OUR MAIL SERVICE.

CAPE TORMENTINE,
(On train) March 8, '99.

DEAR SIR,—I trust you, as well as the readers of THE EXAMINER, will or would like some facts as to the movements of the mails over on this side between Cape Tormentine and Aulac. On Sunday last I drove from Amherst to Cape Tormentine, and the party who drove me from Port Elgin to the Cape (who by the way is a strong Grit, but a reliable man) informs me as well as scores of others, that the mails have only about six times this winter made the connection from Cape Tormentine to Aulac, thereby holding all Island mails on the road, and at Aulac 24 hours more than necessary.

Again, the contract is let to parties who have teams that are not capable of doing the work, in any way, on time. They frequently, both ways, leave part of the mails around barns, waiting another trip.

Yesterday all the Island mails did not arrive in time. Consequently that mail is 24 hours in Cape Tormentine. To-day all the mails are in the same condition, remaining at the boat-house—came in too late for the boats. If our association for prevention of cruelty to animals were here to see the old scrubs of horses with sores wherever the harness touches them, I think that our Grit partisans would hide their faces in shame.

Not only are the mails delayed, but the passengers are held until the trains move. For instance, boats arrive from 10 o'clock, a. m., to 12, and the train does not go out until 4 o'clock, p. m. Whereas, if a train service for mails was on the Island side, we would go right along without stopping. I could go on and relate instances similar to these I have related, of which all the residents on this side are familiar, that I think should induce the government organs on the Island, or once, to come out and ask for at least a mail service without the stretch of dirty patronage.

I may add that if you ask any one in connection with the service about mails, they are as dumb as an oyster. Everyone seems to have a gag on him.

Yours,
W. D. McKee.

WANT FREE MEETINGS.

SIR,—At one of the agricultural meetings, at least, a gentleman none too well qualified for the position assumed the chair without popular acclamation stating that he was requested by the Premier to preside. Now what right had the Premier to make such a request, and what right had any man to assume the chair at such a request? The very basis of free discussion and the people's sovereignty in public meetings is threatened by such a piece of arrogant assumption of power. The Government may pay for hall rent; but who pays the bill ultimately. The people, to be sure! The people, then, should see to it that such conduct be promptly reprobated hereafter. But this was not the only evidence of ignorance, or worse, that was manifested by the Premier and his followers.

WARMER.
