Opposed to Reciprocity.

A large meeting of the representative business men of Gloucester, Mass., was held at the rooms of the Gloucester Mutual Fishing Insurance Company, on the 5th inst., to take into consideration the question of the proposed renewal of reciprocity between the United States and the Dominion of Canada, which shall include among its provisions the free admission of British-caught fish into our markets. The rooms were densely thronged, all leading fishing firms being represented, with a large attendance of master marines engaged in fisheries, and many others directly or indirectly interested in that industry. Geo. Steel, President of the Mutual Fishing Insurance Co., was chosen chairman, and A. Story, Secretary. Spirited addresses were made by the Chairman, Fitz J. Babson, Collector of Customs, William A. Pers, Jr., John J. Pers, Sylvester Cunningham, and Postmaster David W. Dow, pointing out the importance of immediate and united action to protect the interests of the operative fishermen against the dangerous competition which must result from keeping our markets free to the product of Canadian fisheries. A committee was chosen, with full powers to take such action as they deem proper, to invite co-operation of other New England fishing ports by delegates, to a general meeting or otherwise.

Cure for Diphtheria.

"One of the Ambulance" sends the following extract from a South African paper:—"We can vouch for the efficacy of the following remedy for diphtheria. A few years ago, when this dreadful disease was raging in England, a very simple and rapid remedy was discovered by the celebrated Dr. Field. He put a teaspoonful of flour of sulphur into a wineglass of water, and when well mixed gave it as a gargle. Brimstone destroys every species of fungus in man, beast and plant. Instead of spitting the gargle out, Dr. Field recommends the swallowing of it. In extreme cases to which he had been called just in the nick of time, when the fungus was too near closing to allow gargling, he blew the dry sulphur through a quill into the throat, and after the fungus had shrunk to allow of it, then ordering the gargling, and he never lost a patient from diphtheria.

A Good Story.

Mr. Edmund Yates tells a good anecdote of Carlyle. It was at dinner. A certain pompous gentleman who still lives to adjust literary reputations" disposed of some object, or as Dickinson said, "in his usual style took hold of it, made it into a small parcel, and laid it away on a shelf, not to be moved thence any more. "It seems that after the oracle had delivered himself there was a dead silence, in the midst of which Carlyle, who had been blankly gazing at the great personage opposite to him, said, in a truly absent manner, but perfectly audible, "Eb, but you're a pair creature a pair wretched, meesurable creatur," and then went on with his dinner.

Lorne and Louise.

Society journals in England are again troubling themselves about the relations between the Marquis of Lorne and the Princess Louise. It is said that there is anything but happiness in the family. Recently the Duke of Argyll was sent for by the Queen and, as a result of the confab, the Princess was ordered to re port herself at Windsor Castle without delay.

What Gordon Said.

Just before starting for the Sudan, standing on the platform of the station, General Gordon made use to a relative of Colonel Stewart, of one of those simple expressions which somehow great men alone use, and which live long in the public mind. "Besure," he said, "that he will not go into danger which I do not share, and I am sure that when I am in danger he will not be far behind."

Belt Stolen.

A belt, said to be the identical one for which Sayers and Heenan fought in 1860, was recently stolen in England by four men at Birmingham. The police say the belt was subsequently purchased for less than one-tenth of its value, and that it has since been melted down. The belt was of solid silver lined with velvet.
