JEWELLERS FOR FOUR GENERATIONS

Results Declared For Fourth & Fifth Queens

Dr. W.J.P. MacMillan and Mayor B. Earle MacDonald yesterday were declared elected in Fifth Queen's on the completion of checking the ballot boxes in the afternoon. Earlier in the day Premier J. Walter Jones and Mr. Dougald MacKinnon were declared elected in Fourth Queen's.

There was little change in the ballot totals reported unofficially on election night. What was believed the largest franchise vote ever recorded in Fifth Queen's was cast with a total of 9,009 recording their choice. The property vote for Councilor also was heavy with 4,609 voters going to the polls.

Another noticeable feature of the voting in this district was the high number of spoiled or rejected ballots. Deputy returning officers who filed complete reports showed that 211 ballots were spoiled and 196 rejected. These figures would probably be considerably higher if all polls had given the totals.

Premier Jones in winning what he has said will be the last election he will contest, polled a total of 1,146 votes to roll up a majority of 219 over Mr. M.W. Wood, his Progressive Conservative opponent. The Premier's running mate, Mr. Dougald MacKinnon, running as Assemblyman, totalled 1,382 votes to give him a majority of 440 over Mr. Alex MacPherson.

Despite the heavy vote polled in Charlotetown and Royalty the result was relatively close in the fight between Mayor MacDonald and David L. Matheson. Mayor MacDonald polled 4,452 votes to 4,276 for his opponent to give him a majority of 176. In the balloting for Councilor Dr. W.J.P. MacMillan, a former leader of the Opposition, enjoyed a wider margin. He polled 2,419 votes to 2,093 for Dr. F.C. Dougan, his Liberal opponent, to give him a majority of 326.

The C.C.F. candidates in this district polled only a small vote with Henry Gauthier obtaining 97 in seeking a seat as Councilor, and Alex MacLean winning 281 on the franchise vote.

Following are the official results by polls.

Literature And Life

By BOOKMAN

THE FATHER OF AMERICAN LIBRARIES

This was none other than Benjamin Franklin, whose autobiography is a most readable and revealing book. It would do any young man much good to read it for it shows how one boy arose from humble circumstances to a very dizzy height and became one of the outstanding men of his day.

He was one of seventeen children, whose father worked at candle making. This boy had but two years at school, and yet in time he became an author and was actually one of the men who signed, later in life, the "Declaration of Independence."

For a while he was with his father in the tallow business, but disliked that and in due time became a printer with his brother John who at that time published a paper called the "New England Courant." There was then only one other paper in America. Some folk discouraged John, saying there was room for only one paper in America. Times have changed since 1720. For some time Benjamin helped his brother, even delivering the paper to customers. Later the brothers disagreed and Benjamin went to New York with only a few shillings in his pocket. No work being available there he travelled on foot to Philadelphia. He landed there with a dollar in his pocket; his clothes were dirty and shabby. Soon he got employment as a printer. He saved his earnings—thanks to his early training in economy. He was not above doing humble work and actually pushed a wheelbarrow with paper for the printer who employed him.

Books were scarce then (1740), there being only one bookshop in America and it was in Boston. Franklin fed his mind on Bunyan's "Pilgrims Progress," "Plutarch's Lives" and a book by Defoe. His money was scarce but he spent more of his money on books than on anything else. He was the one who suggested and carried out the having of a public library in Philadelphia—the first in America. It was housed in one end of a small room, the annual fee for membership was ten shillings per year. Very soon they had one hundred subscribers.

This was the mother of all libraries on this continent. He was a public spirited citizen, and formed a club known as the Junta and it held regular meetings for forty years.

He had the streets of Philadelphia paved and lighted and formed the first fire insurance company in North America. He also invented the stove called the Franklin, still in use. He supported the first effort to have a hospital, while there was a general ridicule at the proposition. When over seventy he was elected to Congress and Governor of Pennsylvania. He died in 1790. This was said of him: "Such a servant, citizen, and patriot no other country ever had in the history of man."

Franklin used to put papers which he had written under the door of his brother's newspaper office, and the brother did not know whose they were. They were of a high order and showed intellect. He also wrote many essays, but perhaps his best known work is what he called "Poor Richard's Almanac," a collection of sayings, and proverbs. It was published in 1757 under the name of Richard Saunders. It sold well and was intended to make it's readers wise.

Sayings such as: "If time be of all things the most precious, wasting time must be as poor Richard says, the greatest prodigality." "Have you something to do tomorrow? Do it today." "At the working man's house hunger looks in but does not enter." "A fat kitchen makes a lean will." "When the well is dry we know the worth of water"; "Wise men learn by others' harms"; "Fools scarcely by their own"; "A child and a fool imagine that twenty shillings and twenty years can never be spent"; "If you would have a faithful servant and one that you would like, serve yourself"; "He that goes borrowing, goes a sorrowing." The almanac is filled with wisdom like this.

He said of the Almanac: "It is like the Harangues of a wise old man to the people attending an auction."

IPSWICH, Eng.—(CP)—People were surprised to see Alderman Alfred Clouting riding along the high street with a "learner" plate attached to his motorcycle. The alderman is 73 years old.
