The Stoney Creek W.I. Is Honored By The Town

Amidst a fairyland setting of unfolding blossoms, historic Stoney Creek was the scene of the processing of the Federated Women's Institute of Canada First Day Covers of the AOWW Commemorative Stamp, issued by the Canadian Government in honour of rural women's organizations around the world. These had their beginning in Stoney Creek, in 1897, when Erland Lee invited Mrs. Adelaide Hoodless to speak to the women of this area concerning a Women's Institute.

The members of Stoney Creek Women's Institute, assisted by St. John's and Community Beach W.I.'s affixed 11,000 stamps on this day of first issue, May 12th, to these First Day Covers, which were destined to travel all over the world. This was the first time in Canada that a post-office opened at 12:01 a.m., with stamps going on sale to the interested public.

An official ceremony took place at 11:00 a.m., with Mayor Jack Watson wearing his official insignia, which recognizes the Stoney Creek Women's Institute. Officers taking part in the ceremony were Mr. Wm. Geer, acting postmaster. Mrs. Hugh Summers of Fonthill, vice-president of the Associated Country Women of the World, and Mrs. George Wilson, St. Mary's, public relations officer.

At noon, the town of Stoney Creek honoured the Stoney Creek Women's Institute and guests with a luncheon at "The Pines." Guests included Mrs. Summers; Mrs. Wilson; Mrs. McCandless of Dundas, public relations representative for Ontario; Mrs. C. G. Hopkins, secretary of Stoney Creek W. I.; and Mrs. Angus B. Jackson, President of Stoney Creek W. I., who very graciously presided over the luncheon program. Other honoured guests included three charter members of Stoney Creek W. I.; Mrs. H. P. van Wagner, Mrs. McK. Morden, Mrs. G. A. Glidden, and Miss Marjorie Lee, (daughter of Erland Lee) members of the Canadian Postal Department and the local Chamber of Commerce.

This was a highlight when the community of Stoney Creek added its homage to an organization which had brought world recognition and world visitors to the town. Mrs. Jackson said, "Today, two more firsts have been added to history of our Women's Institute." The Mother Institute still stands firm in the midst of a changing scene. This is due to the capable leaders, who have been willing to accept their responsibilities in the true tradition of the Women's Institute. By Ann Wilson.

MARY HAWORTH

Vulgar Couple's Visits Are Most Unwelcome

Dear Mary Haworth: Much has been said, written on choosing one's friends. I was taught, and believe very strongly, that one is known by the company he keeps. A couple who have known my husband since childhood call us occasionally and come to visit us whenever they wish. He indulges them because he has known them for so long; but agrees that they aren't the sort of people he greatly enjoys. (He says their visits are like rain when you want sunshine, and must be tolerated.)

They are unduly vulgar and drink quite a lot, which makes them jocular than if they didn't drink. (By "vulgar" I don't mean profanity, but simple vulgarity.) I am embarrassed to end when they are around, and it has become a trouble spot in our life. We try to avoid nice people when they are with us; and I've tried to hint that they aren't welcome; but they aren't the sort to take hints. They just "drop in" anyway.

FEELS MORE LENIENT
My husband hates to hurt their feelings, and wouldn't for the world say anything inoperative. If I felt we could be a good influence on them, it would be a goal to work towards; but after knowing them for several years, I feel there's not much hope of that—also, that they can do us great harm.

My husband has a very responsible position and we have high hopes that he will go far. We have a great many good some of whom know this couple and have indicated dislike of them.

If you can help me convince my husband that people of this calibre aren't to be considered friends, I would appreciate it. If I am wrong, please advise me how to be more tolerant. If you agree that we shouldn't include them in our circle of friends, please suggest how we might get the idea over to them. G.L.

GETTING BEARINGS
Dear G.L.: To make sense of our dealings with people, we have to live by principle—that is, by some governing law of conduct, or rule of action, that takes fair account of individual human rights.

In the field of friends there are two domains of attitude to be

Double Ring Ceremony Unites A Happy Couple

St. John's Presbyterian Church, Belfast, P.E.I. was the scene of a pretty wedding when Caryl Etta, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William MacRae, Point Prim, became the bride of John Ross, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence MacKenzie, Pinette. The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Donald Nicholson.

Mrs. Augustus Ross, aunt of the bride, played suitable wedding music previous to the ceremony and as guest soloist, Mr. John MacWilliams beautifully rendered "I'll Walk Beside Thee" during the signing of the register.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage. She chose for her wedding a gown of nylon net over satin with matching head-dress trimmed with sequins and shoulder-length veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of American Beauty roses with satin streamers.

Miss Donna MacRae, sister of the bride, as maid of honor, wore a ballerina-length gown of yellow nylon organza over taffeta with matching bolero, head-dress and mitts. She carried a nosegay of yellow and white poms.

Miss Jean Ross, cousin of the bride, and Miss Jean MacKenzie, sister of the groom, acted as bridesmaids. They wore identical ballerina-length gowns of silk chiffon over taffeta in coral and green and carried nosegays of pink and yellow poms.

Mr. Stewart MacRae was best man and the ushers were John MacLeod and John Pantion. The bride's mother wore a terylene blue printed dress and navy duster, with navy accessories. Her corsage was of white carnations. The groom's mother wore a rose beige dress with black accessories and wore a corsage of white carnations.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride for eighty guests. The toast to the bride was proposed by Rev. Donald Nicholson to which the groom fittingly responded.
