Ellen's Diary

giving but always bestowing heartily to inspire both the gift and the giver.
Her sisterhood—and the number is legion—we honor tomorrow as we make declaration in some way or other of the great debt we owe. Never can we repay it in its entirety nor can we measure or try to approximate "the height and depth and deathliness of perfect mother love."
We shall remember those Mothers whose affection and care remain only sacred memories enshrined in some heart. Death itself can not sever the tie of kinship. She too borne away from this place on a November day is still and will always be two little lads' Mother. And those we are privileged to have with us... to visit... and love, Bless them—every one!

OUR MOTHERS

"Her hands have much Of Christlike touch.
Her smile on one Is benison.
Her silvery hair, A halo rare.
Her step, a sound On holy ground.
Her dear face lined, But kind-kind.
Of women, best And loveliest."
Until Monday — Diary — Good night...

That Body Of Yours

Because we read about so many cases of heart disease we fail to realize that there are more individuals who consult their physician about heart disease who do not have heart disease than do have heart disease and is very difficult to treat.

The symptoms of functional heart disease are similar to those of organic heart disease and these symptoms may be engrafted on the symptoms of true heart disease. Shortness of breath, palpitation, pain under breast bone especially, are complaints common to both classes of disease.

Tachycardia (very rapid heart beat), disturbance in the rhythm, change in the blood pressure, cyano-sis (blue) of the skin, are all abnormal and make differentiation difficult.

Dr. Durbin points out that it is only natural that a patient with these symptoms so similar to the symptoms of organic heart disease should be just as worried about his symptoms as the patient with organic heart disease. This worry may help the doctor to make a diagnosis as the patient leaves out nothing in telling about his symptoms. On the other hand, too much of his story may confuse the doctor.

Functional heart disease occurs in the weak and the strong. The type of heart disease known as soldier's heart (neurocirculatory asthenia) (weak muscular heart) is very common.

What are the signs of functional heart disease that so frighten the patient?

X-rays show heart to be of normal size and shape and the electrocardiograph finds are usually normal, but the patient has developed extreme nervousness, a feeling of uncertainty, or insecurity, which leads to an anxiety that produces the symptoms.

The treatment of functional heart disease is a thorough physical examination by the physician, explaining how this anxiety affects the normal heart—rapidity, shortness of breath, interference with the rhythm, difficult breathing. He will also explain that it is safe for the patient to do a certain amount of physical work. The fact that he can do some work is in itself most reassuring.

KELLYS CROSS W. I.

The members of this Institute met at the home of Mrs. Stephen Smith on Monday evening, May 17. The president Mrs. Clarence Curley occupied the chair and conducted the meeting.

The roll call was answered by twelve members. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and adopted. The sick committee reported having treated the sick and the school committee purchased drinking cups for the school. Correspondence consisted of a letter of thanks from a sick member and one acknowledging a card of sympathy.
There were also letters read from O. H. Curtis, M.D. Chief Health Officer and Mrs. Michael Doye, Provincial president.
The June meeting will be held at the home of Miss Elaine McQuaid. The lunch committee are Mrs. Joseph Kelly and Mrs. Maurice McDonald.
A dainty lunch was served by the hostess assisted by the committee in charge. The meeting then adjourned.
