THE DAILY EXAMINER

AUGUST 21, 1900

ENATOR FERGUSON'S SPEECH.

At the outset of his able speech before the Tupper Club in Moncton, Senator Ferguson claimed that the Senate of Canada was one of the best parliamentary institutions in this or any other country. He thought he was safe in saying that the affairs of this country could not be carried on safely without the Senate. The wisdom of having an upper chamber, in fact, was not seriously disputed, and the speaker dealt with the various forms of creating a second chamber, concluding that the system of nominating an upper chamber for life, was, according to the best opinions, the better mode. The speaker proceeded to point out that there had been a remarkable unanimity of feeling between the lower and upper house in the working out of the legislation of the country. He touched upon a few of the bills introduced by the lower house to which the upper house refused to give its assent. Reference was made to the bill introduced last session providing for the appointment of three new judges in Montreal, and which the senate considered might well be delayed a while longer in view of the inactivity of the government in pursuing the proper course to have the matter provided for.

The bill providing for the extension of the I. C. R. into Montreal was next discussed. This scheme of the government was sprung upon the country all of a sudden. The lower house passed a bill authorizing the purchase of the Drummond Counties and privileges over the Grand Trunk, and imposing upon the country an additional burden of debt of seven million of dollars. The road ran almost parallel with the G. T. R. and C. P. R. Roads, and the scheme, he ventured to say, was inaugurated to furnish a large bonus of cash for Mr. Jas. G. Greenshields. The Senate rejected the first bill, and when it came back to the Senate again it was in such a modified form that a Liberal member's estimate was that the Senate had saved the country at least $700,000, while the Senate claimed that several million dollars were saved.

The Yukon railway bill was dealt with, and Senator Ferguson pointed out the services the Senate had rendered the country in the rejection of this gigantic scheme which proposed to give away 3,750,000 acres of selected gold lands for the purpose of constructing a railway that practically started from nowhere and ended nowhere.

These were some of the questions upon which the Senate differed from the present government and he would say that the Senate would have been derelict in its duty if they had not dealt in the way they had with the Drummond Counties and Yukon railway bills.

Senator Ferguson, near the close of his able address, made a passing reference to the South African war. Where was Canada, asked the speaker, when every other part of the Empire was moving to assist the mother country in that conflict? That was Canada's grand opportunity. But where was the Premier? Tarte was opposed to doing anything, and consequently while the rest of the Empire was moving Sir Wilfrid Laurier gave that famous interview to the Toronto Globe in which he said the government could do nothing. And nothing was done until Sir Charles Tupper commanded them to move and send a contingent to South Africa. Even then they only moved in a half hearted way. The Liberals showed with reference to preferential trade and the South African crisis that they were not equal to the occasion. And in regard to the South African war some of them showed that they were not in sympathy with the unity of this empire at all. Canada lagged behind in consequence of the indifference and inactivity of the government. He claimed that whatever part Canada had taken in that war was due to the opposition and Sir Charles Tupper. If Laurier's cowardice had prevailed, Canada, the greatest of her colonies, would have been shown to be the least in sympathy with the empire.

Some of the scandals in which the government has been concerned were referred to. The I. C. R. bill, which was ventilated in the house by Messrs. Haggart, Powell and others, was touched upon. Senator Ferguson pointed out that shortly after the elections in 1896, tenders were called for the supply of oil for the I. C. R. Among the tenderers was the Galena Oil Co. of Pennsylvania. The figures of the tenders were quoted showing that the prices of the Galena Oil Co. were over 100 per cent higher than other tenders. Mr Blair entered the Cabinet and sought election in Queens and Sanbury, where a gentleman of German extraction, hailing from Pennsylvania made his appearance during the campaign. Mr Blair was elected and within three weeks the Galena people got the contract for supplying oil. Senator Ferguson went on to show that for engine oil the cost had been increased from $3.32 to $5.19, or 56 per cent more than the guarantee, which was that the oil would be supplied 10 per cent lower than the prices under the old contract. The speaker quoted the Erie and Pennsylvania Oil Co, as expressing a desire to pay $10,000 for the Galena Oil Co's contract. That statement convinced him that at least $10,000 was paid to some one for that oil contract.

We are on the eve of an election, said Senator Ferguson, and he pointed out that much was being made of the bye-elections by the local agitator. In Ontario, however, the bye-elections were not mentioned after the revelations concerning Brockville, West Elgin and West Huron were made. It was found that the government was not winning the bye-elections fairly but was stealing them. In this connection he was reminded of the bye-election in his own province where they stole the man. The island premier displayed greater ability than Laurier, Hardy and Ross, inasmuch as he stole the material already made, whereas they stole the stuff to make the article. From the time the bye-election exposures (in which their own member, Mr. Powell, took such a prominent part) were made, the government organs were not saying much about bye-elections.

Senator Ferguson was proud to say from what he could learn from representatives from the different provinces, before leaving Ottawa, that whenever the appeal to the people was made, it would result in the return to power of Sir Charles Tupper, one of the greatest initiative statesmen we ever had in Canada.

—One of the predicted consequences of the mad rush of inexperienced and poorly equipped gold-seekers to Nome, Alaska, is a pathetic appeal from 4,000 destitute people there to the government to send transports for their return to the States. A resident of Wichita, Kan, who is now at Cape Nome, recently wrote a letter to a relative at home, from which the following is an extract: "Here lies the rolling sea; towering above that are the ice green mountains, and towering above the mountains is the price of grub."

—There has been much discussion and some crimination about whether the Government sent the soldiers to South Africa of their own accord, or were compelled to do so by force of public opinion. But, as the Star points out, Sir Wilfrid Laurier has settled the question in one of his Nova Scotia orations. He says the Government did not send the troops; they just "went." Like that noted, but unutilized lady in the touching poem, the venerable Mrs. Hubbard, who had a mission to a cupboard for a bone that was not there, they simply "went." This explanation is like a certain brand of cocoa — "grateful and comforting."

Montreal Star: Now Mr. Blair has given a contract for eight more locomotives to a United States concern. Thus does the Government of Canada advertise, encourage and foster Canadian industry and put money in the pockets of the Canadian working man—in the United States. Canada is a country that cannot build even the locomotives for its own government railway, cannot print its own government dollar bills and cannot even make its own postage stamps—or at least the Laurier Government says so.

—If peace has its victories no less renowned than war, it also has its heroes. Among these, Captain Frederick Jerome, an old British sailor who died in San Francisco the other day, certainly deserves a high niche in the temple of fame. During his life on the stormy wave he was instrumental in saving over a thousand lives of persons at sea. For his heroism in the British Channel in going to the rescue of shipwrecked people he was specially honored and decorated by the Queen. The city of Liverpool presented him with a gold medal, and New York granted him the freedom of the city and a piece of plate for saving hundreds of lives in the wrecks of the Henry Clay and Ocean Monarch in the years 1846 and 1848. For similar humanitarian exploits the Pioneer Society, of California, elected him honorary life member by unanimous vote.

WHERE SICKNESS ABOUNDS.—It is said that small pox, typhoid and pneumonia are raging in Cape Nome. The authorities at Dawson have instituted a quarantine against all persons coming from that place.

TO WEAR MOURNING.—An Ottawa despatch states that officers of the militia are ordered to wear mourning until September 13th for the Duke of Edinburgh, a band of black crepe around the left arm.

FISHING BELOW AVERAGE.—The Newfoundland fishery is reported much below last year's catch. The Labrador fishery is almost a total failure owing to the heavy body of ice along that coast up to the present time.

When we have good blood we are healthy, strong, vigorous and full of life and energy. Hood's Sarsaparilla makes good blood.
