The B.A. Atkinson Trophy Is To Be Raced For Today

ALBERTON — The B. A. Atkinson Trophy will be up for competition this afternoon at the West Point races which also features a free-for-all boat race, open to fishing boats from Cape Egmont to Campbellton, outboard racing, swimming races and other interesting events.

The Atkinson trophy is now held by the Betts brothers, Orville and Ivan, of Glenwood who first won the race in 1956, lost to Russell MacLean of West Point in 1957 and regained the trophy the following year. MacLean won the free-for-all in '58 the last time the races were held.

The rules for the handicap race, which were drawn up in the days of sailing vessels, by the donor of the cup the late Mrs. B. A. Atkinson, formerly Isabel MacKinnon of Brae, are for the boats to race on a set course at any speed they wish until the starter drops a white flag, which he does at any time decided by him after the boats sail out. When the flag falls the boats immediately turn and retrace their course to the starting point.

A tricky part of the rules, which makes it possible for even a slow boat to win, is that no boat is allowed to make the return trip in less than two minutes of the outward sailing time.

The events, in aid of O'Leary Community Hospital equipment, are receiving support from the entire O'Leary area and generous prizes have been provided for all events.

The official opening is set for 2.20 and prominent officials have been invited to attend.
