MISTRESS STRONGATHAN'S CHURN.
Speaking of churns, we have never seen any other labor-saving contrivance in that department, but for practical convenience and utility none compare with that of Mistress Strongathan, a notable English house-wife, whose acquaintance we had the pleasure of making in one of the rural districts of New York some years since. Having occasion to call upon her one summer morning, we found her occupying her large chintz-covered rocking chair, rocking and knitting as though the salvation of the family depended upon the assiduity with which she applied herself to these occupations. Not that she was uncivil or unseizable by any means, for the moment we had taken the proffered chair she set in with a steady stream of talk that was as instructive as it was entertaining, for by sides her admirable qualities as a housewife, the lady possessed rare conversational powers.

During our call, she directed one of her daughters to some duty at a distant part of the house adding, 'I would attend to myself, but I must fetch this butter. Now, we had known something of the process of 'fetching butter' in our early days, and the idea of a snow-white churn and an irksome expenditure of elbow grease was as naturally associated with it in our mind, as was the compensatory issue of new bread and butter after the achievement of the victory. We therefore cast our eyes about us involuntarily for these indications, but we looked in vain. Of either churn or churning there was no more appearance than might have been seen in Queen Victoria's drawing-room any day in the week. Our curiosity was excited, and we resolved to keep our eyes open, satisfied that if we did, 'I would see what we should see.' And we did. During a momentary pause in the conversation, the lady rose from her chair, removed the cushion, raised a sort of trap-door underneath, and looked into the apparent vacuum with an earnestly inquiring eye. The secret was out. Under the seat in her rocking-chair was a box in which she deposited the jar of cream, and the agitation produced by the vibratory motion of the chair, converted the liquid into butter.

By this arrangement the lady was enabled to kill, not only two, but four birds with the same stone. She could churn, knit, take her ease in her rocking-chair, and entertain her morning guests at the same time. And such butter as she made! Yellow as gold, sweet as the meat of the coconut, and as hard, too; it always brought the highest price in the 'rural' market. You may brag of your patent churns if you will, but for novelty, economy, convenience, and immaculate butter we defy them, one and all when brought into competition with Mistress Strongathan's incomparable contrivance. Of her virtue, we shall retain a lively and correct remembrance to our dying day; but churn we shall never forget either.—Springfield Republican.

IMPORTANT DISCOVERY.—JOHN BLANC, of New Orleans, represented to be an agriculturist of considerable scientific attainments, has secured letters patent from the United States, for the discovery of a process of converting thirty different varieties of plants, which grow wild in enormous quantities in various sections of the Union, into flax of great strength and beautiful texture. Specimens of the flax and of the plants from which it is made are on exhibition at the office of Walter E. Harding, No. 1, Hanover square, where they may be examined by all interested. Mr. Blanc will be present during business hours to explain the points of the invention.

Among the most interesting of the specimens are the flax made from the stalks of cotton plants, large quantities which are burned on the Southern plantations, to get them out of the way; the century tree or wild Manilla, which grows in abundance in Florida; the wild hollyhock, with a fibre ten to fifteen feet long the gold nankeen, of a natural nankeen color; and the vegetable wool. The process of preparation, we understand, is simple and effectual, preserving the strength of the staple; and so economical that the flax can be sold at prices far below those at which the article is now sold.—Commercial Advertiser.

"ILLUSTRATED with cuts," said a youngurch, as he drew his jack-knife across the leaves of his grammar.

The Great American Hair Tonic.
Bogle's celebrated Hyperton Fluid, for the growth and preservation of the Hair is well known to be without a rival on this continent. Hundreds of imitations have started into an ephemeral existence, since the introduction of this unrivalled Hair restorative, and their door have sealed, while Bogle's Hyperton Hair Fluid, with a popularity never attained by any other article, goes on "conquering and to conquer." There is no salady, which can affect the Hair, but can be strictly and inconspicuously applied. To ladies it is invaluable; and on children's heads it lays the foundation of a good head of Hair. It is now patronized by Her Majesty the Queen of Great Britain, and commands an extensive sale throughout Europe. Bogle's Electric Hair Dye converts red or gray hair into a beautiful black or brown, the moment it is applied. Highly drying the hair without staining the skin and leaving the Hair soft and glossy without injuring its texture in the least; a decided superiority over all other Hair dyes.

Bogle's Analo Shaving compound renders that usually unpleasant operation (shaving) a decided luxury.
Bogle's Hebeation removes Freckles and tan from the face in the shortest possible time, and is acknowledged to be the very best article for beautifying the complexion.
To be had, wholesale or retail, of W. Bogle, 227, Washington Street, N. Y.
And by all Druggists and perfumers throughout the Canada, United States and Great Britain. W. R. WELSH, Agent for P. E. I.

GILMAN'S HAIR DYE.
The best article ever used, as hundreds can testify in this city and surrounding country. Read, GILMAN'S LIQUID HAIR DYE indisputably changes the hair to a brilliant jet Black or Grey Brown, which is permanent—does not stain or irritate the scalp. No injurious effects. No itching, which will compare with it. We would advise all who have grey hairs to buy it, for it never fails.
