IN MEMORIAM

MR. EMMETT STORDY

It is with deep regret that we learn of the passing of Mr. Emmett Stordy, of Kelly's Cross, whose death occurred suddenly in Charlottetown Hospital on the afternoon of May 19.

The deceased is the son of the late John Stordy and Margaret Murphy of Kelly's Cross and was born in 1883, living most of his life in Kelly's Cross. He was not only a successful farmer, but also an expert carpenter. He married Miss Sadie Docherty of Emsvale, who survives him, as do all of his seven children, two sons and five daughters, namely: Francis of Toronto; Raymond at home; Madeline (Mrs. John Roberts) of Kinkora; Reta (Mrs. Francis Kelly) of Kelly's Cross; Edna (Mrs. Edmund Campbell) of Toronto; Teresa, in Charlottetown, and Imelda at home. Also surviving him are his aged mother, Mrs. Margaret Stordy, and four sisters, Sister M. Bonaventura, Sister Marie Beatrice, Sister M. Madeline, all in Halifax, and Sister Peter in Vancouver; three brothers, Anthony of Kinkora, Justin and Peter in Kelly's Cross; a brother, Cecil died in Boston about a year ago.

The late Mr. Stordy had the happy faculty of making friends easily. His ready good humor and Irish wit always made him well-liked. He was a noble Christian gentleman whose guiding rule of life was his love for his church and religion. His duties to his wife and family and his jolly good-fellowship and Christian charity to all his friends, neighbours and associates.

The funeral, which was one of the largest in this community, was under the direction of Mr. Damien Trainor and was held from his late home to St. Joseph's Chapel, Kelly's Cross.

Requiem High Mass was sung by Rev. Kenneth MacMillan, who also performed the committal rites at the graveside. Other attending clergy were: Rev. C. McCarthy of Tyrone, Rev. C. Pitre of Rustico and Rev. L. P. Callaghan of Indian River.

Funeral bearers were: Mark Curley, Albert Smith, Jerome Smith, Joe Carragher, Owen Cummore and J. P. Carragher. May he rest in peace.

Card Of Thanks

The family of the late Emmett Stordy wish to thank the doctors, nurses and staff of the City Hospital for all their care and kindness to the deceased. Also all who sent flowers, Mass intentions, cards and messages of sympathy; also all their kind neighbours and friends, and all who in any way befriended them or helped in any way to lighten their burden of sorrow.

life, it develops an even temper and it produces chapped hands. One of these days we want to write a noble and lengthy panegyric on gardener's hands. Have you ever looked at the hands of gardeners? Knobby, knuckled and brown, firm in the grasp, worn in the nails and not always utterly clean, gardener's hands have a certain homely nobility about them. They are constantly touching the mysteries of soil and seed and green leaf, and from them derive a contour and color that sets them apart from the hands of other workers.

New flowers are blooming every day to cheer us in our garden work — lupines in soft pink and the crimson Oriental poppies, one of the most colorful perennials in the garden. It is a species from Asia Minor with no equal for extravagant display. This great-flowered poppy with satin petals and indigo velvet stamens has long been cultivated by gardeners of the East and West, so that its natural beauties have been developed into the highly ornamental hybrids of today.

I have never seen better bloom on the hardy shrubs... lilacs, honeysuckle, flowering crab, azalea and spirea. The old-fashioned snowball is covered with bloom and as there are many of these shrubs in the garden here; there is fragrance and color without much care.

When the early bulbs are past along comes iris and delphinium and the lovely day-lilies with the pale blue flax and the purple violas that visitors have admired. Some garden visitors will be glad to know that the rose garden has been weeded and they are now looking well in spite of neglect.

The first rose has bloomed, hardy, fragrant Agnes, a Canadian origin and soon there will be many roses in all colors.

Midsummer day is here and... Soon will the high Midsummer pumps come on.

Soon will the musk carnations break and swell, Soon shall we have gold dusted snapdragon, Sweet William with its homely cottage smell, And stocks in fragrant blow; Roses that down the alleys shine afar, And open, jasmine muffled lattices, And groups under the dreaming garden trees, And the full moon, and the white evening star.

—Matthew Arnold.

THE ISSUES BEHIND WAR

The story is told of Napoleon in the battle of Leipzig, that when he saw the enemy's strategy developing he made a remark to the effect that they had learned something from him. He had carried the sword into many countries and by so doing he had kindled a spirit which resulted in his own overthrow. The same thing has happened with would-be conquerors in our own time—they took the sword and perished by the sword.

Our attention has been drawn to this subject by articles in a number of American religious papers on the threat to the liberties of American citizens from certain Committees on Un-American Activities.

Congress has appointed one such committee and certain voluntary organizations are moving in the same direction. The point is that in their attempts to protect America against the progress of the Communist tyranny they are robbing the own people of the freedom of thought, speech, and action that has been America's glory and strength.

Academic freedom is imperilled in the universities. Committees are being suggested to investigate the churches so that pro-Communists may be exposed. Prominent churchmen, about whose loyalty to their own country and opposition to Communism there can be no doubt, have been accused of complicity in plots against their own institutions. The "smear" is a method used by these ultra-patriots; any public man who advocates social reform is labeled a Communist, and, without any evidence that a court would consider, a cloud of suspicion is thrown over his record.

The result is that public men fear to take a stand on issues that call for champions lest such charges be laid against them. Now we have no intention of discussing conditions in the United States; our American cousins are well able to look after themselves. But we repeat certain things about their own affairs to point to a peril that threatens individuals and communities everywhere—in fighting against acknowledged evils we tend to adopt their methods and descend to their level. It is folly to attempt to fight the devil with fire; his fire consumes all who try to use it.

The issues behind war must be dealt with — injustice, want, disease, oppression, and all that flows from "man's inhumanity to man." God expects the strong to help the weak, and the free to deliver the captives. What we have we owe, as nations and individuals. It will tax the resources of the nations to meet the demands thus made upon them, but the returns will be beyond price.

The same law governs our personal relationships. Peace with others is the only way to one's own happiness. A standing quarrel is an open sore causing humiliation and misery wherever it appears. No matter who seems to win, both really lose. "Blessed are the peace-makers," said Jesus, and this is particularly true in one's Confederation Man: "Fred, you know how much is left of my $5,000 income after payments on my house... food and clothing bills... and all the other expenses. How much protection can I afford for my family?"

"A lot more than you think, Jim," replied the Confederation Man. "We have a plan that, on your salary, will provide for your family $10,000 in cash at death... and $100 every month until your daughter is 21. Then, they'll receive another $10,000. In the event of death after your daughter is 21 this plan provides $20,000 in cash. That's enough to provide a brighter future!"
