Damage Claims Sought By U.S. From Germany

(By Lloyd A. Lehrbas, Associated Press Staff Writer) WASHINGTON, May 14—The German-American mixed claims commission had before it tonight official Austrian documents which the United States contends definitely establishes Germany's wartime sabotage guilt. The documents were presented by the United States government in its effort to reopen the Black Tom and Kingsland, N. J., cases which involve damage claims totalling $50,000,000. The cases arose out of explosions which destroyed the Lehigh Valley railroad's rail-water terminal at Black Tom in July, 1917, and the Canadian Car and Foundry Company's ammunition plant at Kingsland in January, 1943. Four lives were lost. The documents, obtained from the Austrian war archives in Vienna by an investigator posing as the author of a book on international affairs, were introduced as exhibits. One of the papers a report from German army headquarters said: "According to the latest news more ammunition factories have been blown up." "The explosion in Kingsland, N. J., is reputed to have caused damages of $17,000,000, while that in the Du Pont powder factory (at Kearney's Point) $2,000,000. "Still further 'surprises' are said to be impending."

Plough Follows Sword of Italy For New Empire

(By The Associated Press) Mussolini's announcement that four-fifths of his 600,000 soldiers and workmen in Ethiopia will remain as settlers, heralds the second phase of the Roman empire building in East Africa. Seven months from the day the first tank roared off toward Addis Ababa, say Italian troops successful in crushing Ethiopia's defence. Fifty years is the period mentioned in official circles in Rome as the probable time required to realize Duce's dreams for developing the territory. Italy's primary hope of profit in Ethiopia, it is said in Rome, lies in cultivation of coffee and cotton, which she now imports from South America and the United States. Other Ethiopian agricultural resources listed in a survey of the country's potential wealth made by the semi-official publication "L'Action Coloniale" include broad highland pasturage and soil suitable to wheat and oats, some so fertile it will produce two crops a year. A vast fortune in gold, platinum and other minerals also waits only the hands to dig it from rivers and sands, according to the same publication. And always there is the possibility of oil, about which there has been wild speculation since Italy manifested her interest in the territory. Italy already has some experience in cotton cultivation in North Africa, in Eritrea, whose highlands are similar in geology and climate to those of Ethiopia, cotton of the excellent Egyptian staple known as "sakellaris", now is raised. Coffee beans are grown in many provinces in Ethiopia. In Harar, it is said the coffee furnishes a product not inferior to the mocha of Arabia. In Leketipi, production per plant compares favorably with that of Brazil. With Italian colonists providing the initiative, authoritative sources in Rome are convinced Italy will be able to produce in East Africa a colonial record comparable with those of the other great imperial nations. "They point out that Italy has a genius for colonization which is evidenced in her accomplishments in Libya. They also speak of the technical skill Italian engineers have contributed to the development of South American countries and take pride in the places her sons and daughters have made for

Young Travellers Enroute To Join Parents

HALIFAX, S.S., May 14.—Three lone juvenile travellers all the way from Poland disembarked at this port from the steamer on which they were passengers across the Atlantic and left on the Maritime Express of the Canadian National Railways today for their destination in Ontario. The youngest of the trio, Olga Zolynska, is ten years of age and is looking forward eagerly to her arrival in Toronto where she will be re-united with her mother who lives at 89 Edwan Avenue. The other two are Jan and Stanislaw Baka, age fourteen and twelve respectively, who are going to join their father in Brampton. The three youthful travellers are in charge of a special Canadian National passenger representative.

SERVED 45 YEARS IN POST OFFICE

(By The Canadian Press) VICTORIA, B. C. May 14—Charles E. Ray assistant postmaster at Victoria since 1928, has retired after more than 45 years service in the postal department. His entire period of service was performed in Victoria. Starting as a temporary clerk on November 10, 1890, he recalls when he first joined there were only four letter carriers. There are now 58. The post office staff consisted of 22 when he joined and has grown to 112. On the same payroll as himself in 1910 were James Murray, now district superintendent of postal services at Vancouver. D. B. McConnan, former assistant receiver-general and now retired here, and Frank Sehl, provincial collector of income tax.

N.S. Fishermen Still Missing

(C.P. By Guardian's Special Wire) CLARKE'S HARBOR, N. S., May 14—Search was still continuing tonight for two Clarke's Harbor fishermen, missing since early Wednesday morning. The two, Robert Colquhoun and George Nickerson, both 20 years old, left in a small motorboat Wednesday morning for the fishing grounds off this harbor. They have not been seen since. Residents along the shore said they heard what they thought were cries for help last night but they were unable to trace them.

Uncover Plot To Ship Arms To Mexico

LAREDO, Texas, May 14—The Laredo Times said in a copyrighted story today that four Cuban citizens were under arrest and a plot exposed to import into Mexico arms and equipment for 2,000 men. The newspaper said three weeks of investigation by authorities of the United States and Mexico had resulted in the arrests. The paper said that the scheme called for the transportation into Mexico of five carloads of arms, ammunition and equipment.

Privy Council Allows Appeal Of G. T. R. Stockholders

LONDON, May 14—(C. P. Cable)—The judicial committee of the Privy Council today allowed two appeals brought by George Lovibond, acting on behalf of a number of stockholders in the Grand Trunk Railway, whose properties were taken over by the Canadian government 15 years ago. The significance of the judgment was indicated in Lord Russell's concluding declaration, in giving judgment, that Lovibond had failed in regard to the main object of his action which could now only proceed for the purpose "whatever it might be worth"—of seeking to recover damages against the Grand Trunk or the Canadian National Railways. (The Department of Justice at Ottawa interpreted the judgment as meaning that certain holders of common and preferred shares of the Grand Trunk had been refused their appeal to be permitted to proceed against the Attorney General of Canada in the Ontario courts, but had been permitted to proceed in their claim for damages against the Grand Trunk and Canadian National railways. (R. C. Hawkins, who promoted the appeal on behalf of the stockholders, at London expressed the opinion that the decision leaves the way open for further litigation).

"Navy Wife" At Prince Edward

Clair Trevor and Ralph Bellamy have the featured roles in the picture, "Navy Wife", current at the Prince Edward Theatre. The film was adapted from Kathleen Norris's popular novel, "Beauty's Daughter." Most branches of the United States Navy have been used for subjects in the movies, but "Navy Wife" marks the first time that recognition has been given the important services rendered by the medical and nursing corps. "Navy Wife" tells the story of a young nurse who loses her heart to a Navy physician, still in love with the memory of his dead wife. Bellamy offers marriage to Miss Trevor, however, so that his crippled daughter may have a home and mother. Miss Trevor accepts him in the belief that marriage based on respect can endure. As the story progresses, Miss Trevor learns that instead of one rival, the dead wife, she now has two. The second is a beautiful, exotic woman, played by Kathleen Burke. Just as their marriage is about to end in tragedy for the young couple, a surprise-filled climax brings them understanding and happiness. Warren Hymer, Ben Lyon, Jane Darwell and Kathleen Burke are prominent in the supporting cast.

"Panic On The Air" At Capitol

Drama, comedy, mystery and suspense are blended in an exciting story of a news broadcaster in "Panic On The Air," featuring Lew Ayres, Florence Rice and Benny Baker, which opened yesterday at the Capitol Theatre. Ayres is making his initial appearance on the Columbia program in this story which appeared recently in a national magazine. Of unusual interest, the screen play deals with the adventures of Ayres in his attempt to solve one of the biggest mysteries of the day and the consequences which occur when he becomes intimately involved in the affair. Florence Rice, featured with Ayres, is the mystery woman in the case. With several others, she is striving to gain possession of a certain five-dollar bill which bears a code message revealing where the money is hidden. The cast of excellent performers endow the picture with swift, smooth action, breathless suspense and plenty of excitement. D. Ross Lederman's direction of Harold Shumate's screen play is excellent.

FEAR PARTRIDGES DECIMATED BY COLD

EDMONTON, May 14—The recent bitter winter has almost exterminated Hungarian partridges in Northern Alberta, according to Duncan Chalmers, bee farmer south of Edmonton. Mr. Chalmers, who said the partridges flourished in large numbers since their importation several years ago, found the birds suffered heavy losses during severe weather in February. Last fall, he added, between 600 and 700 partridges were located within a radius of five miles of his farm, but today "not a bird" can be found. "During the past three weeks", he says, "with the going of the snow I have found several flocks of four or five birds lying dead together in the bush. I think they were frozen to death." Mr. Chalmers says neighbors with extensive farms near his own also report a disappearance of the birds. The partridges proved of great benefit to farmers because they kept down cutworms and other insects. During last fall Mr. Chalmers said he fed a flock of the birds with grain, but they disappeared during cold weather.

MAY FLOWERS

Oh, the pretty May flowers Growing on the ground, In the woods at Springtime, Clusters may be found. See them in the grasses Pink and white so fair, Under little bushes, Filled with perfume rare. The wonder of the Mayflowers Is far beyond our ken, Sleeping through the winter Awake in Spring again. Growing in the Springtime In the month of May, Tiny fingers pluck them Pure and white as they. Just to pick the Mayflowers As in days of yore, Floods of sacred memories Flows from childhood's door. All these lovely flowers Seem to know no fear, Just like little children, Who are very dear. Soon these early flowers Blossom and are gone, Reminding us that children, Don't stay children long. Let us not be weary In our task of love, Guiding little children To their home above. —Lilly Creed, Alban (Patrol Please Copy)

The Stinger Stung

Mr. Stinger had a particular method in dealing with the various tradesmen who called at his house with the usual request for Christmas boxes. Pursuing his usual custom, he opened the door himself in answer to the butcher boy's knock, and allowed the youngster to begin, "Boy—'Wish yer a merry Christmas, sir?" Mr. Stinger—"Just so." "An' a happy New Year." "Just so." "An' all the rest of it." "Just so." There was an impressive silence, and Mr. Stinger flattered himself that he had crushed the applicant. But no. "I say, guv'nor," ventured the boy, "it wouldn't 'urt yer ter say 'Same ter you,' would it? If ye're poor, yer can be perlie."

FISHING INDUSTRY DOUBLE IN SASK.

(By The Canadian Press) REGINA, May 14—Saskatchewan's commercial fish industry has made rapid advances since the season of 1933-34, and in the past two years has almost doubled production, according to Hon. W. F. Kerr, minister of natural resources. During the years 1934-35 the output totalled 7,000,000 pounds. In the previous year it was 3,874,000 pounds. During the last season 283 additional commercial fishing licences were issued. Taking steps to counteract the increased catch of fish in the province, the government fish hatchery will plant 15,000 whitefish in northern lakes this year. Commercial fishing will not be permitted in the province's northern waters. It is planned to keep the lakes as reserve of "safety areas."
