

Oil Geologist Takes Own Life

DALLAS (AP)—Dr. Everett Lee DeGolyer, 70, regarded by many as the petroleum industry's No. 1 geologist, shot himself Friday, authorities reported.

DeGolyer, who was in his office at the time, was shot in the chest by a .38-calibre revolver. He had been shot in the right ear.

He had been in ill health for six years. DeGolyer, born Oct. 9, 1886, in a sod house near Greensburg, Kan., rose to become head of numerous oil and geology firms.

In addition he was noted in literary circles as chairman of the board of the Literary Weekly, the Saturday Review of Literature, and was a collector of rare books.

Opening lead—queen of spades. It goes without saying that any time a player is subjected to a guess he will sometimes guess right and he will sometimes guess wrong. For that reason the competent dummy player tries to arrange his play in such a fashion that he will have as few guesses as possible.

The South who played this hand at four hearts subjected himself to an unnecessary guess. He violated the principle we are talking about and, unluckily, paid the penalty.

Three rounds of spades were led, declarer trumping the third one. He entered dummy with a diamond and finessed the queen of hearts, losing to the king. South took the diamond return, crossed to the ace of clubs, and led another heart.

After a great struggle whether to play the ten or the ace, he decided in favor of the ace and went down one. He had misguessed the heart situation. With proper play, South would have made eleven tricks on this deal, not nine.

South's problem from the beginning is to avoid the loss of two trump tricks. West may have two sure trump tricks, but, if that is the case, nothing can be done about it. Declarer should turn his thoughts instead to those hands where his play matters.

In every such hand the lead of the ace of hearts will make the contract. Thus, in the actual deal, West's lone king is caught, and no trump trick at all is lost because East's jack is trapped.

Suppose, on the ace of hearts, West shows out. Declarer has two entries then to dummy to lead twice toward his Q-10 and hold East to one trump trick.

Or suppose West has K-J alone, then, an honor having dropped, it becomes impossible to lose more than one trump trick.

Or if both defenders play small on the heart ace, dummy is entered and a heart led. If East follows suit, the hand is unbeatable. In fact, therefore, the play of the heart ace guarantees the hand, if it can be made. All guess-work is eliminated.

BEDTIME STORIES

Danny Explains

In itself is nothing bad. What you scorn makes other glad. —Danny Meadow Mouse

"Danny and Nanny Meadow are crazy," declared Peter Rabbit to Mrs. Peter over in the dear Old Briar Patch.

"Who says so?" asked Mrs. Peter.

"I do," declared Peter. "They say they like winter and that it doesn't bring hard times. They say they love the snow. Do you believe that?"

"Why would they say it is so if it isn't so?" asked Mrs. Peter.

"Well, all I can say is what I said before, they're crazy," said Peter.

That night it snowed nearly all night. It lay quite deep over the Green Meadows. Peter Rabbit stayed at home in the dear Old Briar Patch. That suited Mrs. Peter. She doesn't like Peter to leave the dear Old Briar Patch where he is safe. "I wonder," said Peter, "how Danny Meadow Mouse likes this." The next day he found out. A stiff crust had formed in the night and Peter could hop about. He went over to where Danny and Nanny Meadow Mouse were living.

At first Peter saw no one. Then a squeaky voice that seemed to come from almost under him made him jump. He turned to see Danny Meadow Mouse poking his head out of a small hole in the crust beside the stalk of a big weed. Danny had climbed the weed from down below.

"Isn't this lovely?" squeaked Danny.

"I don't know what you're talking about," said Peter crossly. "I guess you'll admit now that the snow isn't so lovely."

"Oh, but it is!" squeaked Danny. "Now Nanny and I don't have to worry about anything. We can go and come when we please and not be afraid that anybody will catch us. We have plenty to eat and with nothing to worry about we can have a good time. It's just as I told you the other day, the best time of the whole year. I mean by that it is the time when we are happiest because of nothing to worry about."

"But how do you get around?" asked Peter. "If you come up on top Reddy Fox, or Hooty the Owl, or some other hunter won't he have much trouble in seeing and catching you?"

"Why should we come up on top unless we want to?" asked Danny.

"If you don't come up how can you get around?" demanded Peter.

"That's easy," squeaked Danny.

of the snow. It's no trouble at all. You would be surprised if you could see all the tunnels we Mouse folk have dug on the Green Meadows since the snow fell. We can go visiting anytime we please, whether it be day or night and no one can see us. Do you know what I wish?"

"What do you wish?" asked Peter.

"I wish the snow would last just like this until Mistress Spring comes," squeaked Danny.

"I don't," said Peter. "It can't go too soon to suit me. It makes for a very good time."

"You mean it makes good times," squeaked Danny and disappeared.

Peter turned and went back to the dear Old Briar Patch. He still thought that Danny Meadow Mouse was crazy. These were hard times for a lot of people, so how could there be good times for anybody?

Big Jet Sale Deal Under Consideration At Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—A $66,000,000 deal involving sale of more than 200 Canadian Sabre jet fighters to West Germany is under negotiation. And it is also suggested here that Canada may yet go through with the suspended sale of 24 Sabres to Israel.

Sources here Friday said an agreement may be signed shortly with West Germany, but, as yet, no agreement had been reached. It was learned that the number of planes involved is about 200 valued at $330,000 each or a total of $66,000,000 or even more. A report from Bonn said West Germany is seeking 225 of the planes.

The sale of 24 Sabres to Israel was suspended Oct. 31 by the federal government after the outbreak of the Israeli-Egyptian dispute. Prime Minister St. Laurent at that time said the suspension was "for the time being."

THOUGHT TEMPORARY

In Ottawa Friday, Mrs. Golda Meir, Israeli foreign minister, said she feels the ban is a "temporary" decision. Mrs. Meir made the statement shortly after her arrival in the capital. While here, she is to hold talks with government officials, including the prime minister.

There was no government statement forthcoming on the sale to Israel. Nor would the external affairs department comment on the reported sales of planes to West Germany.

The Sabre jets are manufactured by Canadian Limited, at Montreal. However, their sale to West Germany would require government approval.

Last July Canada made a gift of 75 Sabres to West Germany. The planes, valued at a total of $3,900,000, were sent under Canada's mutual aid program for NATO partners in Europe.

West Germany entered the North Atlantic Treaty Organization last year and has been authorized to build a 1,350-plane air force. By comparison, strength of the RCAF is some 3,000 planes of all types.

Royal Canadian Reg't 74 Years Old

OTTAWA (CP)—One of the oldest and proudest infantry units of the army observes its 74th anniversary next week.

The Royal Canadian Regiment was founded Dec. 21, 1833, only 16 years after confederation.

The RCR now comprises two battalions of the regular army and a battalion of the militia. The regimental depot, the 2nd Battalion and the London and Oxford fusiliers, are located at London, Ont. The 1st Battalion now is serving as part of the 2nd Canadian Infantry Brigade group in Germany.

Traditionally units of the regiment mark the anniversary with a program of sports activities, parties, speeches and gatherings of all ranks.
