath."

Mrs. James Craig invited the members to her home for the September meeting. The hostess, assisted by several members, served lunch during the social hour.

YCS CONFERENCE AT ALBERTON

A young Christian Student Conference for Girls was held at Alberton last week following a similar course for boys. Thirty girls from various parts of the province registered at the Sacred Heart Parochial House for the series of lectures given by YCS national president Leo Paul Martin and a treasurer Fred Jacques, both of Windsor, Ont. Lectures dealing with student problems

They met in the summer of 1962, when Mr. Feder was a tour guide who often took groups to the souvenir shop where Miss Kammer was working.

He is a native of Niagara Falls, N.Y., where he teaches social science. Mrs. Feder is a ballet and tap dancing teacher.

"There was music at the ceremony," Mrs. Feder said. "We just had the falls as our music."

Pigeons have been trained to search for a drug firm as can spot dried, discolored or misshapen pills and capsules.

WINNIEG (CP)—The Canada Federation of University Women Friday elected its slate of officers to serve with Mrs. M.J. Sabie at St. Catharines.

Provincial directors include: Quebec, French, Miss Suzanne Goulet, Montreal; Quebec, English, Mrs. G.A. Mooney, New Brunswick; Mrs. J.L. Black, Sackville; Nova Scotia, Dr. Louis Thériault, Wolfville; Prince Edward Island, Mrs. J.A. Lawson, Charlottetown; Newfoundland, Mrs. G. Chinn, Grand Falls.

WOMAN BEAT BANDITS
SUBURBY, Ont. (CP)—Mrs. Paul Hadgis and her 16-year-old daughter Vickie were working in their confectionery store Wednesday night. Two masked men carrying a rifle, the woman publications and threatened them, Vickie slammed the cash register that locked it and fled upstairs screaming for her father. Mrs. Hadgis refused to open the register and the bandits, empty-handed, beat a hasty retreat.

Wedding Music
Was Falls' Roar

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (CP)—The thunder of Niagara Falls was the wedding music for Beverly Ann and H. William Feder.

They were married Saturday at the home of Mrs. M. J. Sabie at St. Catharines, Ont. The bride and groom were accompanied by their parents and other relatives.

They met in the summer of 1962, when Mr. Feder was a tour guide who often took groups to the souvenir shop where Miss Kammer was working.

MR. AND MRS. JAMES MCGEE
Snapdragon And Delphinium
Decorate Southport Church

Our Lady of the Assumption Church, Southport, was decorated with baskets of pink and white snapdragon and tall spikes of delphinium for the August marriage of Elizabeth Ann Rodgers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Rodgers, Kippowick, to James Richard McGee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard McGee, 400 St. John's Street, St. John's, N.S. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. McMahon. The bride wore a white dress with white carnations and corsage of pink carnations, and the groom wore a white suit with white carnations and corsage of pink carnations.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at Keppoch Beach Hotel. The bride's mother chose a dress of pink, orange silk with matching accessories and a corsage of pink and white carnations. The groom wore a white suit with white carnations and corsage of pink carnations.

Those who entertained for Mrs. Rodgers prior to her wedding included the staff of the Bank of Nova Scotia who held a dinner party in her honor at the Hotel Charlottetown and Mrs. William Wood and Mrs. Gordon Gray who were joint hosts at Kinloch at a communion. Mr. and Mrs. McGee were accompanied by Albert Bannister.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white chiffon tulle and lace. Her headpiece of orange blossoms and white carnations held an elbow length veil of tulle illusion and her bouquet was a cascade of white carnations.

Mrs. Lee Rodgers was maid of honor for her sister, with Judith Rodgers, son and Sandra Gormley as bridesmaids. They were identical street length gowns of white tulle with bell shaped skirts and matching ties. The bridesmaids carried bouquets of carnations to match their gowns.

William Duffy of Charlottetown was groomsmen and the brides were Jack and Betty Raymond Thompson.

MARY HAWORTH
Husband's Agnosticism
Greatly Disturbs Wife

Dear Mary Haworth: After 14 years of trying to adjust, I still become very disturbed over my husband's agnostic attitude.

Perhaps deep down he has some belief but likes to refer to himself as an agnostic. This is a very disturbing thing to me.

So much for your misreading of my husband's problem here. Now.

Now, to turn the spotlight on you, to understand your testimony, much of your misery has to do with the fact that you are a Christian and I am a non-believer.

Lately he has remarked about this transformation in me and feels my coldness is just to punish him. He expounds about how bad he is but at the same time, as my example is so poor!

In his better moments, however, he will tell everyone that he's never known a more honest person than I. If a child acts up he tells them they're misbehaving on purpose, he'll rant and rave. "You stink like all Christians."

Don't assume, from such language that I am a poor understanding person. I am a professional man, doing well in the field of his choice, with a nice family and we have no problems.

I try to tell him that faith is not a religion, but I might as well talk to a statue, except he always has a nasty comeback. Strangely, he has a good sense of values and fairness outside the family.

I wanted so much to bring up my children in a united church-going family, not with Dad staying home. He had gone with me mostly before our marriage and he fully knew how important church was to me.

Our family respect is zero at times, I feel to a lack of Christian unity. I try to remove our conflicts but I've spent many a sleepless night by worry. Is this the best I can expect? A.C.

Dear A.C.: Don't blame your husband's nastiness on his agnosticism, necessarily.

A man may be sincerely agnostic (i.e. without conviction that God exists or that the concept of the Trinity is a senseless), and still be a gentleman; that is, a considerate, courteous husband and decent mannered Dad in the bosom of his family. Which your husband is not.

So, to repeat, it isn't your husband's agnosticism (of which he boasts) so much as it is a mean streak of vicious ad-hoc-type vulgar cruelty in his make-up that poisons your family life as described.

Of course if he were to become a bona fide Christian, led by the spirit (as the phrase is) to an awareness of the awesome and joyous dimensions of reality that open to Christian believers, he would have more of a sense of accord to be rid of his venous with largest family present, Hedley Mutari; grandson of them, with largest family present in the family, Mrs. Frank Mutari; one celebrating her birthday, Mrs. Wyman Clark.

The members all voted to have another picnic next year in the fall. Hedley Mutari, Mark Cameron, Arthur Inman and Elms Inman. All the contest winners were presented with chocolate bars. A picnic supper was served.

ELLEN'S DIARY
Animals Of The Herd
Now Return From Fair

"No, I've never been to the island before," one, a stranger from another of the Maritimes who chatted with James on one day of the Fair replied. "In the barn, our farmers' home away from home" for the week it was. The cowbird, down to the little calf, had been fed at the fair and now were standing or lying at ease. Indeed some were relaxed that an interested lad passing by had queried anxiously of the herd to see if they were the same as the ones he had seen at the fair. "I thought he was, from the way he is lying. Just asleep," I thought he was, from the way he is lying. Just asleep," I thought he was, from the way he is lying. Just asleep,"

"And I thought he was, from the way he is lying. Just asleep," I thought he was, from the way he is lying. Just asleep," I thought he was, from the way he is lying. Just asleep,"

"And I thought he was, from the way he is lying. Just asleep," I thought he was, from the way he is lying. Just asleep," I thought he was, from the way he is lying. Just asleep,"
