

IT'S A SLEEPER-EATER

If you like to eat in bed, a firm in London, England, has manufactured a device which can serve as both bed and table. In 15 seconds this piece of furniture can be converted from a table to a full-length bed, according to the manufacturer. During the day mattress, sheets, blankets and pillow are folded into the bottom part of the table. Named the "Doo-Stay", it comes in two sizes, a six-seater which makes a single bed, and an eight-seater which makes a double bed. It will soon be on display in Washington, D.C.

Designed for the small apartment dweller, the "Doo-Stay" can be used as a table during the day.

Completely unfolded, it becomes a full-length bed, occupying little more space than when used as a table.

With the table top folded against the wall, it allows comfortable eating in bed in this partially unfolded position.

Strange But True

By F. H. MacArthur

The little glowworm can switch on her battery in the dark with as much ease as people can switch on their electric lights. The story behind the glow worms' light is not without interest. It is the female whose lamp we see in the grass or flashing through space. The male seeks a female ray and often gets around without any light.

Much of the trouble in the world is produced by those who fail to produce anything else.

The press story of a woman who had a man arrested for "kissing and running" didn't make it clear whether she took action because he kissed her or because he ran.

When an auto ran over and killed his pet cat John Dillon, 5, of Amarillo, Texas, was grief-stricken. He said to his Mom: "I want to go just like my kitten did. His wish was to run."

Workmen found wealth in an old Cornwall home, but the bills were Confederate. While repairing the old Pething home at Cornwall, workmen came up with an old book containing several thousands of dollars in confederate money. The bills ranged from $2 to 500 and were dated from 1861 to 1864, and had a collectors value of $4.20.

While fighting a forest fire last year, a Hopi Indian put on a rain dance. Two hours later a cloudburst put out the fire, says the National Geographic Society.

Laplanners milk reindeer and preserve the milk in frozen chunks — it's always perfectly fresh.

Believe it or not, but black window spiders are tickled to death at the general army depot in Columbus, Ohio. The insects spin webs for use as cross-hairs in levels, telescopic sights and other delicate sighting instruments.

To get the most webbing in the shortest time, army specialists use a process known as "spider silking." In other words, they tickle the spiders' spinnerets to make them spin more v. b.

This tickling spiders' spinnerets cuts down the life span of the insect by at least 2-3 but in their short life of four months these wonderful creatures spin about 1-000 feet of web.

Most lizards can shed their tails to offset a pursuing enemy.

The bobbed tailed lizard of California frequently uses its tongue as a walking stick when it goes for a stroll. And the alligator lizard uses its thick tongue as a napkin to wipe its lips after a meal.

Krakatoa, the island near Java blew its top in August, 1883, and the tidal wave which followed killed 36,000 people. The volcanic explosions were heard 3,000 miles away.

Unless porkers can wallow in cool, moist mud they can't get the necessary body heat and lose die of heat stroke in very warm countries. Human beings react in much the same way. To overcome this loss of life central cooling is adopted in factories where the temperature rises to 80 deg. F. or higher.

There's a cemetery in New Zealand where the graves are not regularly disposed with regard to east and west. Each grave is marked out by four poles laid on the ground. Every grave is ornamented by brightly-tinted crockery and glassware. Broken bottles form the margins, while all the intervening space is filled with odds and ends of broken china.

On several graves may be seen small frames of like wire-frames. These are ornamented with beads. By now you have no doubt guessed that this unique cemetery is the resting place of natives. The cemetery is kept in order by a group of old aboriginal women whose duty it is to remove all the crockery and china and glass and wash it and replace it on the graves from time to time.

We North Americans are familiar with the term "yellow peril," with its connotations that the white races' menace of the vast hordes of slant-eyed people from the east of Asia. But we must remember that the people of the Orient have little admiration for us or for our way of life. They look upon us as bleached out hatchet-faces. But the fact remains that the people of Eastern Asia are like us in many of the same stock as the people of the New World — that is, the people of European descent. Again, if all the peoples of the world are descendants of Adam and Eve then indeed we must be of one race.

Charging cruelty, Mrs. Marion Maries of England, was granted a divorce when she told the judge her husband slapped her face for squeezing toothpaste tubes in the morning.

Flower picking earned Dick Bogo of Oakland, California, a sentence of from one to ten years in prison. Sounds like a silly decision on the part of the judge until we learn that Bogo picked his flowers ($2,400 worth of them) from a private nursery.

Always remember that a horse and a man do their best work in a harness that fits them.

Mother nature makes few mistakes, but she did make a strange one in France back in 1793 when the famous Clemon baby girl came into the world with but one eye and, strange but true, the single eye was right in the center of the baby's head. Normal in every other way, she did not live to the age of fifteen — Bufon in his Natural History tells about this freak of nature.

The queen bee is surrounded with as much royalty as our own Queen Elizabeth. To begin with, the egg is laid in a special queen cell. The larva receives a special food known as "royal jelly."

When the queen emerges from her larva chamber she is a most beautiful creature to behold. She is waited on hand and foot by other members of the hive. They carry her food, shake and brush her, and give her every attention. Think of it!

One of the Maritimes oldest places of worship has no steeple. It is St. John's Church, Barrington, N. S., and was built by congregationalists and quakers in 1763.

In 1781 the legislators of this Province passed an Act "that baptism of slaves does not release them from bondage."

Magic sea fire described by the ancient Greeks and Romans was the oil burning on the bosom of the sea.

Most of the tumbler seeds remain on the parent stem. The entire plant tumbles along in the wind. When it dies, hence the name. In this manner the seeds are shaken off and distributed over wide areas.

If a human baby grew as fast as a bird does, it would weigh over 100 pounds by the time it was 10 days old.
