Great Britain's Position.

The British Empire presents a singularly interesting field for students of political economy, and no part of it more so than the Mother country itself. The London Times has been collecting statistics of the material progress of the United Kingdom. It finds the public wealth has increased 50 per cent. in ten years, and in closing a very carefully prepared comparative statement says:

"Summing up the condition of the United Kingdom at present, as compared with ten years ago, we have every reason to be proud of the progress we have made. If we had only increased wealth, manufactures, commerce, and public instruction in the same ratio as the number of inhabitants—namely, 11 per cent.—we should present to the world a very favorable balance-sheet of our affairs in the past decade. But it is manifest that we have grown in prosperity much more than in population, and that every succeeding decade, in spite of an occasional crisis or reverse, sees Great Britain richer, wiser, and happier, thanks to the industrial and civic virtues of her people."

It will be born in mind that this great progress has been made in the face of an increased opposition. During the last ten years we have been told again and again that the commercial supremacy of England was departing from her, and great things have been foretold of her rivals. But now a careful retrospect shows an unprecedented advance on the part of the United Kingdom in all the elements of national prosperity. The reason of this is probably that that the markets of the world are every day widening, and there has been a great advance in the manner of living in all civilized countries. The luxuries of one decade are the necessities of the next, and as knowledge increases and becomes more and more wisely directed, the result will be the accumulation of wealth, or in other words, of the valuable products of labor. So far from having reached the acme of civilization; the human race has in all likelihood only as yet had glimpses of the great things it will achieve, and of the high stage of progress it will reach.

A Fact Worth Knowing.

Are you suffering with Consumption, Coughs, Severe Colds settled on the Breast, Pneumonia, or any disease of the Throat and Lungs? If so, go to your Druggist and get a bottle of Boschee's German Syrup. This medicine has lately been introduced from Germany, and is selling on its own merits. The people are going wild over its success, and Druggists all over our country are writing us of its wonderful cures among their customers. 2,400,000 samples have been given away free charge. If you wish to try its superior virtue get a Sample Bottle for 10 cents. Large size bottle 75 cents. Three doses will relieve any case. Try it.

A Good Account.

"To sum it up, six long years of bed-ridden sickness and suffering, costing $200 per year, total $1,200—all which was stopped by three bottles of Hop Bitters taken by my wife, who has done her own household work for a year since, without the loss of a day, and I want everybody to know it for their benefit."
