The Dominion Exhibition.

Most of our readers will not be surprised to learn that the Patriot's statement that Mr. F. Brecken, M. P., took little pains to distribute copies of the prize list of the Dominion Exhibition lacks "the essential element." We are informed that Mr. Brecken received but three copies of the prize list. These he immediately distributed and wrote for more.

But the Patriot's vagaries apart. We hope that as many residents of this Island as can afford the trip will attend the Dominion Exhibition at Ottawa, on the 22nd, 23rd, 24th, 25th, 26th and 27th of September, inst. The knowledge to be obtained is of great practical value to the farmers of this Province. Besides, those who attend cannot fail to have brought home to them the fact that they belong to a great country—a country to be proud of and to fight for if necessary; and these impressions carried to their neighbors and friends will do much to neutralize the unpatriotic teachings of the (mis-named) Patriot. The fares to and from Ottawa on the occasion will, without doubt, be greatly reduced.

Railway Pic-Nic.

The fourth annual railway employees' picnic came off at Birch Grove, Freetown, yesterday. Although somewhat showery in the morning the day turned out very pleasant. The widespread fame of Birch Grove gave additional interest to this popular picnic, and very many regretted that more tickets were not issued. However, a goodly number of the employees and their friends arrived on the grounds at an early hour by the different trains—the special from Charlottetown accompanied by St. Patrick's Brass Band, bringing the greatest number. The various games, &c., were immediately commenced and kept up all day with great interest. All present seemed to heartily enjoy the day's sports. Below we append a list of the successful competitors:—

- Foot race, 300 yards and return—1st prize $2, Fred Crabb; 2d do $1, Peter McQuaid.
- Best standing jump—1st prize $3, John Morgan; 2d do $2, Andrew McDonald.
- Throwing heavy hammer, and championship of P. E. I. Railway—1st prize $3, F. A. Doherty.
- Putting the stone—1st prize $3, F. A. Doherty.
- Wheelbarrow race—1st prize $2, Thomas Riggs.
- Mens' sack race—1st prize $3, Thomas Curran.
- Boys' sack race—1st prize $2, Nicoll McFarlane.
- Three-legged race—1st prize $3, Fred Crabbe and Peter McQuaid.
- Running high leap—1st prize $2, John Morgan.
- Potato race—1st prize $3—in dispute between Wm. Bagnall and John Morgan.
- Sword dance—1st prize $3, Michael Smith.
- Irish Jig—1st prize $3, Peter McQuaid.
- Scotch hornpipe—1st prize $3, Michael Smith.
- Highland pipe—1st prize $3, Peter Ferguson.
- Go as you please match, 30 minutes—1st prize $4—in dispute.
- Brace and bit game—1st prize 1 brace and 28 bits, Herbert Kelly.

"Out of Their Own Mouths."

The Montreal Herald contains an article, which the Globe endorses by copying, in which the following passage occurs:—"There is now no doubt that there is more activity in trade than has been noticeable for some time; and though the movement is not on a large scale, yet there is a turn for the better in many lines, both in the demand and in the prices obtainable, which causes the mercantile community to look forward with greater confidence to the future. Trade generally is on a healthier footing than it was during the period just prior to the setting in of the long-continued depression; and it now remains for both merchants and manufacturers to avoid the excesses of the past, and prevent a repetition of the disease which has so stubbornly resisted treatment, and whose cure has been a matter of time, and only brought about by natural causes." This is highly satisfactory, and we have no doubt our Reform contemporaries who anticipated general ruin under the new tariff are agreeably disappointed, and stand ready to confess that they were mistaken.—Mail.

A Paris dispatch announces that it has been finally decided that ex-Queen Isabella is to be present at the wedding of King Alfonso.

The Bishop of Rochester, England, is in Montreal.

The Value of Colonial Trade.

In 1877 the Australian Colonies, with two millions of inhabitants, purchased British exports to the value of £19,285,718; whilst the United States with about forty millions of inhabitants, purchased only to the value of £16,376,814. In the same year the Dominion of Canada, (with Newfoundland), containing four millions of inhabitants, took from Great Britain exports to the value of £7,613,547; whilst Russia with nearly eighty millions of people bought only to the extent of £4,178,641. In other words, every Australian is as large a customer to Great Britain as sixteen Americans, and every Canadian is better than thirty-five Russians. "Thus," says Mr. Eoroyd in one of his letters to the Bradford Observer, "should we succeed in settling only four or five millions more inhabitants in our Colonies, their custom would be as large as the whole of our present export trade to the United States and combined."

The Use of the Fist in Politics.

It is related of the venerable Hannibal Hamlin, a prominent United States politician, that when he wishes to be especially forcible in addressing his Maine disciples, he pounds the desk vigorously with his fist. Having occasion to visit Livermore during the canvass, a desk that was not only hard but full of splinters, being nothing more than rough pine boards, was placed before him. The venerable senator arose, and we leave a description of what then took place to the correspondent:—

"His large, dark eyes swept the audience; his expression was solemn. Raising his arm and pointing with his finger in the direction that the Androscoggin River flows, he said, 'There is a storm coming. I see the cloud.' Here the people looked up through the pine trees, taking the Senator's words in earnest. 'There is a storm coming from the South,' here his fist slowly clenched. I saw it once before. I saw it in 1859. I told you so then." In a thunder tone, "I told you so then," boom, a terrific crash on the pine board with his fist. "You did not believe," boom. "But I was right," boom. "The storm broke in 1860," boom. "It is coming in the same way, boom, 'and when it breaks it will,' boom, 'engulf,' boom, 'this country,' boom, 'in more direful,' boom, 'consequences,' boom, 'than it did then,' a terrific boom. To tell the truth, the pounding or the speech or both pleased the people. They cheered the venerable Senator, and he went on to the end with one fist behind his coat tails and the other vigorously pounding. On one occasion, when the Senator was speaking in a country school house, he requested that the kerosene lamps be removed from the desk. It was evident that he thought he might in a moment of excitement pound them upon the floor and interrupt the meeting."

Our Canadian politicians evidently have something yet to learn from those of the neighboring State of Maine.

Brutal Stabbing Affray.

A most brutal stabbing affray occurred at Weston, a village about eight miles west of Toronto, on the afternoon of the 9th inst. The circumstances are as follows:—About half-past four in the afternoon a stranger came into John Eagle's hotel and asked for a drink, and while drinking Peter Gaudbeau, employed in Smith and Wilby's paper mills, entered the hotel and began talking to the stranger. The conversation was finally directed towards the French Canadian population of Quebec, and a dispute arising, it came to blows. A man named Conron caught hold of Gaudbeau and threw him to the floor, when the stranger got on top of him. The antagonists were parted without delay, but not before Gaudbeau had been stabbed three times—once in the centre of the chest—in the left side, a portion of the left lung protruding through one of these gashes. The stranger at once took his departure, and the county constables are now in pursuit of him. Gaudbeau asserts that he was stabbed by both the stranger and Conron, but the spectators say the former only used a knife. The doctors who attended the injured man entertain small hopes of his recovery. He is 28 years of age, and married. He came to Weston about six weeks ago from Montreal.

A Halifax despatch says:—"The marriage of Charles Tupper, son of Sir Charles Tupper, to Janet, eldest daughter of Hon. James Macdonald, Minister of Justice, was celebrated in St. Mathew's Presbyterian Church this morning. The church was filled with the youth and beauty of the city, many of whom were waiting for hours before the doors were opened. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Robert Laing, M. A., Pastor, assisted by Very Rev. G. M. Grant, D. D., Principal of Queen's College, Kingston, Ont. The groom arrived at 11.35, accompanied by his groomsmen, Geo. M. Greer and Carter A. Hill. At 11.45 the bride arrived, and was led to the altar by her father. The bridesmaids were her sisters, Misses Katie and Newny Macdonald. The bride and bridesmaids were dressed in white silk, and carried bouquets of flowers. After the ceremony the bridal party and guests drove out to the residence of the bride's father, at the North West Arm, where breakfast had been spread. They left this evening by the Intercolonial in a special car for the United States."

A new code of international navigation rules, with the object of preventing collisions at sea, has just been officially published in England. These regulations apply to the navies and commercial fleets of all the maritime European powers and the United States and go into effect on September 1st, 1880. There is nothing revolutionary in the changes of the regulations, the most noticeable regulation being the new optional signalling for indicating the course of a vessel. Several other nations, including the South American governments, Turkey, and some others, have not yet given in their adherence to the new code.

Correspondence.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for the statements or opinions of our correspondents.

To the Editor of the Examiner.
St. James' Mansse,
Sept. 10th, 1879.

SIR,—Having received from the hands of the Lieut. Governor a portion of the amount ($500) so considerably given by His Excellency the Governor General and H. R. H. the Princess Louise, on the occasion of their recent visit to this Province, for the relief of the poor, it has occurred to me that a question might very properly be raised as to the disposition of the entire amount placed at our command by the distinguished donors, and an expression of public opinion invited on this subject.

The expenditure of the money in relieving the more pressing wants of the helpless and indigent poor, for a few months to come, or perhaps in the severer portion of the winter, would be easily effected. At first sight this might appear to be the most natural course to take. It does not follow that it would be the best. Perhaps thoughtful and benevolent persons will come forward and think out some plan whereby the money now in hand can be retained and treated as the nucleus for the establishment of some public charity, permanently helpful to the deserving poor, and at the same time serving as a pleasing memorial of the visit and liberality of our distinguished benefactors. The gift in question would thus awaken the benevolent sentiments of the citizens. Some common embodiment of our humane and charitable instincts would add an ornament to our city—at present, I venture to suggest, lacking in this regard. When men are sobered by pecuniary losses, it may be fitting to ask whether, in the day of prosperity, the men who had money sufficiently considered their duty to the poor. Their are various forms of benevolent effort, on behalf of the poor of City and Province, in which I could sympathize most cordially; but I refrain from suggestions in detail, as these might come more properly from others or in another way. My object just now is to raise the general question. Particulars can be dealt with afterwards, provided the proper persons were to take the matter up. The Mayor, or some of the other prominent citizens who have pleasing recollections of the Vice-Regal visit may be able to offer some valuable assistance.

If no general action can be secured, it will then remain for those to whose administration the Lieut. Governor has committed separate portions of the money to apply it according to their best judgment, even though the memory and benefit be transient. Absence from town prevented me from conferring with others on this subject at an earlier date. I refer to the matter through the columns of your paper as the speediest mode of reaching those interested in the social welfare of the community. Assuming that the steps already taken for the distribution of the amount through certain conventional representatives of our population will be accepted on all hands as appropriate, my remarks relate to the action on their part sustained by thoughtful public sentiment, which will confer the greatest amount of benefit on the poor through the means and perhaps the influence of the gift in question. I am, sir, yours truly,
K. MACLENNAN.
