

Mail's Our Bag Continued

U of T has 8 of 60. I suggested 10 of 25 and I doubt that's enough.

Further why should we wait until the U of T experiment shows results? While, as I said, their attempt has worked quite well, there is a great distinction between a system which is 100% elective and one which is over 60% appointive or ex-officio. Or between a system which has as its primary representatives from the community businessmen and government officials and one which represents farmers, fishermen, and workers. And within the university, the task of administration should be to administrate, not to make policy.

As for refuting my argument that since governments do not divide fiscal and service legislating bodies we shouldn't (and for the same reason- that its a clumsy and artificial distinction) by suggesting that therefore we would have to have the elective process open to all Islanders...Come on! The two aspects of the desicion making process just have no relationship to each other.

Once again I apologize for assuming that six years of virtual silence implies complacency.

P.S. I am pleased to see that you read our little rag. Why don't you quit ripping off students and pay for it?

Yours sincerely

Plesant Atmosphere And Decor At The Old Spain

This week we decided to do the Old Spain restaurant on Kent Street. As the name implies, the decor was Spanish, and was quite pleasing. The stucco and beam ceiling especially appealed to us.

As we were in our usual condition, that is, what of funds, we ordered a chicken plate and pork chops. We received good service throughout the meal.

Looking over the menu, we found the prices to be higher than those of comparable restaurants visited. We found the meal to be average, but we do advise prospective visitors to be wary of the french fries. The portions were acceptable.

Upon asking, we were told that the hours were shorter during the winter, the restaurant closes at 7 p.m. However, in the summer, it will remain open untill twelve or one o'clock.

For those who like a pleasant decor and atmosphere for their dining, we recommend the Old Spain. For gourmets

Due to the increasing work load, we regret to inform you that this will be our last reveiw of a specific establishment. We will write one more article, which will be a comparison of all the establishments we have reviewed in the last year.
