

Few Respond To Appeal For Accommodations

Response has not been good in answer to a request by the Central Committee for tourist accommodation in private homes during the Centennial year. It was expressed yesterday in a press release by George Fraser, director of the P.E.I. Travel Bureau.

Only 17 homeowners have placed their names on the list for auxiliary accommodation for tourists next year so far and Mr. Fraser said he did not think this was good response.

The request for extra accommodation in private homes appeared in an advertisement which appeared in Island newspapers in August and was distributed by the Central Committee which is working in conjunction with the P.E.I. Travel Bureau and the P.E.I. Tourist Association on the task of housing the thousands of visitors to the Island next year.

Mr. Fraser said that most replies have been from people mainly in rural areas, who have been reluctant to move into a private home rather than, say, a motel, "depends on the persons and what they are seeking by way of accommodation," Mr. Fraser said.

The press release indicates some disappointment in the response to the ad. Asked if he felt the response had been good so far, Mr. Fraser replied, "we don't think so."

NEW LIONS CLUB HOME IN ALBANY WILL FILL NEED

Albany Lions Club Erecting Own Hall

By CARMAN SMITH
S'ide Bureau. The Guardian Albany Lions Club members are proud of their new home, and justifiably so. Despite a membership of only 18, the club decided this year that it needed a new home.

Sponsored by the Kensington Lions Club and only chartered in October 1962, the club members felt that they needed a permanent home after meeting in private homes, stores and other convenient places since the club was formed.

Early in November work was begun on this project and the anticipated date of completion is Dec. 20. One club member said yesterday "When we start thinking about a permanent home we had something like $25 in the bank. It's amazing what can be accomplished with a little work."

"There has never anything in the community of this nature," he continued, "and we decided to do something. The building will also be at the disposal of other organizations in the area."

The new hall goes under the name of Albany Lions Community Centre Inc., and when completed will have a cost in the vicinity of $10,000. It is being constructed by local contractor Norm MacWilliams.

Ass'n For Retarded Children Hears Convention Reports

ALBERTON — Mrs. Clifford Ellis and R.D. McKinnon, two of this province's delegates to the sixth annual convention of the Canadian Association for Retarded Children in Winnipeg, gave interesting and informative reports to the Alberton branch of that organization Thursday evening.

The most impressive part of the report dealt with the widespread interest in retarded children that now exists, and the rapid progress that has been made in giving to them every possible training.

Mr. McKinnon presided and the minutes were recorded by Mrs. E.E. Larter, Mrs. Ellis, Mrs. Corvill and Mr. Matthew's of O'Leary's.

The club will be open to both men and women from surrounding districts but the minimum age will be set at 14. The fee will be $2 per year with a 25 cents per shoot charge each rifle. Review Is Underway On Pollution Report

Dr. Burton Howatt, provincial health officer, said yesterday that the report on harbor pollution being prepared by a local engineer, was under review by all interested groups and the committee would hold another meeting within two weeks when individual members have had time to "digest" it.

Serious study of the report is being made by representatives of the provincial government, City of Charlottetown, City Commissioners of Sewer and Water Supply, and the Village Commissioners of Paradise and Sherwood.

Dr. Howatt said the report might contain some mistakes on which his committee would want clarification or further information. In any event, he stated, the committee had asked for the engineering study in order to complete their work as laid down in the terms of reference of their appointment.
