Opeing lead — four of diamonds.

The role of the declarer is an exacting one. He should, first of all, lay out a general plan of how to play the hand and, in doing so, make allowance for the many ways in which the opponents' cards can be divided.

It is possible that he will be unable to form a plan to take care of every possible distribution, but in each case he should adopt the line of play that has the best chance to succeed.

West led a diamond and declarer won the nine with the queen. South could see that there would be twelve easy tricks if the diamonds were divided 3-2. If they were not, he was in danger of losing the contract. The opening lead, he noted, looked suspiciously like a singleton.

The course to adopt, therefore, was to try to play in such a manner that the contract would make against the normal 3-2 diamond break, and also make against the expected 4-1 break.

Accordingly, declarer cashed the Q-J of hearts and was gratified to see both opponents follow suit. This assured him of a later entry to dummy's king of hearts.

He then deliberately abandoned further trump leads, leaving a heart at large, and led the eight of diamonds.

This permitted West to trump or not, as he saw fit. If West trumped, dummy would play a low diamond and declarer would wind up with eleven tricks—five hearts, five diamonds, and a club.

And if West discarded, declarer would win the diamond with the king, ruff a low diamond with a high trump, cross to dummy's king of hearts, and again come to eleven tricks. West's play therefore became immaterial.

But suppose declarer had not had the foresight to take the precautions referred to above. If he had blithely taken three rounds of trumps at once, he would have gone down. The bad diamond break plus the unfavorable location of the ace of spades would have held him to nine tricks.

A little foresight here and there will save declarer wear and tear.

'Wait And See' Slogan Is Heard In Indonesia

By K.R. RAMANATH

JAKARTA (AP) — Perhaps the most frequent phrase you hear in Indonesia today is "wait and see."

It's not a new slogan in a country that has often been content to float with the troubled tides that swirl around its 3,000 islands but now it has an urgent meaning—for the wait may not be long.

The answer will show whether this nation of 86,000,000 has just exchanged one form of trouble for another, or if it will finally start moving toward peace and stability.

President Sukarno issued a proclamation July 5 scrapping the 1950 provisional constitution. In its place, Sukarno brought back the 1945 revolutionary constitution to give himself sweeping power as both president and premier.

The 58-year-old leader has pictured this move as a step toward his cherished concept of guided democracy. The guidance comes in the form of a strong executive acting in onsultation with a non-political cabinet and a rubber-stamp congress.

ALMOST A DICTATOR

This could put Sukarno on the verge of dictatorship but a fear expressed here is that he may not act firmly enough. As one political observer put it:

"As president, he has been the guiding light and hero of the masses, but still technically only chief of state. He was the leader who talked big plans and ideas but left it up to others to carry them out. When things went wrong we had another political compromise, and Sukarno could say it was not his fault.

"He will not be able to do that any more."

In his new fenture, Sukarno has the vital support of Indonesia's most powerful single anti-Communist organization — the army.

NO REDS IN CABINET

Eight of the 39 cabinet members are from the army, and 35 appointed army men will sit in the new Congress.

Communists were not given a spot in the new cabinet and only one of 23 under ministers is considered a strong fellow-traveller.

But the Communists—a force second only to the army—have voiced only mild criticism that the new government 'is not revolutionary enough." Many feel that the Communists will be content for a while to build up their underground organization quietly and wait while the government struggles against heavy odds.

So great are Indonesia's troubles that Sukarno himself said in a recent speech: "The greatest achievement of the republic of Indonesia is that we still survive."

Reds Impound TV Equipment

TORONTO (CP)—CBC television news announcer Larry Henderson, who arrived in Canada from Russia Monday, said that while in Russia he was ordered not to interview people as a reporter.

His TV sound equipment was impounded upon his arrival and not returned until he was ready to depart.

But he said he was allowed to keep his silent 16 mm. movie camera because he told Russian authorities the color film could not be used on TV. Actually, it can be.

Mr. Henderson said stories he wrote during his tour were smuggled out of the country by a Canadian woman tourist. She aslo managed to take some film out.

Search Party Finds 3 Men

BADDECK, N.S. (CP) — A father and his two sons, lost in some of Cape Breton's heaviest bushland for more than 48 hours, were found by search parties near here early Monday afternoon.

Charles MacLeeland, 47, of Glace Bay, N.S., and his sons David, 12, and Charles, 10, were in fair condition.

They left Saturday morning for a fishing trip at an isolated lake nearby. About 100 volunteers joined RCMP officers and police dogs in the search.
