Future Of Family Farm Said At Stake By Leo P. McIsaac

"The future of the family farm in Eastern Canada may well be determined by the policies of the federal government in the next five years or so," Leo P. McIsaac, Queens county candidate for the New Democrats told of a meeting in Belfast Hall last night. Mr. MacIsaac said that even here on the Island processing and other companies were stepping into the production picture.

"The outright refusal of the two old parties to provide federal marketing legislation and parity prices to farm producers has deprived us of the ability to negotiate for our share of the national income," he stated.

"The small farmer, like the unorganized tradesman or worker, is left to the mercy of those who finance and control the old party machines. We can't have a prosperous or happy nation, "he said," by handouts, however generous, for one-shot projects. We must have a sound policy of protection for the small farmer and jobs for all who are willing and able to work. This can be done," Mr. McIsaac said. "It has been done in Britain, Australia, New Zealand and Western Europe. Tommy Douglas can and will do it in Canada if we give him our support and help."

With respect to education, Mr. McIsaac said that inequality of opportunity is particularly evident in his field. "Every year, about this time, we see thousands of young Canadians leaving school before they have had adequate training, to seek jobs in the already overcrowded labor market. Most do not leave school as a matter of choice. They leave because they do not have the money to continue and, in leaving, they take on a handicap which many of them will never be able to overcome.

EQUAL RIGHT

"Equal right to education is absolutely indispensable to equality of opportunity. It is shocking that education is a modern civilization is still sold in the market place, available only to those who can pay the price. A survey by DBS a few years ago showed that over one-quarter of the students in Canadian universities come from an income class representing only one-tenth of Canadian families.

"Under a New Democratic government this financial wall between Canada's youth and their right to education will be torn down. We will work with the provincial governments to provide free education at all levels - including university - to every student who can meet the academic standards. Living allowances will also be provided for university students. This would constitute a giant step along the path to a society based on equality of opportunity. It is a must in today's world of automation and technical advances," Mr. McIsaac concluded.

strongest in the world," he said as he contrasted that with the Diefenboom with people going elsewhere to look for jobs, one-half million people unemployed, the debt going up at a scary rate, and no confidence left in our dollar."

The PCs try to tell us they pegged the dollar but they're bluffing. Finance Minister explained in the budget why they wouldn't peg the dollar, and first thing we knew they had pegged it, he said and now it's worth 2½ cents less than it was in what they call the Liberal "depression."

The move wasn't planned, "they pegged it because they were scared, because people from other countries had lost confidence in our way of conducting our business."

The Liberal debt reduction amounted to $150 less for every man, woman and child in the country, but the Tories increased it by $200 for every person, or a mortgage of $1,000 on every farm with a man and his wife and three children. They get the mortgage but they don't get anything for it, he criticized.

The Tories tell you they've decreased unemployment but there were 177,000 unemployed in June 1957, just about as low as it's possible to go in a free country where some people are always changing jobs, but it was 485,000, by their own figures in mid-April 1962, or almost three times as much, Mr. Pickersgill said.

In 1961, he said, more people left Canada to look for jobs than came here seeking employment.

Sharply criticizing the silence in parliament of Angus Maclean and Heath Macquarrie who had been PC members in Commons, Mr. Pickersgill said just because a member is on the government side it doesn't mean that he has to leave his tongue on this side of the Strait when he goes to Ottawa.

Praising the Liberal candidates who had spoken before him, he said their performance is convincing proof that they won't leave either their tongues, or their brains, behind them if you send them to Ottawa by your votes on June 18.

He said the government boasts about the money paid farmers in support prices then asked the P.E.I. farmers "how much of it did you get?" and questioned how a government could boast about such payments anyway, when it only means the farmers were not able to get by on their own, because of an unsound economy.

He had heard Fisheries Minister MacLean boast in a television speech that the Island had never got so much marine works from Ottawa. "But I was at Rustico today and saw a great deal of fine harbor work and installations there.

"I asked them", he said, "how much they had received under the present administration and they told me, not a single thing, we got all of it prior to 1857."

Mr. Gillis said a vote for Liberal candidates means support for a great Liberal team headed by Mr. Pearson, not for a one-man party like the PCs with a leader who uses his great gift of oratory to mislead the people.

They have done nothing but fumble, fumble, fumble and Mr. Pearson is the only man who can save this country from the bankruptcy it's headed for under Mr. Diefenbaker, he said.

Diefenbaker talks sneeringly of a "brain rust" which Mr. Pearson has organized "but it's too bad we didn't have some brains operating at Ottawa the last five years," he suggested.

Across the country 7.5 percent of the people are idle but 11.1 percent of those under 20 are idle." The unemployed rate in the Maritimes is 11.1 percent and if we use the same ratio it means that 25 percent of our boys under 20 are idle.

Mr. Lewis contrasted Canada's position today with 1957 when it was the third trading nation in the world, it had the most valuable currency and our voice in the world councils was highly respected and our per income was increasing."

Now, he said, the currency is devaluated, Canada has slipped back to the fifth trading nation and unemployment is two and one-half times what it was under the Liberals

Launching Pond Contract Awarded For Breakwater

A $40,049 contract for the extension of the breakwater at Launching Pond, Kings County, has been awarded by the federal department of public works to Stanley Reid of Port Hilford, N.S., it was announced last night by Mrs. Margaret Macdonald, PC candidate for Kings.

The contractor submitted the lowest bid of two in response to advertising for public tenders which closed on May 10. The highest bid was $42,253.27. The work is scheduled for completion within eight months.

The work consists of the construction of a 400-foot extension to the north breakwater, which will relieve congestion of present landing facilities and also will reduce maintenance dredging in the entrance channel. It will be built with braced creosoted pile and covered with a reinforced concrete deck.

The area back of the structure will be filled to provide additional space for the fishermen. About 40 boats fish from the harbor and the value of the annual lobster catch is $80,000. In addition, some of the boats fish cod and other species throughout the remainder of the season.

Plans and specifications were prepared in the Charlottetown district engineer's office at the department of public works. T. B. MacLennan, district engineer, (harbors and rivers engineering) of Charlottetown, will be responsible for supervision of the work.

William Reddin Is Appointed Magistrate For Montague

MONTAGUE—A Special meeting of Montague Town Council was held last night to deal with the appointment of a town magistrate; the 1962 paving and street improvement program and assistance to Red Cross swimming classes.

A decision to appoint William Reddin, lawyer from Southport and who has a part-time office in Montague, as magistrate of the Town of Montague was reached. The plan has been under consideration for several weeks and will be put into force immediately.

Court will be held each Monday as required and all fines must be paid at time of conviction. This move has been taken in an effort to cut costs and to simplify the handling of law violators.

The matter of street paving and improvements for the 1962 period was discussed and it was decided to take up the allotment for the town of $9,200. The streets to be paved are subject to approval by the provincial government and is a joint project, with the government paying 60 per cent and the town 40 per cent.

The tender of Matheson and MacMillan for the approximately ¾ mile of pavement was accepted and work will commence almost immediately. This paving and other street improvements are expected to cost in the vicinity of $15,000 for the current year.

Before adjournment, Coun. John Hughes requested assistance for the Red Cross swimming classes and the usual amount of $100 was voted towards this project.

Mayor B. H. Yeo presided and all councillors were present with the exception of Dr. A. E. Ings who was unavoidably absent.
