CHAPTER V.

It is very pleasant to see some then turn round; pleasant as a sudden rush of warm air in winter, or the flash of firelight in the chill dusk. Mr. Irwine was one of those men. He bore the same sort of resemblance to his mother that our loving memory of a friend's face often bears to the face itself; the lines were all more generous, the smiles brighter, the expression heartier.

If the outline had been less finely cut, his face might have been called jolly; but that was not the right word for its mixture of bonhomie and distinction.

"Thank your reverence," answered Mr.
Rann, endeavoring to look unconcerned about his legs; but shaking them alternately to keep off the puppies; "I'll stand, if you please, a more becoming. I hope I see you and Mrs. Irwine well, an' Miss Irvine—an' Miss Anne, I hope's as well as usual."

"Yes, Joshua, thank you. You see how blooming my mother looks. She beats us younger people hollow. But what's the matter?"

"Why, sir, I had to come to Broxton to deliver some work, and I thought it but right to call and let you know the going's on as there's been i' the village, such as I hanna seen i' my time, and I've lived in it man and boy sixty year come St.
Thomas, and collected the Easter dues for Mr. Black before your reverence come into the parish, and been at the ringin' o' every bell, and the diggin' o' every grave, and sung i' the quire long afore Bartle Massey come from nobody knows where, wi' his counter-singin' and fine anthems, as puts everybody out but himself —one takin' it up after another like sheep a-bleatin' i' the fould. I know what belongs to bein' a parish clerk, and I know as I should be wantin' i' respect to your reverence, an' church, an' king, if I was t'

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Temperance Work at Eldon.

Sir,—In view of the wave of Temperance sentiment now rolling over the land, I am sure it will interest you and your numerous readers to have reports from the various temperance society's throughout the rural districts.

Bethel Lodge, I. O. G. T., of Eldon, have been and are doing a noble and vigorous work. This, in the face of the opposition of a most peculiar and trying kind, coming, as it did from the first, from a quarter the least to be expected. As has already been announced, the Lodge has arranged for a course of lectures, one to be delivered each month during the autumn and coming winter. So far, the lecture committee have been most fortunate in securing two of the most talented gentlemen the Island can produce, viz., Hon. L.
H. Davies and His Honor Judge Alley.
Much was expected from these two gentlemen, and to say that our expectations were realized would be saying little. For over an hour the Hon. Mr. Davies held his hearers as by a charm; but when near the close he left the manuscript aside and indulged in a burst of natural oratory, some kind of spell seemed to fall on the audience.
Save for the ringing tones of the speaker voice a pin might be heard fall till he resumed his seat, when the entire audience gave vent to their feelings in rounds of applause.

But perhaps the most interesting lecture of the two was that delivered by Judge Alley, the subject of which was "P. E.
Island One Hundred Years Ago," and this is easily accounted for from the fact that a large number of the audience consisted of the descendants of those who came over in the celebrated ship Polly. It was with pleasure they sat and listened to graphic descriptions similar to what they had often heard before from their own ancestors in bygone days, and it seemed to bring back pleasing remembrances of long winter evenings spent around those broad-mantled fire places, so nicely portrayed by the lecturer. Numbers who only knew His Honor before as the dignified and impartial Judge, were agreeably surprised to see from the lecture stand, he could let himself down to a level with his audience.

The next lecture will be delivered by W. H. Lord, on Saturday, the 29th inst.
Subject: "Total abstinence from a Bible standpoint."

Doors open at 7 p. m. Admission free to all. The officers of the Temperance for the current quarter are:

Eldon, Nov. 25th, 1884.

The Hamilton Times does not like Sir John Macdonald and tries to explain away the fact that the liberal premier of England has deemed the Canadian premier worthy of the highest honors hitherto given to a colonial statesman. The Times cannot deny that Gladstone has advised the Queen in the matter and does not wish to say that Gladstone is foolish. Therefore it takes the ground that the honor to Sir John is intended as an honor to Canada, and not to himself personally. It should be gratifying to Sir John to notice that his most bitter opponents recognize the fact that an honor paid to him is an honor paid to Canada. But whatever satisfaction it may give to Sir John to know that the liberal premier of Great Britain regards him as the representative of what is best in Canadian statesmanship, it must be still more pleasant for him to feel that the highest tributes to his worth and services have been
