LOWER QUEEN STREET.

The SCOTCH WHISKY chosen by the Red Cross Society, London, for use by the invalided troops and hospitals in South Africa, is the famous WHITE HORSE CELLAR brand of MacKie & Co., Distillers, Limited, Islay and Glasgow, one of the oldest firms in the trade. On intimation of this, Messrs MacKie, with usual generosity, presented 200 cases free of charge, and shipped them by first steamer to the Cape.

One of the family is a volunteer in the Imperial Yeomanry, and on his way now to the Cape. It is hoped that he may give a good account of himself.

THE ABOVE MENTIONED BRAND IS FOR SALE AT WAR IN SOUTH AFRICA.

Interesting Particulars of the Struggle Between Great Britain and the Boers.

LORD CROMER'S VIEW.

Addressing the Cameron Highlanders previous to their departure from Egypt to South Africa, Lord Cromer said:

"Cameron Highlanders,—Your Colonel has asked me to say a few words to you, and I gladly comply with his request, although I know you do not require a speech from me or from anyone else to incite you to do your duty to your Queen and your country, and to sustain the reputation of the distinguished regiment to which you belong. You have been called on rather late in the day. In this respect you have been less fortunate than some of your comrades, who have already gone to the seat of war. But there is plenty of work left for you to do. You will be in ample time for the final act of this war. I need hardly tell you in what that final act must consist. The war cannot be concluded until the supremacy of British arms has been completely asserted, and until the British flag waves over President Kruger's capital and stronghold at Pretoria. "I now wish to say good-bye to you in the name of the British community in Egypt. We hope that when you smoke the pipes and tobacco which are about to be distributed to you, you will sometimes think of your absent friends, as we also shall follow your movements with the utmost interest. You carry our best wishes with you, and we hope that after you have given a good account of the enemy, will all return to live happily in your homes in Scotland.

DR. FACING-BOTH-WAYS.

DR. LEYDS, January 29.
Before Paardeberg and Ladysmith.
Dr. Leyds's ideas of terms [for the stopping of the war] include the recognition of the sovereignty of the Transvaal and the restitution to the Orange Free State of certain territories which the English formerly stole. Moreover the Transvaal would probably want a harbour, not in Portuguese territory, but further south. A guarantee would have to be given that the Cape Dutch who have joined the forces of the Republics should not have one hair of their heads touched. The war is going on splendidly.

Being asked what would eventually be done with the 10,000 English troops at Ladysmith, Dr. Leyds replied that either a large prison would be constructed or they would be sent to work in the mines, as in the days of Ancient Rome.

DR. LEYDS, March 4.

After Paardeberg and Ladysmith.
"I never had any doubt of President Kruger's desire to settle all differences in an honorable manner. His fervent wish for arbitration, so often expressed, shows clearly that he is ready to accept an honorable and impartial solution, and it is perfectly certain that any proposal of intervention to stop the war on such a reconciliatory basis would, notwithstanding the advantages the Republics have gained, find him ready. President Kruger never wanted and does not want war he wants peace; but he would not, and never will, sacrifice the independence of the Republic. Arbitration has always been our motto."

Doctors said Incurable

But the Notary, Mr. Lemire, was cured of Kidney Disease in two months by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

It is only when thoroughly convinced of the superior merit of a remedy that public men will give their sanction.
Mr. E. H. Lemire, Notary Public, 3692 Notre Dame Street, Montreal, tells of his remarkable recovery from a severe attack of kidney disease. When doctors had failed, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills saved his life. He writes: "I give this statement, first because it is only just that the merit of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills should be made known, and again in order that others may profit by my experience. For years I suffered with kidney disease which doctors pronounced incurable. Thanks to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, which I have used for two months, I am completely cured. They helped me from the first, and the cure is now perfect."
Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills act directly on the kidneys, and through their combined influence on the kidneys and liver, cure the most complicated diseases of these delicate organs. One pill a dose. 25 cents a box at all dealers, or Edman's, Bates & Co., Toronto.

A COMICAL CAMPAIGN OF CONQUEST.

HOW THE FRENCH INTEND TO CRUSH ENGLAND.

The foreign poet who asserted that "Imagination was the Sister of Invention" evidently had in his prophetic eye the author of an exquisite project for the invasion of England by the French. This witty production, worthy of a Gallic brain, is illustrated by a number of gorgeous sketches wherein the aboriginal warriors of the Paris slums are depicted as overrunning the territory and terrifying the sons and daughters of poor John Bull. Soldiers and volunteers flee before them—aghast. French squadrons scour the Channel, burning, sinking, annihilating our fleet—which, hypnotized by the audacious victors, quite forgets to offer the slightest resistance. French troops land on our shores in hundreds of thousands. The tricolour flag replaces the Union Jack on sea, on land, and in the ambient air. Waterloo and Fashoda are avenged—on paper.

The French Generals proudly ride through Piccadilly and Regent St. at the head of their victorious troops. The City is sacked. The West end is looted. British Princes, Generals and Admirals succumb incontinently, dimly conscious that it would be useless to resist the crushing attack of such magnificent warriors—so noble, so chivalrous, combining the military genius of Napoleon with the diplomatic talent of Talleyrand. A Treaty of Peace is proposed whereby not only Britopolis, but the entire British Empire falls into the hands of this conquering host. This Treaty is signed by Lord Labouchere and Sir Rosebery. The colonies which France does not care to annex are distributed among the nations with right royal generosity. British humiliation is consummated by the flight of the Queen, the capture of the Prince of Wales, and the proclamation of a British branch of the glorious Republic, under the Presidency of the Duc d'Orleans. The price of this glorious campaign, coloured, is fifty centimes. It is really worth double.

According to the Paris correspondent of the Sunday Special, who renders the country an immense service by revealing the imminence of the danger to which the British Empire is exposed, the author of the plan of campaign says his object is to place before his readers the "hypothesis" of an Anglo-Franco-Russian war, to be declared on August 10th, 1900. The illustrations are numerous, and sufficiently explain the text. We begin with the landing of French troops at Jersey. Then comes a full-page engraving representing the allied fleets passing scathless through the Straights of Gibraltar. An attempt on our part to land at Granville is repelled with great slaughter of the English. Herat is taken by the Russians. The Emperor Menelik unties the French flag at Fashoda. At Cairo an Egyptian stabs Lord Cromer. Admiral Fourmerand Admiral Avelane take possession of La Valetta, Malta. There is a general rising in India, and the English are massacred. The Anglo-Indian Army is defeated at Giricheh, Kandahar is taken, and Lord Roberts is killed. There is a great naval battle off Ireland, in which the English ships are displayed as mere wrecks. A gorgeous display is the landing of a French Army Corps at Brighton. The Battle of Lewes is the scene of the death of General Marchand. A Franco-Russian Squadron steams into Queens-town Harbour. Then comes the triumphal entry into London of Marshal Jamont at the Head of the French Army (they are descending Ludgate Hill), followed by portraits of the plenipotentiaries of the treaty of London—Grand Duke Sergius, Count Muravieff, Admiral Caillard, M. Paul Deschanel, Lord Henry Campbell-Bannerman, and Sir Rosebery. Finally the proclamation at Dublin of the Irish Republic.

The war is to last three months. "England," says the writer, "no longer exists. The united armies of France and Russia have dealt her a mortal blow. The Channel tide still bathes the shores of Great Britain, but there is no longer an England. The sea routes are free; the British Empire is destroyed; the world at length breathes." The Treaty of London, signed October 25th, 1900, makes the following dispositions: Canada goes to the United States; Newfoundland, with St. Pierre and Miquelon, form a French archipelago; Jamaica is annexed to Cuba. The other British islands there become the French Antilles. Venezuela gets English Guiana. In Africa, Bathurst, Sierra Leone, Cape Coast, and the lower course of the Niger are henceforth a part of the French Soudan. Portugal receives all the territory north of the Zambesi, extending north-east to the equatorial lakes. Germany gets Rhodesia. The Boers annex Cape Colony, Natal and Zululand, forming, with Orange, the Free States of Africa. English East Africa goes to Germany. Menelik takes the Egyptian Soudan. Egypt is restored to her destinies, with a sphere of influence over the whole Arabian Peninsula, but Aden and Perim go to France. The islands in the Indian Ocean become dependencies of Madagascar. The Indian Empire is proclaimed independent under the guarantee of Germany, France, and Russia; Malacca, Singapore, and Hong-Kong go to France. Australasia becomes an independent federation. New Guinea, Solomon and Ellis Islands are given to Germany. All the other islands in Oceania are annexed to New Caledonia. The Islands of St. Helena, Ascension, and Tristan-d'Acunha are turned into international penitentiaries. Spain recovers Gibraltar, Cyprus is given to Greece, Malta to Italy, Jersey and Guernsey to France; whilst Ireland, "blessing the new state of affairs which enables her to live in peace after so many years of oppression," is by the will of Europe created a Republic!

GENERAL WOODGATE.

The death of General Woodgate, who was severely wounded at the battle of Spion Kop, is announced: The late General Woodgate was born November 1st, 1854, at Belbroughton, Worcestershire. He served with the Abyssinian expedition in 1868, receiving a medal, and served in the Ashanti war of 1873-1874. He served in the Zulu war of 1879 as staff officer (medal with clasp, mentioned in despatches, brevet of major). He was made a staff officer in the West Indies serving there from 1880 to 1885, proceeding to India as regimental officer in the autumn of the after year, and returning in December, 1889. He was promoted to lieutenant-colonel in 1893, and to colonel 1897, and was placed in command of the regimental district of the King's Own at Lancaster. In April, 1898, he was sent to command the troops in Sierra Leone, where the natives were in rebellion.

ROCK OF GIBRALTAR.

England's famous natural fortification is situated at the southern extremity of Spain, in Andalusia. At various times great sums of money have been expended to add to its impregnability, until now it is regarded as an almost indestructible stronghold. The chief points of defence are on its western side. Several miles of caverns and galleries penetrate the rock, which presents a solid and formidable front on the land side; on the other great cannon frown upon the Bay of Gibraltar. The fortress is fairly honeycombed with bomb-shells and cannon balls. It was taken from the original owners over 150 years ago.

HEARING COMPLETELY RESTORED.

Catarrh caused the deafness, but Japanese Catarrh Cure cured the catarrh, allayed all inflammation and restored the hearing after physicians in Toronto and Winnipeg failed.

Mr. D. N. Spencer, 11 Coelmine ave., Toronto, writes:—"For over twelve years I have suffered from catarrh, wailing in spite of doctoring with specialists in Toronto and Winnipeg, became worse, until finally my hearing became much affected. About a year ago I procured a sample of Japanese Catarrh Cure, afterwards used in all four bottles; since I have been completely free from catarrh, and my hearing has altogether returned. I can cheerfully and conscientiously recommend it." All druggists, 50 cents. Write for book on Catarrh and Deafness, free. Griffiths and Macpherson Co., Limited, 121 Church street, Toronto.
