Parkings...

Students, Faculty and Staff,

We have now started another year of academic studies, and with this comes the problem of finding some place to park. Already, we, the security department, are having to warn, ticket and tow vehicles for parking violations. Although parking and no parking areas are well marked, the problem of illegally parked cars still exists. A number of reasons for this problem have been given. These include late for class, did not see the sign, too far to walk, and it's worth the risk of getting caught. The university's policy on parking has not changed, parking is operated on a first come first serve basis.

The security department and the university realize that the existing parking lot not always accommodate the total number of vehicles on the campus at one time but this is not sufficient reason to double park, park on grass, or block roadways. We feel that much of this problem can be avoided if drivers look the situation over carefully, plan ahead, and have patience when parking on campus. Please try to help us in helping you.

With your security in mind, good motoring.

A.J. MacLeod, Director of Security.
