SPECIAL DESPATCHES TO THE EXAMINER.

MR. CHAMBERLAIN'S ADDRESS.

England's Threefold Duty.

Claims of the West Indies.

LIVERPOOL, Jan. 19.—In the course of a speech delivered here last night, Mr. Chamberlain said that England's threefold duty is to keep what rightly belonge to us; to buy our claims for posterity, and if any one tries to crush these claims gently prevent them. Mr Chambarlain reviewed the West Indian question, emphasizing the great injury of the county systen, which, while ruining the West Indies, brings gains of millions yearly to Great Britain. A very large grant in aid of the West Indies, he said, would be proposed to parliament.

INDIGNATION IN HALIFAX.

The Port Discriminated Against.

Blairs Breach of Faith.

HALIFAX, Jan. 19.—The new I. C. R. tariff, received here yesterday, has caused surprise and indignation. It discriminates against this port in favor of St John. The change has been made in the face of the Hon. Mr. Blair's distinct promise that nothing would be done until after manager Harris had had a conference with the Halifax business men.

LATEST NEWS BY WIRE AND MAIL.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 16.—The launching of the Japanese warship Kasagai, which is being built at Cramp's shipyard, will take place Thursday at noon. The Kasagai is the most important ship ever built in the United States for foreign account, and is the first foreign warship launched in this country since the Zobiaca in 1878.

LONDON, Jan. 16.—The mildness of the weather (roses are blooming and hundreds of butterflies have been seen) is increasing the spread of influenza to a point unknown in London since 1865, with more than the usual number of deaths, especially among the elderly people. There were several days of the blackest fog during the past week.

NEWS NOTES.

The commissioners of the Queen Victoria Niagara Falls Park have recommended a survey by competent engineers of the two rapids below the suspension bridge. They believe both can be utilized to supply power, from which revenue may be obtained from corporations seeking to generate electricity for industrial purposes.

Abyssinia is likely to be conquered peacefully by Italy, as over 4,000 soldiers, taken prisoners by Menelek, are said to have settled in the country, refusing to go home. Meanwhile their families are petitioning the Government either to get back the men who disappeared after Adana, or to declare them dead officially, so that their affairs in Italy may be settled.

A retiring president of the Winnipeg grain exchange, in reviewing the past season's trade, said at the annual meeting last week that the Manitoba farmers had an average quantity of wheat for which they received nearly double the current price for the preceding three years. He felt, he said, he could truthfully declare "that there is no place in America where the farmer has prospered in the same extent as he has done in the province of Manitoba and the adjoining territories."

THE FRENCH A CURIOUS PEOPLE

They Have Vanity, but not Pride, Religion, dut not Morality.

"The French must be the most curious people on earth," writes Lilian Bell in a letter from Paris to the January Ladies' Home Journal. "How could even Heavenly ingenity create a more uncommon or bewildering contradiction and combination? Make up your mind that they are as simple as children when you see their innocent pic-nicking along the boulevarns and in the parks with their whole families, yet you dare not trust yourself to hear what they are saying. Believe that they are cynical, and fin de siecle, and skeptical of all women when you hear two men talk, and the next day you hear that one of them has shot himself on the grave of his sweetheart. Believe that politeness is the ruling characteristic of the country because a man kisses your hand when he takes leave of you. But marry ... and no insult is too low for him to ... you. Believe that the French ... heap upon ... pathetic because they la... men are sympathetic ... the theatre. But a... and cry openly at ... they will rescue ... appeal to their chivalry, and to offer ... you from one dicomfort only senti... you a worse. The French have sentimentality, but not sentiment. They have gallantry, but not chivalry. They have vanity but not pride. They have religion, but not morality. They are a combination of the wildest extravagance and the strictest parsimony. They cultivate the ground so close to the railroad tracks that that the trains almost run over their roses, and yet they leave a Place de la Concorde in the heart of the city."

WAGE EARNING WOMEN.

Home-keeping women, mothers and sisters, of the breadwinner of your house be daughter or sister, be tender of her, for she is filling a man's place, with less than a man's strength, and heart for it. Exact no more of her in the house than you would in like case of your husband or brother.

Let her have something pleasant to come home to; a well-cooked meal, cheerful conversation, the presence of a friend or two. Look after her mending. Don't expect her to shop or market "because she's down town anyhow, and she may as well save me the trouble"—and then complain if the results are not all that could be desired. Don't feel aggrieved if she doesn't always bring home some interesting news; if she feels obliged to sit alone and let the overstrained nerves subside. A man in like case might be tempted to settle his nerves in a manner not ultimately to the family's advantage.

Give her a chance to rest, to read to think, to freshen her mind as she sees fit, for her ever-recurrent duties. Don't be jealous of her pre-occupations, nor curious about those business cares which she keeps to herself for your happiness.

In short remember that she can be and do only, only one thing well—and dont demand of her to be housekeeper and breadwinner at one and the same time.

We do not say that the woman devoted whether by manifest calling or stern necessity to intellectual pursuits or business cares, should hold herself aloof from all domestic interests, as if these were beneath her dignity.

Our teacher will be none the worse if she learns something about house-keeping during her long vacation. We know at least, one business woman who has found a cooking-class a pleasant and profitable recreation; and a woman of letters, who delights now and then to get a day when she can go into the kitchen in her gingham wrapper, and help with the pickling and preserving, the the Thanksgiving pies, and the Christmas cakes. And indeed, despite the contrary impressions prevailing, she is as expert an aid as if she had never achieved a sonnet or a story.

All this, however, is very different from expecting such women to attend to household duties simultaneously with their teaching or book-keeping, their literary work or their music.

Start the New Year right all round. Buy the best and stick to it,—that's economy. Sovereign Flavoring Extracts are the best.
