

Canadian Poultry Industry Warned

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer
MONTREAL (CP)—The Canadian poultry industry was warned Monday to avoid pressure for a higher egg support price.

The existing one of 33 cents a dozen wholesale—set in 1950—"may or may not be an incentive price," Prof. J. R. Cavers of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, told a Canadian Federation of Agriculture luncheon.

But in 1957 the floor price was "no longer a sufficient deterrent" to over-production and an egg glut had lasted up to seven months in some areas.

Prof. Cavers, head of the college department of poultry husbandry, said in his view a higher floor price would be a "disincentive" to the industry. Purchases of egg-laying stock had not been cut back with the result that fresh egg supplies prevented sales of surplus stocks acquired under the federal plan inaugurated in 1950.

FLEXIBLE FLOOR PRICE

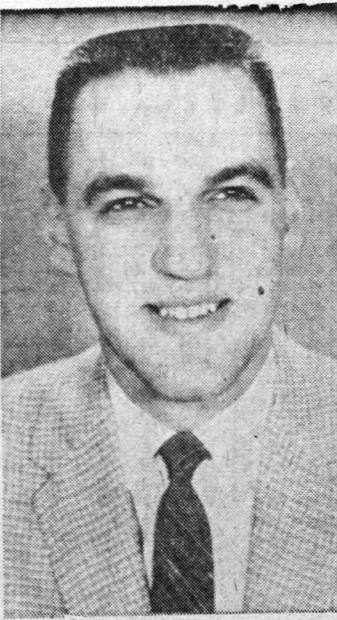

Later he suggested that "more flexibility" be injected into the floor price to discourage seasonal additions of laying stock.

Eggs are one of the nine farm commodities named in the federal farm price stabilization legislation passed Saturday, for which a minimum floor price is to be provided.

"I beg you to modernize your thinking," the professor told representatives of farm groups, urging that any tend toward the creation of surpluses should be resisted strongly.

His address was the first at the 22nd general meeting of the federation began week-long deliberations. The public sessions will be held today and Wednesday when resolutions will be presented, then passed to the directors Thursday and Friday for sanctioning.

The federation, representing agriculture from every province, will present its annual brief to the federal government next week.

Easier Home Buying Plan Urged At CCA Meeting

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor
QUEBEC (CP)—There is still considerable scope for extending the provisions of national housing legislation the housing committee of the Canadian Construction Association said Monday.

The report, prepared under the chairmanship of V. L. Leigh of Victoria and presented to the opening day's session of the association's annual meeting, added: "The terms of the Canadian legislation are more stringent than the equivalent legislation in the United States, where down payments and carrying charges are lower; mortgages can be obtained on existing houses; and mortgage interest and municipal taxes may be reduced for income tax purposes.

"If, as is hoped, additional mortgage funds become more readily available in 1958, it is strongly recommended that serious consideration be given to adoption of such measures."

The committee suggested that zoning bylaws be carefully scrutinized to ensure that requirements for such things as lot sizes and parkland are not unreasonably high.

FRONTAGE A DETERRENT
"A trend toward 30-foot minimum land-frontage provisions in new subdivisions by municipalities is not uncommon," the committee commented, "and is a serious deterrent to those with modest incomes in purchasing a home.

"If the trend is not halted, a great percentage of Canadian families may be 'zoned - out' of home ownership."

Reviewing 1957, the committee said that despite difficulties, favorable factors had won out by the end of the year, and housing completions rose to around 118,000 compared with a predicted total of 100,000. The large number of housing starts in the second half of the year and a predicted decrease in competing demands for investment funds, gave promise of an increased housing program for 1958.

The report added: "Increased interest in government circles, the press and the public in general in the association's plea that opportunities for home ownership be improved for those with annual incomes of less than $5,000 a year was gratifying.

"The latest available statistics show that in the second quarter of 1957 the average NHA loan was issued on a house costing $14,600 and to a person aged 35 with an income of over $5,800.

"The close of 1957 saw improved financing arrangements, NHA mortgage funds earmarked for the 'forgotten man', a carry-over of 70,000 units under construction and an easing of 'tight money' situation.

"On the other hand, the new financing arrangements for NHA housing and the other favorable factors will not in themselves provide a large volume of house-building activity in 1958. Adequate quantities of the essential ingredients of a large-scale housing program, such as mortgage funds and reasonably priced land, must also be available."

The report says land cost and availability are in general more of a problem than actual construction costs. The construction industry is technically capable of producing low-cost homes. The main reason why they are not being built is largely due to factors beyond the industry's control, such as marketability of low-cost units and the availability of serviced land.

While there are some encouraging indications that more private mortgage funds may become available in 1958 than in 1957, the situation is not clear and may change. This suggests that a return to joint loans or some equivalent method of federal participation in investment in housing may prove to be necessary at some future date.

In view of the increasing importance of multiple-unit housing in certain areas, an amendment to the National Housing Act is recommended to make the financing of such projects attractive to investors.
