Sister of S'side Woman Dies in Brockton, Mass.

A telegram was received by Mrs. Mark Delaney, Summerside, yesterday, informing her of the death in Brockton Hospital, after a lengthy illness of her sister, Mrs. Edith Condrick, R.N., widow of the late Dr. Joseph J. Condrick, Brockton, Mass.

The late Mrs. Condrick was a very highly respected citizen of the community in which she lived. After the death of her husband some twelve years ago, she after wards turned her thoughts and devotion to the care of the ailing, and opened her beautiful home as a home for incurables.

She devoted her time and energy to the less fortunate in this good work for about ten years, until ill health forced her to retire two years ago.

She leaves to mourn the following children: Arthur, in Boston; Richard, in the U.S. Air Corps; and Marie, at home. The following brothers and sisters: L. B. Cosgrove, Milton, Mass.; W. T. Cosgrove, Pittsburgh, Mass.; Ezekiel Cosgrove, in Vancouver, B. C.; Parnell Cosgrove, Sherbrooke, P.E.I.; and Mrs. Mark Delaney, Summerside.

Funeral services will be held from her late residence to the Lady of Lourdes Church, Brockton, on Saturday morning. Mrs. Delaney and her daughter, Mrs. Henry Wedge, will leave this morning by plane for Brockton, if flight conditions are favorable. —S

S'side Home, School Welfare Group Meets

The president Mr. A. H. Hubley occupied the chair for the February meeting of the Summerside Home and School Welfare Group on Tuesday evening in the High School library.

It was reported that the association's share of the sale of tickets and candy at the recent recital given by Mr. Gabriel Chateau amounted to $110.38. The president thanked all those who had assisted in any way in making the concert a success, and special mention of Miss Georgie Dyriscoll in her sale of tickets for this recital, was made by Mr. Hubley.

The Home and School monthly plaque was again awarded to Mrs. Garth Toombs' class for the best attendance of parents at the meeting. The next meeting has been advanced to March 4th to coincide with Education Week, and will take the form of a panel discussion on "Teachers—Parents Relationship."

Mr. J. R. Murphy is in charge of the program. The president commended the vice-president Mrs. C. G. Robinson, secretary, Mrs. Blair Eldorin, and treasurer, Mrs. G. Franklin Cameron, who were guests on the "Coffee and Doughnuts" radio program, for their presentation of the information concerning the Home and School Group. The special feature of the evening was the fashion show, described in yesterday's Guardian.

It was presented by the girls of grades 10 and 11 under the direction of Mrs. Allison MacLean, teacher of home economics. Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting. —S

In The World of Books

With Will R. Bird

I MARRIED AN ARTIST, by Billy Sutton; Ryerson; 239 pages. A romance that began while the two youngsters were undergraduates at the University of Toronto, and is depicted in one of the twenty drawings in this fine book as being really a courtship on skates, turned out the way it does in all good novels.

They have lived happily, though sketchily—in every sense of the word—ever since. Billy, who seems to answer also to such names as Pie-face and Puddin' Head and Pique, is the daughter of Henry Button, head of the Canadian branch of J. M. Dent & Sons, publishers. She is also the wife of Angus Macdonald, ARCA, the man included in the title. And can be named an artist in her own right, as this gay and kindly autobiography shows.

The courage of the young is something we all admire, and this pair had plenty of it. They had to have, as they married without having any idea of what they would use to pay the landlord, the butcher and the baker. But the bride had such faith in the groom that he himself, not heaving a stone in himself, and faith can move mountains. Especially when it is hitched to talent and grim determination. Many have started out in such fashion, and crashed as soon as they realized that some poverty must be endured before success is gained.

These young folk had what it takes. They didn't let any rumors or the grey atmosphere of the 1930s get them down. They had their own ideas of how much real apples goes along with a heavy bank account gained without effort, and they had fun. They can look back over those years now and laugh at all of it. They have two children to cheer them along, and they live in a dwelling they have designed from an old mill outside the city limits. The very sound of the story is exciting. They own their holding, and the land extends to six acres. The artist has made good.

The book is a record of hard struggle and courage told in light easy fashion that makes the courage but more apparent. Billy stood up to every test, as did her husband, and both worked hard. Billy used tools for carpentry or wrenches for plumbing when there was need. One feels she can do anything she wants—with an artist to help her.

THE MECHANICAL BRIDE, POLK BUREAU OF INDUSTRIAL MAN, by Herbert Marshall McLuhan; Copp Clark; 157 pages. This book is well illustrated and of unusually large size. The author is a professor of the University of Toronto and his book seems to be a rather distorted attack on our present way of life. He goes after spectacular effects, trying to make fun of advertising methods in magazines and radio.

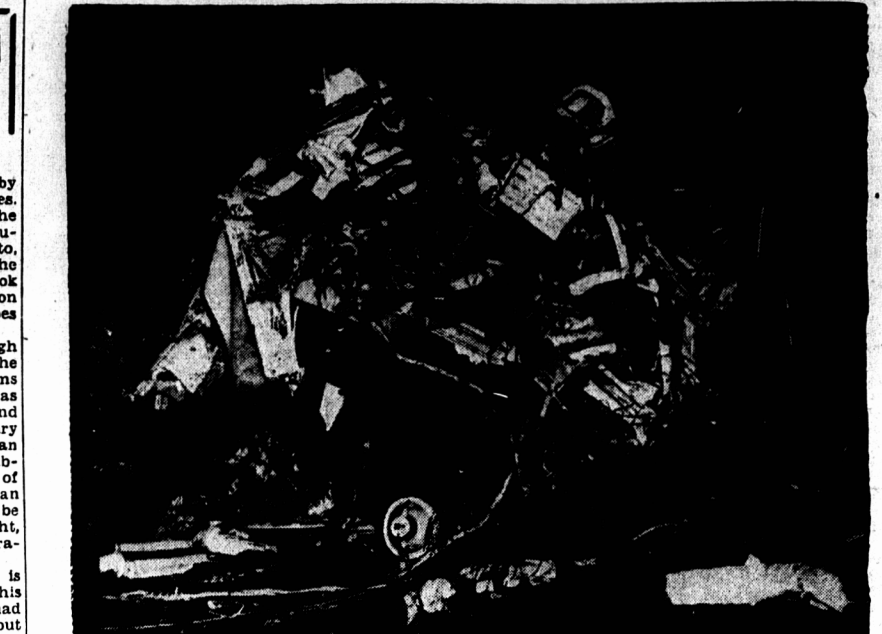

He tries to show the effect of this olio of oiling on impressionable minds, those of the young and those like me, and you, and me. He spares no effort in his output of guesses that he would like to be thought funny in his rather wholesale denunciations. It can be, too, that his book is funny and it is only my own dullness that prevents me from seeing the laughs. But there have been too many of his ilk trying to be sarcastic in a slick style about the glibbule human race.

It will take more than this book to startle the population into a rejection of the advertising routine as we know it today. There is no doubt, of course, but what we all are as were the generations before us back to primal surroundings, a little off balance mentally. You don't need advertising to prove it. The individual who spends good money for materials to make smoke to draw into his system, who concocts liquids that make him dangerous to his fellows and family and drinks them, who drives a car sixty when he has no real vision—is not one hundred per cent mentally correct.

Everyone shouts about soap operas and they are an abomination, but there are some poor souls on a different mental plane who like them. So let them have them, and dial something else in your own home. Don't try to make everybody like just what you like. We note that the author seems more frantic when he deals with the sex that is inserted in advertising. Personally, I like to see pretty girls in ads, and I don't care whether the ad is for a new car or a new make of cigarettes. I don't think the majority are helped or hindered by the spicy and spectacular and silly in advertising. I think the professor has done a good job in presenting his case, but I'm a little tired of all sorts of psychiatrists and their presentations.

SAIGON, Indo-China, Feb. 19.—(Reuters)—French Union Artillery bombarding the western extremity of the Tonkin Delta have killed several hundred Communist Vietminh rebels, a French army report said Monday. The 10-week-long battle for the area flared anew last week-end when the rebels attacked strong points along the French supply line from Hanoi to Hoa-Binh, 35 miles southwest.

GENEVA, Switzerland, Feb. 19.—(Reuters)—Egyptian charges that British forces in the Suez Canal zone have been using forced labor have "not been substantiated", the International Labor Organization reported Monday. It published a 330-page report on a personal investigation of the Egyptian allegations, by Raghunath Rao of Bombay, Deputy Director-General of the I. L. O.

A fireman is seen poking into the jumbled wreckage of a National Airlines DC-6 which crashed into the residential section of Elizabeth, N. J., en route to Miami from Newark, N. J., killing a reported 27 passengers of 62 aboard, including crew, and four tenants of a three-storey apartment house hit by plane. An estimated 43 persons, mostly passengers, were injured—many critically—in third plane crash in that city in two months. The accident, believed due to motor failure, brought plane disaster total to 116 victims and resulted in official closing of nearby Newark airport. It also has started a complete investigation of tragedy.

Norwegian Fans Scream Over "Rough" Hockey

OSLO, Feb. 20.—(AP)—The International Ice Hockey Federation directors decided tonight to take no action against Joe Czarnota of the United States hockey team who was involved in a fistful display in a game against Switzerland last night.

The incident highlighted something of a rhabarbar over the body-checking style of play used by Canadians and Americans in the Olympic hockey series. Czarnota, 26-year-old defenseman from Wakefield, Mass., was charged with having attacked Gian Bazzi of the Swiss team during the game. He was given a major penalty and a 10-minute misconduct penalty.

Doug Grimston of New Westminster, B.C., president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association and Canada's representative on the I.I.H.F., said in his opinion Czarnota could not be penalized twice for a rule violation. "Joe was penalized during the game and that should definitely close the case," said Grimston.

After an hour's closed meeting tonight, the I.I.H.F. under chairmanship of Dr. Fritz Kraatz of Switzerland ruled the case closed. The incident cropped up in the third period of last night's game, won by the United States 8-2, when Czarnota and Bazzi squared off. Later they grinned and posed for photographers with arms around each other's shoulders.

By Canadian and American hockey standard it was no fight at all. Neither player took off his gloves and only Czarnota tried to throw a punch. Both were given major penalties. But Norwegian fans, who like their hockey daintily, threw orange peels on the ice and screamed "Chicago gangsters" at the Americans.

In the Canada-Czechoslovakia game earlier, won by Canada 4-1, Gordie Robertson was given a major penalty in the final period. Robertson made a couple of weak passes at a Czech player. It was the Canadians' solid body-checking, however, to which the Norwegian fans objected. They booed the Canadians, not understanding the North American style of play.

Today the Neue Zurichcher Zeitung, a Swiss newspaper, described the Canadian and U.S. players as "rowdies" and demanded that "the 1952 Olympic hockey be ended, and that the 1954 on her next effort for seppollution of European hockey by overseas teams" be ended. Mrs. Anne Marie Buchner-

British Girl Captures Figure Skating Title At Olympic Games

(By Jack Sullivan) OSLO, Feb. 20.—(CP)—Jeannette Altwegg, Britain's skating queen, tonight won the Olympic figure skating championship a few hours after Andrea Mead Lawrence, the United States' sking star, had won the women's slalom title in spectacular fashion to capture her second gold medal at the winter games.

Canada's Suzanne Morrow from Toronto placed sixth in the figure skating, giving Canada one point in the team standings of the competing countries. Miss Altwegg's almost flawless precision in the free-skating phase that ended the figure skating competition was applauded by the 28,000 persons in Bislett Stadium.

When the compulsory figures were completed last Sunday the 22-year-old British girl was well ahead on points and her championship was practically assured. Sixteen-year-old Tenley Albright from Newton Centre, Mass., placed second and Jacqueline du Bief, the French star who brought down the house with her sensational free skating, was third.

Miss Altwegg as the 1952 Olympic champion succeeds Canada's Barbara Ann Scott who won at St. Moritz, Switzerland, four years ago. Takes Bad Spill Mrs. Lawrence, who won the women's giant slalom on the opening day of the winter games, recovered brilliantly from a bad spill in her first run down the treacherous Rodkleva course.

She took too daring a chance as she cut through one of the 29 gates on her opening run down the 508-yard course which drops 196 yards from its peak. She skidded and fell but bounced quickly back to her feet and was away. The precious time lost placed her fourth, in one minute, 7.2 seconds, after the first run.

The leader then was Ossi Reichert of Germany, followed by Celina Seghi of Italy and Madeleine Berthod of Switzerland. On her second run Mrs. Lawrence whizzed faultlessly down the course in the remarkable time of 1:03.4 for a full clocking of 2:10.6.

Miss Reichert, whose first run was in 1:06 flat, flashed down in "rowdies" and demanded that "the 1954 on her next effort for seppollution of European hockey by overseas teams" be ended. Mrs. Anne Marie Buchner-

Fischer of Germany was third with 2:13.3 and Miss Seghi fourth with 2:13.8. Imogne Opton of North Conway, N. H., was fifth and Miss Berthod sixth. Montreal's Joanne Hawson, who finished eighth last Sunday in the women's downhill, placed 13th today with runs of 1:09.2 and 1:10.7. Rhoda Wurtele Eaves of Montreal, ninth in the giant slalom last Thursday, was next highest Canadian, in 19th place with runs of 1:12.0 and 1:09.0 for 2:21.0. Lucille Wheeler of St. Jovite, Que., was 26th and Rosemarie Schuitz of Montreal 38th.

What is perhaps the most punishing competition these rigorous sports offer was won by a 26-year-old, indefatigable Finnish woodchopper. Leg-weary and gaunt-faced, Veikko Hakulinen slogged home first in the 50-kilometer (31-mile) cross country ski race. "It was one of the most grueling races I have ever been in," said the dog-tired Finn after the race. "The varying temperatures in the hills and valleys made the skiing very tough."

No Canadians were entered in the gruelling ski marathon. Hakulinen's time was three hours, 33 minutes, 33 seconds. He earned Finland's first gold medal of the current games. Another tireless Finn placed second, Eero Koehalmainen, in 3:38:11.

Wanted — 50 Bears

(The Country Guide) One of the most distinctive features of the British Brigade of Guards is the traditional black bearskins they wear, huge, oblong, creating pieces of headgear made of black bear's fur. Skins for these essential articles of a Guardsman's uniform come from Canada and are in the BBC's "Radio Newsreel" Pat Keighley, of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, revealed the struggles that have been going on in Canada to get sufficient skins for Britain.

The hunt was up in the north of British Columbia and the nerve center of the expedition was Prince George. Far beyond it lies a tract of rugged country which is one of Canada's last big game reserves. Businessmen were counting on a large bag of hides with which to supply the Guards, but the united efforts of many hunting parties did not produce the 50 skins that were needed. Members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce begged or borrowed guns and trekked off to do their bit for Britain in an unorthodox way. After their trip had ended the total number of skins was still far short of 50 and the professional hunters of the district were called in. They generously agreed to give their services but out of pocket expenses had to be met.

The people of Prince George set out to find these by putting on a big festival in July in which every kind of money-raising event was included. The money was found at last and it then remained for the hunters to get the bears. They did their stuff handsomely and the Junior Chamber's president announced that his members were going all out to scrape and clean the hides in time to get them to London by Christmas. Bruce Lamb and a dozen other businessmen gave up all their free time to the job of preparing the skins for shipment, and as they weighed about 10 or 12 pounds each it was a weighty commitment that eventually went to Britain on a freighter from Vancouver.

The Guards say that each skin will make two of their traditional headresses and the men of Prince George are all ready now to begin collecting next year's consignment in good time. PARIS, Feb. 19.—(Reuters)—General Eisenhower, Britain's Field Marshal Montgomery and Air-Chief Marshal Sir Hugh Saunders, Eisenhower's air deputy in the Atlantic Pact Army, arrived in Paris from London where they attended the King's funeral.

Hens Prefer Water To Snow

(The Country Guide) In many poultry houses it is difficult to keep water from freezing, and the question arises as to whether snow is a satisfactory substitute. Investigational work was recently conducted to determine if it made any difference to production levels. In two different years two groups of 150 hens each year, having about the same body weight, age, and apparent laying ability, were used. One group had water to drink and the other had only snow during the cold winter weather when water would ordinarily be frozen. Neither group received wet mash. Egg production in the group receiving water was 16.2 per cent higher per bird than that of the birds receiving snow, and feed consumption was 10.6 per cent less for the group receiving water.

Since egg production was lower and food consumption higher in the case of the birds receiving snow it follows, says J. L. Teasler, Experimental Station, Kapuskasing, Ontario, who did the experimental work, that water should always be kept before the laying flock, even if this involves extra work to keep it from freezing.
