HAVE A GUESS.

Oh, wheelmen, all take my advice,
And don't forget, be sure
To take a look at the famous "Bike"
In PROWSE'S well-known Store.

The handsome Brantford Bicycle
That in their window's shown
Is as good as any in Charlottetown,
And it may be your own.

A jar in which are cents galore
Is placed where all can see;
Guess how many cents the jar contains
And the "Bike" your own will be.

Be wise, make all your purchases
At PROWSE'S Clothing Store;
Each purchase, on that Bicycle,
Will give you one chance more.

Their Carpets, Hats and Furnishings,
And all, in fact, they keep,
Compared with others in the town
Are more than quite as cheap.

Cottolene

A SHORTENING.

Down the street through the busy way
A lady passed on marketing day.
Who, pausing at a grocery store,
Stepped quickly in at the open door.
With bated breath and anxious mien
She queried: "have you COTTOLENE?"

The grocer, leaving off his work,
Interrogated every clerk;
But none up to that time had seen
An article called "COTTOLENE."

"What is it?" said he to the dame,
"That answers to this curious name.
What is it made of? What's its use?
My ignorance you'll please excuse."

"You're not the merchant for my dimes,
I see you're quite behind the times.
For COTTOLENE, I'd have you know,
Is now the thing that's all the go,
An article of high regard;
A healthful substitute for lard.
Its composition pure and clean;
For cooking give me COTTOLENE."

As from his store the lady fled,
The grocer gently scratched his head—
On his next order, first was seen,
"One dozen cases COTTOLENE."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

ONE EQUITABLE BASIS.

The Proper Ground for Provincial Taxation.

SIR,—The wisdom of the Province in its legislative capacity has brought forth a taxation law. It is perhaps very difficult to promulgate any plan or system, but is open to the objections of some person. It is a very important subject for the taxpayer, and one which should be approached free from partizanship, bias or prejudices. It also should be discussed without pandering to the prejudices of any person or class. In all ages and in all countries it has been found almost impossible to reach intangible personality, and the inadequacy and practical failure of the general property tax is manifest. This question is not one between the rich and poor—those who have and those who have not. One of the first principles to recognize from the people is that it is the bounden duty of every person to contribute something to the support of the government of the country. The fatal fault in a property tax is that it is a penalty upon saving, which condemns it both ethically and economically. If a man's money or income belongs to him to spend, it belongs to him to save it, and in equity the State cannot lay its hands upon that which represents the double virtue of industry and frugality while sparing that which represents the single virtue of industry. There is not a moment's question that it is a thoroughly vicious policy on the part of the Government to lay the burdens of the state on that portion of the product of industry which has escaped the maw of appetite and which is which is presumably reserved for useful employment, support in old age, infirmity and sickness. An old writer on economies has, a few centuries back, declared "That a man was actually and truly rich according to what he eateth, drinketh, weareth, or in any other way actually enjoyeth," etc. Arthur Young wrote of Holland and Zealand, "Nor do they tax according to what men gain, but always according to what they spend." Mr. Minot, of Boston, says: "Every man ought to be taxed on all that property which he consumes or appropriates to his exclusive use." It is very plain that our Assemblymen were groping in the dark and found it difficult to devise a plan that could be equitable upon all, and a complicated problem confronted them.

It now confronts the people, and it is their duty to lay down a basis of taxation and have inaugurated in this Province a law upon one basis alone. What shall that basis be? To my mind, equity and justice require that an estimation of the living expenditure of this Province be made, and a fairly accurate estimation can be made for all parties. For instance, on the basis of our population, if it requires ten millions to support this country, or in other words if the inhabitants of this Province consume annually for personal support and comfort ten million dollars, then a percentage ought to give us the required amount or a sufficiency (when extravagance and boodling is done away with) to meet the required wants of the Province. It will be as easy to ascertain the cost of living in this Province as the incomes that are derived from business and professional men. Double taxation and quadruple taxation of business that will eventually place the burdem on the wrong shoulders is a principal so flagrantly vicious and iniquitous that it is subject to the gravest impeachment. Away with your unearned increment and communistic principles, and give us one solid sound basis for taxation that shall be equitable and just for all.

Wherever the principle of property tax prevails persons will be found in great numbers paying taxes greater, several times greater, than others whose ability to contribute to the public support is superior to their own; and, therefore, it is not on issue between the rich and poor.

Mr. Editor, I hope you will approach this subject with prudence and calmness, as it is one of grave importance to the farmers and property owners in this Province, and see if Prince Edward Island can devise a plan more equitable than following in the footsteps of the other Provinces.

R. MACNEILL.

Stanley Bridge, May 7th, 1894.

—The late Sir Andrew Clark, the famous physician, believes heartily in fresh air, simple diet and a cheerful mind as remedial agents. He once visited a patient whose bedroom wall was covered with a paper of most depressing color and pattern. "That paper," said Sir Andrew, decisively, "is quite enough to send a healthy man melancholy mad; its effect upon an invalid, who is compelled to lie still and gaze upon it all day, must be awful. You'll have to move the patient into a more cheerfully papered room." "But Sir Andrew, this is the best of them all," was the remonstrance. "Then," said the great doctor, "You must buy a bright cretonne or something and hide these dreadful walls." And cretonne was purchased accordingly.

—The first data on conjugal life in the United States ever gathered by the government is given in a census bulletin issued last Saturday. It shows that of a total population of 62,662,250 in 1890 almost three-fifths were single, a little more than one-third married, and not quite one-twentieth were widowed. The divorces constituted a small fraction of one per cent. The actual number of the classes are as follows: Single, 37,129,564; married, 22,331,424; widowed, 2,970,052; divorced, 120,996; and unknown, 70,214. The males constitute over 51 per cent. Of the total population of 32,067,880 males in the country, 19,945,576 were single, 11,205,228 married, 815,437 widowered, and 49,101 divorced. Of the females, 17,083,988 were single, 11,126,196 married, 3,154,615 widowed, and 71,895 divorced. The proportion of widows, says the report, was nearly three times as great as of widowers, indicating that a greater proportion of widowers remarried than widows, while figures show that divorced men have remarried to a greater extent than divorced women.

The United States asked for $9,000,000 as damages from Chili in connection with the late unpleasantness in which President Harrison and Mr. Blaine distinguished themselves by their jingoistic attitudinising. Switzerland, which was chosen as arbitrator, has awarded the sum of $240,564, or barely 3 per cent., of the amount of the claim. The United States diplomats who prepared and presented the case of their countrymen must feel either very sick or very much ashamed of themselves.

PECULIAR in combination, proportion and preparation of ingredients, Hood's Sarsaparilla possesses great curative value. You should TRY IT.

The April statement of the United States Treasury shows an increase of $10,011,120 in the public debt during the month.

QUEER FACTS ABOUT A WATCH.

Screws So Minute as to Be Indistinguishable From a Speck of Dust.

The watch carried by the average man is composed of ninety eight pieces, and its manufacture embraces more than 2,000 distinct and separate operations.

Some of the smaller screws are so minute that the unaided eye cannot distinguish them from steel filings or specks of dirt.

Under a powerful magnifying glass a perfect screw is revealed. The slit in the head is 2-1,000ths of an inch wide. It takes 308,000 of these screws to weigh a pound, and a pound is worth $1,585.

The hair-spring is a strip of the finest steel, about 9½ inches long, 1-100th inch wide and 27-10,000ths inch thick. It is coiled up in spiral form and finely tempered.

The process of tempering these springs was long held as a secret by the few fortunate ones possessing it, and even now is not generally known.

Their manufacture requires great skill and care. The strip is gauged to 20-1,000ths of an inch, but no measuring instrument has as yet been devised capable of fine enough gauging to determine beforehand by the size of the strip what the strength of the finished spring will be. A 20-1,000th part of an inch difference in the thickness of the stop makes a difference in the running of a watch of about six minutes an hour.

The value of these springs, when finished and placed in watches, is enormous in proportion to the material from which they are made. A comparison will give a good idea.

A ton of steel made up into hairsprings when in watches is worth more than 12½ times the value of the same weight in pure gold.

Hairspring wire weighs one twentieth of a grain to an inch. One mile of wire weighs less than half a pound.

The balance gives five vibrations every second. 300 every minute, 18,000 every hour, 432,000 every day and 157,680,000 every year.

At each vibration it rotates about one and one-fourth times, which makes 197,100,000 revolutions every year.

In order that we may better understand the stupendous amount of labor performed by these tiny works, let us make a pertinent comparison.

Take, for illustration, a locomotive with 6 foot driving wheels. Let its wheels be run until they have given the same number of revolutions that a watch does in one year and they will have covered a distance equal to 28 complete circuits of the earth.

All this a watch does without other attention than winding once every 24 hours. —New Moon.

John Tyndall's Generosity.

The ordinary tests of generosity are very defective. As rightly measured, generosity is great in proportion to the amount of self-denial entailed; and where ample means are possessed large gifts often entail no self-denial. Far more self-denial may be involved in the performance, on another's behalf, of some act which requires time and labor. In addition to generosity under its ordinary form, which Prof. Tyndall displayed in unusual degree, he displayed it under a less common form. He was ready to take such trouble to help friends. I have had personal experience of this. Though he had always in hand some investigation of great interest to him, and though, as I have heard him say, when he had bent his mind to a subject he could not with any facility break off and resume it again, yet, when I have sought his scientific aid, information or critical opinion I never found the slightest reluctance to give me his individual attention. Much more markedly, however, was this kind of generosity shown in another direction. Many men, while they are eager for appreciation, manifest little or no appreciation of others, and still less go out of their way to express it. With Tyndall it was not thus; he was eager to recognize achievement. Notably in the case of Faraday, and less notably, though still conspicuously, in many cases, he has bestowed much labor and sacrificed many weeks in setting forth others' merits. It was evidently a pleasure to him to dilate on the claims of fellow-workers.—From Herbert Spencer's Tribute to the Memory of John Tyndall.

Rare Presence of Mind.

"I knew a sea captain, who died some years ago, who displayed great presence of mind at a most critical time," said Henry S. Roberts, of Boston. "His ship had caught fire and the passengers and crew were compelled to take to the boats in a hurry. The captain remained perfectly cool throughout all the confusion and fright of the embarkation, and at last every one but himself was got safely into the boats. By the time he was ready to follow the passengers were wild with fear and excitement. Instead of hurrying down the ladder, the captain called out to the sailors to hold on a minute, and taking a cigar from his pocket, coolly bit the end off and lighted it with a piece of the burning rigging. Then he descended with great deliberation and gave the order to shove off. 'How could you stop to light a cigar at such a moment?' he was afterwards asked by one of the passengers. 'Because,' he answered, 'I saw that if I did not do something to divert your minds there would likely be a panic and upset the boats. The lighting of a cigar took but a moment and attracted the attention of everybody; you all forgot yourselves in thinking about my curious behavior and we got safely away.'"
—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

He Was Dubbed a Knight.

A curious ceremonial has just taken place at the palace of the Prince of Piess. A chapter of the Hunting Order of St. Hubert of the White Stag has been held in the presence of the German Emperor, who appeared in a hunting uniform decorated with the special insignia and orders. Duke John Albert of Macklenburge-Schwerin was made a Knight of the Order with the following curious ceremony: He was asked by the Chancellor of the order whether he would swear to behave as a good hunter according to the rules of the order. After the answer "I swear" he was dubbed a knight amid cries of "Joh! so! hon! do! hoh! do!" After the first stroke of the sword the Grand Master said: "This is for his Majesty the King," after the second, "This is for the knights, cavaliers, and esquires," and after the third, "Look, this is the noble law of hunting." Finally, all repeated the above somewhat inarticulate hunting cry.—Paris Herald.

A Bishop's Idea of a Wife.

At the New York conference of the Methodist Episcopal church the other day, Bishop Vincent touched on woman's domestic rights and a minister's choice of a wife. He said: When a woman governs her household and her husband she is doing a good work. Many a minister is very fortunate in his choice of a helpmeet, but I cannot but believe that the play of passion in the selecting of a companion for life is a dangerous [illegible].

R. Bryce-Gemmel, M. D., F. C. S., Consulting and Analyticul Chemist, 288 Boylston St., Boston, Mass.,

J. F. Raymore, 17 Hudson St., Roxbury Mass. says:

After a careful examination of

Skoda's German Soap,

I find it composed of ingredients of a chemically pure and healing nature. It cannot be too highly recommended, both for medicinal and toilet use. I also find perfectly pure and possessing high medicinal qualities. It can be used with perfect safety on the most delicate skin, and is an excellent ointment for general every-day use.

Mr. Raymore, whose picture appears above, and who for many years, was engaged in the manufacture of toilet soap, writes, under date of Feb. 4, 93: "I am surprised at its soft and purifying qualities. It is pure, unadulterated, and free from alkali, which most soaps contain."

Miss Alice L. Welton, a graduate of the Victoria General Hospital Training School for Nurses, Halifax, N. S., says: "Truly Skoda's Soap is soft as velvet and pure as gold. It makes the skin soft, white and beautiful."
