The Fishery Correspondence.

(St. John Sun.)

The fishery correspondence brought down by Minister Foster contains replies to complaints of outrages alleged to have been inflicted on American fishermen, in which the character of the Gloucester innocents is pretty clearly shown up. The papers included a proposition made last November by Bayard on behalf of the United States for a settlement of the difficulty. He proposed the appointment of a commission to agree first upon and establish by a series of lines the limits of Canadian territory waters, said lines to be numbered and marked on charts, one condition being that exclusive rights be only allowed in bays less than ten miles in width. Second, to establish regulations which will permit fishermen to enter harbors for shelter, repairs, wood and water, and to establish such restrictions as shall prevent the abuse of these privileges. Third, to agree on penalties and methods of enforcement. The proposal further provides that pending definitive arrangement, there should be no more seizures except for fishing within the three mile limit, that commercial privileges as to bait and transshipments be allowed, that all seized vessels be released and fines remitted, and that damages by the seizure and detention be adjudged with a view to an award.

The Governor-General, on the 28th of December, points out to Earl Stanhope the impossible character of the proposals from a Canadian standpoint, but promises to submit the matter to the government, which he does later, a fuller report being sent February 1st, wherein the minister shows in detail that the acceptance of a convention is out of the question as being a complete surrender of the whole case. The ministry, however, express themselves willing for the appointment of a mixed commission to, first, establish and mark out on charts the fishery limits in conformity with the treaty of 1818; second, to agree on regulations and restrictions as proposed and to regulate penalties and proceedings.

ON MARCH 24TH,
Premier Salisbury, referring to Bayard's proposals before mentioned, states that the first clauses of the propositions of Bayard, "comprise elements of possible accord, and might be so modelled as to become acceptable basis of negotiations," but that the subsequent articles would appear to be based on the assumption that on an important point in the controversy the United States is right and Canada is wrong. The British and Canadian governments are willing to negotiate, but pending the result the treaty of 1818 and the Canadian regulations must be regarded. In this despatch Salisbury makes his proposition to revert for the present season, and if necessary for a further term to the conditions under the fishery treaty, without a suggestion of indemnity, this being a temporary proposition pending a permanent arrangement.

THE LAST ITEM

in the papers brought down is the special instructions issued by Minister Foster for the guidance of fishery officers during this year. The instructions refer to those of last year, which the minister says may be taken as a guide until further orders. He then adds:

"I desire, however, to impress upon you to be most careful not to strain the interpretation to the direction of interference with the privileges remaining to the United States fishermen. The largest liberty compatible with full protection is to be granted. Care should be taken that vessels do not engage in illegal practices, and all proper supervision necessary to this object is to be exercised, but it is not deemed necessary that an armed guard be placed on board, or that reasonable communications with the shore be prevented after a vessel has duly entered unless sufficient reasons appear for such precautions. In places where vessels are accustomed to come for shelter only, the captain of the cruiser stationed there is authorized to take entry and grant clearance without the necessity of the captain's going ashore. In cases of distress, disaster, need of provisions for the homeward voyage, sickness or death, needful facilities are to be granted for the relief and all officers are to courteously and freely assist. The above constructions are not to be construed as authorizing laxity. Fishing, preparing to fish, procuring bait, trading and transshipment, are violations of the treaty, and in respect to them the former orders are to be faithfully followed."

The Blood is the Life.

Thoroughly cleanse the blood, which is the fountain of health, by using Dr. Pierce's golden medical discovery, and good digestion, a fair skin, buoyant spirits, vital strength, and soundness of constitution will be established.

Golden medical discovery cures all humors, from the common pimple, blotch or eruption, to the worst scrofula, or blood poison. Especially has it proven its efficacy in curing salt-rheum or tetter, fever sores, hip-joint disease, scrofulous sores and swellings, enlarged glands and eating ulcers.

Golden medical discovery cures consumption (which is scrofula of the lungs) by its wonderful blood purifying, invigorating and nutritive properties. For weak lungs, spitting of blood, shortness of breath, bronchitis, severe coughs, asthma, and kindred affections, it is a sovereign remedy. It promptly cures the severest coughs.

For torpid fever, biliousness, or liver complaint, dyspepsia and indigestion, it is an unequalled remedy.

From Rev. E. S. Efford, Pastor Baptist Church, East Auburn, Me.: "Adamson's Botanic Balsam is truly a specific. My lungs and throat were in an inflamed and almost congested condition from which I have been cured by the use of Adamson's Botanic Balsam." Price 10 cents, 35 and 75 cents.

The following seasonable "gem" is on the rounds:
Summer is coming and winter is ended,
The time to have had happy carriage mended.

The "Thunderer"

HAULED OVER THE COALS IN THE BRITISH COMMONS.

A London despatch of the 3rd inst. says: Lewis, Conservative, in the House of Commons this afternoon called the House's attention to a breach of privilege committed by the London Times in an article charging Dillon with having told a falsehood when he denied that paper's allegations that he was an accomplice of Sheridan, the invincible. Lewis concluded as follows: "These wholesale charges of lying against Dillon constitute a distinct breach of privilege. I move the House take notice of them." Mr. Sturt, another Conservative, seconded the motion.

Sexton said the Irish party had been challenged much lately and taunted with not taking up the challenge. Now they took it up and insisted upon an inquiry by the House. (Cheers.) Sexton continuing said it was for this assembly of English gentlemen to say whether for the future honorable members should be exposed to the attack of every ruffian calling himself the editor of a newspaper. The House should let the assailed members have an inquiry by committee. "Then," said Sexton, "let the Times bring forward its battalions of forgers and liars." The Irish members will prove they have been subjected to a system of moral assassination. They will be able fully to justify themselves. (Cheers.)

Speaker Peel, answering Dillon, said if the house decided that the articles quoted by Lewis was a breach of privilege motion could be made calling the offenders to the bar of the house to answer for their conduct in committing the breach.

Right Hon. W. H. Smith, on behalf of the government, moved that the house adjourn in order that the question of fact might be argued.

Dillon said he desired to have the question brought to an issue right off. He declared the right of Lewis to take a course putting him on the defensive until his accuser was brought to the bar of the house. When the publisher of the Times stood at the bar he (Dillon) would prove him as base and cowardly a liar as ever existed. (Parcellite cheers.) Bradlaugh opposed Smith's motion and charged the government with conniving at the offering of Lewis' motion and that the debate was a concerted plan to place in the hands of the conservatives weapons to assist them in the passage of the odious Cerec on bill.

Sir William Vernon Harcourt said though ostensibly Lewis' motion was against the Times, it was in reality raised for the purpose of attacking Dillon, and was a covert method of accusation by one section of the members of the house against the other.

Holmes, attorney general for Ireland, denied that the motion was made with the connivance of the government and on behalf of the government. He disclaimed any intention of postponing the debate for party purposes.

Gladstone opposed the motion to adjourn. He said Dillon has been charged with stating a deliberate falsehood while addressing the house. If anything constituted a breach of privilege this was a breach. The parties accused demanded immediate trial; it was impossible the house could resist.

Division was taken on the motion to adjourn, resulting in a vote of 243 for and 174 against it.

Dillon demanded to know whether the editor of the Times would be brought to the bar of the house.

Smith could only say the usual course would be followed. It was then agreed to take the question up again next day.

Literary Notes.

The May Century opens with two profusely illustrated papers of Egyptology, the special subject being the mummy of Pharaoh the Oppressor (the Pharaoh of the Bible), otherwise Ramesses II., which (together with those of other Egyptian kings) was discovered in 1881 by Professor Maspero, but not identified until June, 1886. This number contains the first of several papers by Professor W. O. Atwater, of Wesleyan University, on the Chemistry of Foods and Nutrition, being specially devoted to the composition of our bodies and our food. Two articles of personal recollections are A Glimpse of Washington Irving at Home, by Clarence Cook, accompanied by a portrait of Irving from a daguerreotype, which serves as a frontispiece for the number; the second, Personal Recollections of Louis Blanc, by his friend, Karl Blind—also with a portrait.

The Lincoln History, by Messrs. Nicolay and Hay, advances to the consideration of the Border Conflict, treating events closely related to Lincoln's contemporary and future political action. The special topics are Kansas in the Civil War, Jefferson Davis on Rebellion, and the Presidential Convention of 1856.

The seventh installment of Mr. Stockton's novel, the Hunchback Man, is given in this number, which also contains a complete short Southern story, illustrated by Kemble, introducing a new character in fiction; namely, an enthusiast who attempts personally to regulate the morals of the community in which he lives.

The paper in the War Series is this month devoted to the battle of Chattanooga, which is described by Gen. J. S. Fullerton, together with a paper by Gen. Rosecrans on the Campaign for Chattanooga, descriptive of the movements of the army of the Cumberland from October 30, 1862, when he assumed command in Kentucky, until he was relieved at Chattanooga in the fall of the next year.

Mr. Frederick Schwatka contributes a paper on the Apache Indians, based upon his personal experience on the frontier, and very fully illustrated from photographs. The poetical contents of the number include serious contributions by John Hay, Frances Hodgson Burnett, Robert Burns Wilson, Sarah M. B. Platt, Anthony Morehead, Alice Williams Brotherton and Robert Underwood Johnson. Others in a lighter vein are by Anthony Morehead, Jennie E. T. Dowe, and Thomas Nelson Page.

Little Lord Fauntleroy, by Francis Hodgson Burnett, published in a popular and cheap series, is having a large sale.

JOSEPH WADE, of Granville, N. S., celebrated by 107th of Wesley on the 24th ult.
