

mine the rate of publication. It will be, at first, offered for free. Later the cost will cover publishing changes only. No money will be made by me. I'm embarking upon such a venture out of love for literature.

As of now I only have an idea, I need material. This is where I desperately need your help. I'm sending this same letter to some thirty odd universities from coast to coast. In each one I'll be asking for the same thing. A little article in your paper asking for original short prose and poetry from the student body. Their work can cover any topic since the publications will be universal in scope. I unfortunately can't pay them but I will promise a fair and honest selection process. If they desire their literary work returned please ask them to send a SASE.

Thank-you for all your help.
Yours truly,
John Jagiellowicz

The Standard That Lasts

By: Robert MacDonald

The phrases "A LASTING RELATIONSHIP" and "A REAL COMMITMENT" are fast becoming a thing of the past. Everywhere you turn people are looking for these elusive relationships and real commitments; yet they never seem to find them. WHY?

The answer is simple! STANDARDS! People have forgotten to live by standards! We, in our technologically advanced Western society feel there are no absolutes anymore. The only standards are opinion and doing what one feels is right; there is no objective right and wrong anymore.

Every discipline has its standards! The engineer has a benchmark; the business student has profit and loss; the science student has (at least here on earth) the laws of nature; the math student has logic; the arts student is guided by the twin lights of reason and rhetoric. The lights of these fires purify and test the literary and philosophical works of man. So it seems that humanity must have standards in everything.

We, however, have tossed our standards of relationships, commitments, and love to the four winds.

Now don't misunderstand me. I do not advocate returning to a sexually repressive society of the past. A society that discriminates on the basis of sex and race. The KEY is to combine our new-found freedoms with our just traditions!

If we wish to prevent our liberated society from degenerating into total anarchy, we must restore the sanctity of relationships. Lovers must treat each other with the real love and respect with which they want to be treated instead of just satisfying only their physical desires.

A MAN must learn to be a GENTLEMAN again! A man must learn to respect a woman as he would respect his best friend. A WOMAN should set standards by which to judge a man! Look beyond his physical appearance and understand how a man thinks, feels, and treats others around him.

If lovers would treat each other as partners with equal, although perhaps different, responsibilities in a relationship, instead of trying to dominate each other, they would have a little more success with a "LASTING RELATIONSHIP", a marriage, "A REAL COMMITMENT", a family!

NOTICE

The plans for the University's new fitness and recreation centre will be available for viewing with Committee comments on Friday, October 28, 1988 at three PM in classroom 050, basement of Main Bldg. (east end). A question period will follow.

Important Facts About Voting!

The Federal Voting Process For Students

The riding where you vote is determined by where you consider your ordinary residence to be located.

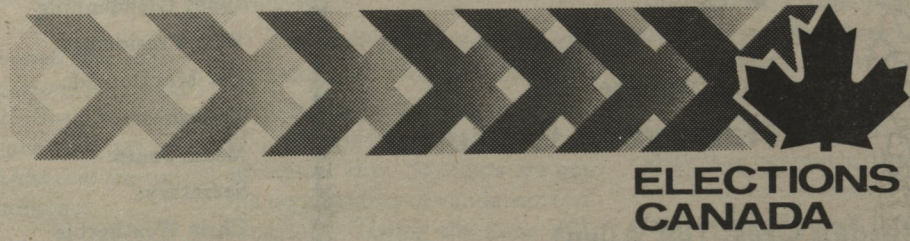

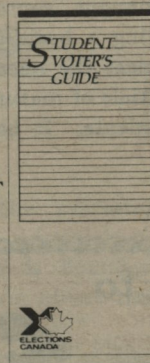

As students, you must decide whether you consider this to be your family's residence or the place where you are currently living (if they are two separate places).

Make sure you are enumerated in the polling division where your "ordinary residence" is located. Your name should then appear on the Voters' List.

If you will not be able to vote on Election Day itself, remember that you may vote in advance or by proxy.
