CHILD'S BODY IS FOUND ENTANGLED IN WIRE FENCE
 Patricia Ann MacKinnon, five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aeneas MacKinnon, Malpeque Roads, was found dead yesterday afternoon by her mother who discovered her daughter caught in a wire fence near her home, held by the strings of a bonnet which the child was wearing.
 Police are unable to explain how the child became entangled in the fence. The mother had seen the child playing with some other children only a few minutes before she was attracted by the screams of a little cousin, Willard MacKinnon from next door. When Mrs. MacKinnon reached her child she was already dead.
 The child was rushed to the Charlottetown Hospital where doctors confirmed the fact that she had passed away. An autopsy will be performed on the body this morning to determine the cause of death. The child's father is foreman at F. R. MacLaine's Garage. There are three other children in the MacKinnon family.

COMMISSIONER BOOTH
 $12,000 objective has already been reported.
 The Salvation Army Head in Canada said that there are very few people who realize the value of money better than he. He explained that one reason why spending can be kept at a minimum is because of the devoted work of the officers in the service who give their lives to the work for what he termed a mere pittance. He also stated that less money is lost by maladministration than in any other organization.
NEW EXPERIENCE
 To see businessmen who are willing to help in Salvation Army campaigns was something new for the Commissioner who has done most of his work in the United Kingdom and Europe before coming to Canada. "I am not a stranger at raising money," he said, "but I am particularly pleased to see busy people such as you giving of your time in our behalf."
 In making a review of Salvation Army work in Canada, Commissioner Booth observed that 14 Hospital training schools are being operated with 223 nurses graduating therefrom last year. He also noted that the Salvation Army is maintaining 70,000 day pupils in schools across Canada. Most of the teachers he said were Salvationists but their was a great need for qualified personnel.
 The Commissioner told of an interesting experience he had had among the Indians of northern British Columbia. He said that the tribesmen were very receptive to the Army's program and a meeting which started shortly after 7:00 p.m. was still going strong at 12:00 o'clock.
MUST GO ON
 "The Salvation Army must go on," said Commissioner Booth. He observed that while the Government is undertaking a great deal of social services, organizations having the personal touch must be at the forefront. "They can lead the way and show the world what can be done," he added. Then he gave a graphic description of the work being done by the "Harbour Light" Corps which operates in the larger centres as a means of redeeming alcoholics and drug addicts. He gave many concrete examples of the work of rehabilitation being carried on by the Corps, but emphasized that the greatest factor in promoting the work is the actual witness of those who have been helped.
 An interesting feature of the Commissioner's address was his description of Children's Villages.

Term Triple Murder Work Of A Madman
 CHICAGO (AP)—The naked, blood-flecked bodies of three boys were found Tuesday sprawled in a ditch in a forest area.
 Shocked investigators termed it one of the most brutal crimes in Chicago history, and attributed it to a "madman" driven by a twisted sex motive.
 The victims were Robert Peterson, 14, Robert Schuessler, 13, and his brother, Anton, 11.
 They were grade schoolers who left their comfortable homes Sunday afternoon for a movie. They never returned.
 A coroner termed it the most horrible crime within his experience, and labelled it a sex case. "The work of a madman," he asserted.
 The coroner said he believed the youths had been strangled. Marks indicated their mouths and eyes had been sealed with tape, which was removed before they were killed.
 The investigation revolved around a search of the forest area and a backtracking hunt for clues to where the lads had been Sunday night.

Ch'town Man Testifies In Theft Case
 PICTOU, N.S. (CP)—James Savidant of Charlottetown told a Supreme Court jury here Tuesday he was robbed of $800 last July 3 in the home of Mrs. Cora May Jackson at Pictouville, Pictou county. Mrs. Jackson is charged with theft. Savidant said he drank some liquor at the Jackson home, fell asleep, and woke to find the money gone from his pocket. After an argument Mrs. Jackson had chased him with an axe.
 RCMP constable D. W. Harrison said $249 was found in the Jackson potato patch. Mrs. Jackson will testify today.
 The investigation revolved around a search of the forest area and a backtracking hunt for clues to where the lads had been Sunday night.

 The remains of the late Mr. Robbins will be brought to the Island for burial in Mitchell Cemetery. It is not known when the funeral will be held.

U. N. WINDOW, POSTER DISPLAY
 A temporary United Nations organization in Charlottetown arranged for two displays in connection with the observation of United Nations day, Oct. 24. A collection of small dolls, dressed in the native costumes of a number of member countries of the United Nations, will be shown in the window of the Maritime Electric Company, while in the Civic Centre there will be a display of posters explaining the various points of the declaration of human rights.
 It is suggested that U. N. study groups be formed as a forerunner to the formation of a regular United Nations organization here. The window display and posters are being arranged for by Mr. Gordon MacDonald and Mr. Gary Ra-Airth.

COMMISSIONER BOOTH
 $12,000 objective has already been reported.
 The Salvation Army Head in Canada said that there are very few people who realize the value of money better than he. He explained that one reason why spending can be kept at a minimum is because of the devoted work of the officers in the service who give their lives to the work for what he termed a mere pittance. He also stated that less money is lost by maladministration than in any other organization.
NEW EXPERIENCE
 To see businessmen who are willing to help in Salvation Army campaigns was something new for the Commissioner who has done most of his work in the United Kingdom and Europe before coming to Canada. "I am not a stranger at raising money," he said, "but I am particularly pleased to see busy people such as you giving of your time in our behalf."
 In making a review of Salvation Army work in Canada, Commissioner Booth observed that 14 Hospital training schools are being operated with 223 nurses graduating therefrom last year. He also noted that the Salvation Army is maintaining 70,000 day pupils in schools across Canada. Most of the teachers he said were Salvationists but their was a great need for qualified personnel.
 The Commissioner told of an interesting experience he had had among the Indians of northern British Columbia. He said that the tribesmen were very receptive to the Army's program and a meeting which started shortly after 7:00 p.m. was still going strong at 12:00 o'clock.
MUST GO ON
 "The Salvation Army must go on," said Commissioner Booth. He observed that while the Government is undertaking a great deal of social services, organizations having the personal touch must be at the forefront. "They can lead the way and show the world what can be done," he added. Then he gave a graphic description of the work being done by the "Harbour Light" Corps which operates in the larger centres as a means of redeeming alcoholics and drug addicts. He gave many concrete examples of the work of rehabilitation being carried on by the Corps, but emphasized that the greatest factor in promoting the work is the actual witness of those who have been helped.
 An interesting feature of the Commissioner's address was his description of Children's Villages.
