Nine tenths of the nervous headaches are situated on the brow, and they are accompanied by languor and chilliness. If the headache continues dull and heavy for any length of time, the patient has a distaste for food, becomes nauseous and has a general feeling of uncomforableness. To cure such a headache rapidly and quietly, two grains of p tassic salt should be dissolved in a wineglass of water. When it is dissolved, sip the mixture slowly, taking the whole dose in about ten minutes. The tussic acts immediately, and in half an hour after the medicine has been taken the unpleasant symptoms will have disappeared. The dose can be repeated in small quantities later if the headache is not relieved. These small doses appear to be more effective than larger ones, and one should not use faith in them on account of the smallness of the dose until they have been fairly tested. sep27 3i

NO MAN ever smoked "Myrtle Navy" tobacco for a fortnight and then took to any brand in preference to it. It bears its own testimony of its quality, and it is testimony which is always convincing. The arrangements of the manufacturers for keeping its quality equal are very elaborate and complete, and are the results of many years of experience and close observation. sep27 3i
