

THE MILLER'S DAUGHTER.

There is a lonely mill, close beside the little hamlet of Udorf, near the Rhine Ursel, on the left bank below Bonn. The mill is said to be the scene of the following story:—

It was on a Sunday morning 'ages long ago,' that the miller of this mill, and his whole family, went forth to hear the holy mass as the nearest church in the village of Hersel. The mill which was also his residence, was left in charge of the servant girl named Hannechen or Jenny, a stout-hearted lass who had long lived in that capacity. An infant child of an age unfit for church, was left in her charge likewise.

The girl was busily engaged in preparing dinner for the return of her master and his family, when who should enter all of a sudden but an old sweetheart of hers, named Heinrich Bottel. He was an idle, graceful fellow, whom the miller had forbidden the house, but whom Jenny liked, with amiable perversity peculiar to her sex only perhaps, all the better because others gave him no countenance. She was glad to see him, and she told him so, too; and, although in the midst of her work, she not only got him some thing to eat at once, but also found time to sit down with him and have a gossip, while he despatched the food she set before him. As he ate, however, he let fall his knife.

'Pick that up, my lass,' said he, in a joking way, to the good natured girl.

'Nay, Heinrich,' she replied, 'your back should be mere supple than mine, for you have less work to make it stiff. I labor all day long and you do nothing. But never mind! 'Twould go hard with me an' I refused to do more than that for you, bad though you may be.'

This was spoken half sportively and half in good earnest, for kind-hearted as the girl was, and much as she liked the scapegrace, she was too honest and industrious herself to encourage or approve of idleness and a suspicious course of life in any one else, however dear to her. She stooped down, accordingly to pick up the knife. As she was in the act of rising, however, the treacherous villain drew a dagger from under his coat and caught her by the nape of the neck, gripping her throat firmly with his fingers to prevent her screaming the while.

'Now lass,' he said, swearing out a bad oath at the same time, 'where is the master's money? I'll have that or your life; so take your choice!'

The terrified girl would fain have parleyed with the ruffian, but he would hear nothing she could say.

'Master's money or you life, lass!' was all the answer he vouchsafed to her entreaties and adjurations. 'Choose at once,' was the only alternative he offered her; 'the grave or the gold!'

She saw that there was no hope of mercy at his hands, and, as she saw it, her native resolution awoke in her bosom. Like the generality of the gentle sex, she was timid at trifles; a scratch was a subject of fear to her, a drop of blood caused her to faint; an unwonted sound filled her soul with fear in the night. But, when her energies were aroused by an adequate cause, she proved, as her sex has ever done, that in courage, in endurance, in presence of mind, and in resources for every emergency she far surpassed the bravest man.

'Well, well, Heinrich!' she said, resignedly, 'what is to be must be. But if you take the money, I shall go along with you. This will be no home for me any more. But ease your grip of my neck a little—don't squeeze so hard; I can't move you hug me so tight. And if I can't stir, you can't get the money; that's clear, you know. Besides, time presses, and if it be done at all, it must be done quickly, as the household will shortly be back from Hersel.'

The ruffian relaxed his grip, and finally, let go his hold. Her reasons were all cogent with his cupidity. 'Come,' she said, 'quick! quick!—no delay. The money is in master's bedroom.'

She tripped up stairs, gayly as a lark; he followed closely at her heels. She led the way into her master's bedroom and pointed out the coffer in which his money was secured.

Remedy for Hard Times.

Stop spending so much on fine clothes, rich food and style. Buy good, healthy food, cheaper and better clothing; get more real and substantial things of life every way, and especially stop the foolish habit of running after expensive and quack doctors or using so much of the vile humbug medicine that does you only harm, and makes the proprietors rich, but put your trust in the greatest of all simple pure remedies, Hop Bitters that cures always at a trifling cost, and you will see better times and good health. Try it once. Read of it in another column.
