

Hold Baseball Meeting At Montague

A well attended meeting of the King's County Baseball League was held in Montague last night attended by representatives from Souris, Morell, Georgetown and Montague.

It was determined that a senior and junior team will be entered from Souris, one team each from Morell, Georgetown and Montague, and a possible entry from St. Peters.

Considerable discussion also took place regarding the formation of a Little League club to operate under the sponsorship of the larger organization. Plans were made to form a Little League baseball team in Souris, Morell, Georgetown and Montague.

Following a discussion of the by-laws the meeting adjourned. Continued from page 1

New Delay

An inquiry as to why there had been no announcement of the result of the reappraisal by an inspection team which had been at Wyeth Laboratories, Inc., Marletta, Pa.

The spokesman said the inspection team "has moved out of Wyeth to Pittman-Moore" but added there would be no announcement at this time concerning the study at Wyeth.

Asked then why the further delay in reappraisal of previously approved lots and of action on lots which have not been approved, the spokesman made his statement that it was for "another look-see at this whole very confused picture."

"Some more tests will be made and some more data is wanted," the spokesman added.

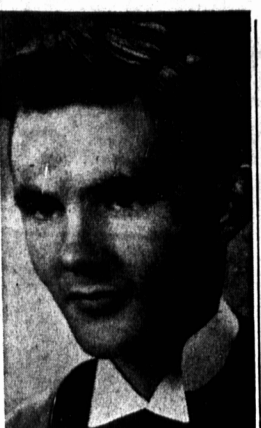

Pittman-Moore Co. is at Zionsville, Ind. It is the fourth of five manufacturers whose plants are being inspected in reappraisal of the manufacturing and testing processes.

After inspections of the Park, Davis and Co. plant at Detroit and the plant of Eli Lilly Co. at Indianapolis, reappraisal of previously approved lots of vaccine turned out by those companies was announced.

Earlier, Surgeon-General Leonard A. Scheele had said he had no information on when there would be further releases of the vaccine.

Meanwhile in Ottawa, Health Minister Martin said he will make a full report on Canada's Salk vaccine program at a meeting today of a federal-provincial conference on communicable diseases.

He declined comment on the Washington report that vaccine manufactured in the U.S. is to be subjected to further tests, but pointed out that Canada stopped imports of vaccine from the U.S. two weeks ago.

Large advertisement with headline "It's In The Air..."

The most avid readers of Conservative advertising are our Liberal friends. Every morning, the Happy Liberal Family comes to the breakfast table, paper in hand, to find out what they must try to explain away tomorrow.

We understand even the contractors are worried. They scent the change in the air. Their Government friends are running scared. Bickering and quarreling have divided the Government ranks.

Our Liberal friends began this election with two promises. First, that they would make no promises. Second, that they would fight a clean election.

Well, now. They have made themselves the most promising party the Province has ever seen. There is a flurry of activity on the roads—little stakes are driven here, there and everywhere.

The Premier is full of apologies. He tells us that old reckless promises made in the last election by his party were not fulfilled because either they cost too much or no one wants them anyway.

Our opponents' many promises of a clean election have presumably gone out the window. The countryside is being flooded with election-day ammunition, some of it paper, some of it liquid.

Government advertising—for those who have the eyesight to see it and the patience to read it—is full of extravagant boasting. They credit themselves with the Salk polio vaccine, the increase in hay crops, the development of farm machinery and the invention of asphalt.

Things go wrong when they're in too long. The Province could stand a good housecleaning. We need a government for all the people—not just a few.

The people want a change—they want fresh leadership—new policies—better management of their affairs. The Government has taken the people for granted long enough. But twenty years of power is too much for any one party.

Change is in the air—and only our Liberal friends fear it. The people will welcome it because it will mean a change for the better.
