First Moderator of the United Church of Canada

REFUSED TO LET PAST BIND HIM

We are amazed at the originality of Jesus. He was original in His ideas; He was still more original in the abandonment with which He committed Himself to them.

He had found love in His Father's heart to an extent never realized before, and putting aside His people's cherished expectations of world-domination, He decided to build His Kingdom on love alone.

Now look at this story as told in Mark the earliest of our Gospels.

There came to Him James and John, the sons of Zebedee, saying to Him: "Teacher, we want you to do for us whatever we ask." And He said: "What do you want me to do for you?"

And they said to Him: "Grant us to sit on your right hand and on your left in your glory."

But Jesus said to them: "The cup that I shall drink you will drink, and with the baptism that I am baptized you will be baptized; but to sit on my right hand and on my left is not mine to give, but is for those for whom it has been prepared."

The Ten, hearing this, began to be indignant with James and John. And, calling them to Him, Jesus said to them: "You know that those who rule over the nations impose their authority upon them. Not so shall it be among you; but whoever wants to be great among you shall be your servant, and he who wants to be first shall be the slave of all. For the Son of Man also did not come to be served but to serve, and to give His life a ransom for many."

Caesar's Conquests Now look at the situation in which these words were spoken. The conquests of Caesar were in the immediate past. Even to those who hated him, Julius Caesar was the greatest of the great. The fruits of Alexander's victories and ideas were ripening all around.

Jesus' own people were aghast with expectations of the coming of the Messiah of prophecy, who would, they believed, surpass all these conquerors by His triumphs over the world powers of their time, and would establish a dominion before which all the world would bow. And here, with the crisis of His mission just before Him, He brushed aside all those conceptions of world-domination as untrue to God and untrue to man, and described Himself as the Servant of servants and the self-given ransom for a lost world.

Look at Him as He sits there among the few who had stayed with Him when a multitude of admirers had forsaken Him because of His rejection of earthly Kingship. He is in possession of power such as no other human being had ever exercised. He knows that God, the living God sent Him on earth, to be the Fulfillment of all His promises to His people, and to establish His Kingdom among men. But He had also discovered that God is love, and in that love He lived and rejoiced moment by moment.

And with world-power and glory beyond the imagination of man His for the taking, He decided to use love, and love alone, as His means for winning mankind to God.

The Seed-Idea Quietly, always quietly, He sows the seed-idea from which the harvest of salvation will grow. The soil He cultivates is the souls of loyal men.

Those Caesars and Alexanders that the world adored, crushed men into submission; Jesus exalted men and won by their exaltation. It doesn't matter where you see Him, He is lifting someone to the status and stature of a son of God.

It may be a scholarly statesman like Nicodemus who prides himself on his knowledge of the wisdom of the past, but has no personal experience of the inspiration that produced that wisdom. It may be a woman despised on account of her sex, race, creed and moral condition by the religiously-minded of her time. It may be a couple of eager youths watching for signs of the coming of God's Kingdom and ready to invest their lives in it.

To each and all His attitude is the same. He shows them what they mean to God and what they may become in union with God. He breaks down the barriers that separate men from God.

Anyone, even Augustus on the Imperial throne, who would suppress or betray or destroy the least of these is in Jesus' mind God's enemy. He too is precious in the Father's eyes who will welcome him if he repents, but it will be as a returning prodigal that he will be received and not as a king.

A woman of wealth and position wanted to proclaim to the world her contempt for religion and especially for the doctrine of the resurrection. So in her will she provided for a tomb of stone and concrete on which was to be engraved a curse on any power that would disturb her dust.

In the course of time nature's processes opened a crack in the concrete into which fell a seed, and from the seed grew a tree, whose roots heaved apart the rocks that covered her grave.

Here Jesus quietly plants a seed in the minds of men whose growth will shatter worldly power and produce the fruits of love in all the world.
