2 Commons Members Ask New Trans-Canada Road

OTTAWA (CP)—Two Commons members Friday urged the launching of a second and more northerly Trans-Canada Highway before the present one is completed, and a third opposed the idea.

Works Minister Green, in charge of the federal government's end of Trans - Canada Highway work with the provinces, was non-committal but advised advocates of an early second road not to be "discouraged."

Calls for a highway across what was described as the north-central part of Canada came from Frank Howard (CCF — Skeena) and Hugh M. Horner (PC—Jasper-Edson).

Launching it before completion of the first one was opposed by J. W. Pickersgill (L—Bonavista-Twillingate), former immigration minister, who said some provinces are having difficulty financing the initial project.

OTHER DEVELOPMENTS

There were these other edvelopments in a Commons sitting largely devoted to study of the works department's 1958 - 59 spending estimates:

1. Revenue Minister Nowlan announced the resignation of CBC board chairman A. D. Dunton, effective July 15, to take over the presidency of Ottawa's Carleton University.

2. Agriculture Minister Harkness said the agriculture ministers of Manitoba and Saskatchewan will come to Ottawa next week to discuss ways of meeting the drought situation in those prairie provinces.

3. Prime Minister Diefenbaker said the "fullest consideration" will be given to the possibility of appointing a commission to study government economies.

In the highway debate, Western members Howard and Horner pressed for a new trans-Canadian highway that would go through Edmonton and the northern Yellowhead Pass across the Rockies. The road now being built follows a more southerly course through Calgary and the so-called "big bend route" by way of the Kicking Horse Pass. "We should not wait until the highway now under construction is completed," Mr. Howard said. The Trans-Canada is due for completion late in 1960.

ONE JOB AT A TIME

Mr. Pickersgill said that, desirable as this might be for the west, the first highway should be completed before a new one is launched.

"The 50-50 basis of federal-provincial participation makes it relatively easy for some provinces to complete their share and difficult for others," he added.

"I cannot announce government policy," Mr. Green said, "but I can give assurance that the federal government has no intention of breaking up the highway partnership with the provinces in the construction of roads once the Trans-Canada Highway has been completed."

"Don't be discouraged," he advised Mr. Howard.

In reply to other questions, he said there have been no Trans-Canada Highway discussions with Quebec province since the Progressive Conservatives took office in June, 1957. Quebec is the only province not in the project.

"The provinces make their own decisions," Mr. Green observed.

THOUGHTS FOR OUR TIME

BY HIS EMINENCE CARDINAL McGUIGAN

CHILDREN'S HOLIDAYS CHALLENGE TO PARENTS

The summer vacation began this week for the vast number of school children. Gone for a while will be the restraint and direction of the demands of academic life; gone too will be the absorption of the greater part of their day in studies.

This condition affords them an opportunity to relax and build up their young bodies for the new challenge to their minds in the fall. This is good and wholesome and has the approval of long standing custom. However, not to be forgotten is the fact that the long summer vacation also presents the opporunity for misadventure to these young people who are not yet mature enough to foresee all possible dangers.

Therefore, summer is a time of greater responsibility for parents; it is a time that challenges their ingenuity and patience as they strive to ensure that the charges entrusted to them by Almighty God, while enjoying the benefits and freedom of summer, do not at the same time suffer deleterious effects physical or moral.

This does not mean a tyrannical or unreasonable supervision but a prudent, loving, yet firm attitude that will, thanks to the grace of their state as guardians of their children, be able to direct and govern and still leave the children with that carefree, jovial spirit of relaxation one likes to see in youth.

More than presenting the parents with a responsibility of greater care and supervision, summer also presents an opportunity for them to exercise their God-given and inalienable right to educate their children.

True, they have entrusted that duty, as far as academics are concerneed, to others; but now that function has been formally terminated for a while. But the educative process must go on and they can instruct their offspring in the nonacademic but ever-so important aspects of becoming a mature human being.

For it is while in this closer, more continous contact with the parents, that chlidren will imbibe—unconsciously, no doubt—attitudes and outbooks on many things. For instance, they will be initiated into the minor duties of household work by being assigned tasks.

More important than the preformance of these tasks, is the inculcation of a sprit of responsibility to the family, learning as they work with mother or father to preform their duties conscientiusly and with a certain pride in their work, learning at the same time that work is not degrading and that it is by labor that one earns his daily bread. Thus the temptation to expect something for nothing will be eradicated and never appear in their later life as a cause of parasitic behavor.

In the relm of entertainment, there is abundant opportunity for parents to educate for the betterment of their children What better way is there to instill in the young mind than by the parental attitude and practice that leisure is not a time for stagnation to be given over to doing nothing constructive, but a time that allows for the development of intellectual pursuits, a time that allows one to go back to one's work relaxed but not dissipated?

Moreover, an otherwise repugnant supervision of reading mater will be accepted as normal by the children, for there will be no divergence between what the parents advise and practise here.

PRACTISE RELIGION

Perhaps the greatest lesson they can teach is the over-all importance of the spirtual, of the faithful practice of religion. For when there is a natural tendency for children to get away from all that reminds them of school, and unfortunately exhortations to practise religion are sometimes associated in their minds exclusively with school, the parents can be their example and at the cost of extra effort instill this spirit of religion in a natural attitude to have for they will see religion and the spiritual aspects of life integrated concretely in the work and recreation of their elders.

These duties are not confined to the summer vacation period; they are an everyday responsibility. However, since the children will be almost exclusively under this influence for these months, it seems good to recall these responsibilities and to rededicate oneself to meet the challenge they imply.

"KURIAKOS"

Our English word church is derived from the Greek word kuriakos, which meant, "belonging to the Lord." What an appropriate and beautiful concept that word conveys! Would that all who belong to a church also really belonged to the Lord!

The Greek word church was "eklesia", meaning the called out ones. Since the church is the only organization which Jesus founded, indifference to it means disregard for him.

The founders of the Bible Society were men who had been "called out". Called out for the purpose of giving the Scriptures to men and women of all races. The work they began so humbly but with great faith has had a phenomenal growth, until today millions of copies of the Word are distributed in more than 1100 languages. But there are still millions of people who are hungering for the Bread of Life and more money is urgently needed, that they might be spiritually filled. We may contribute through one of the eighty-three Island branches of the Bible Society and we can also help by purchasing our religious supplies at the Bible House, the profits of which are used to further the work.

Trinity Says Farewell To The Christies

On Sunday evening, June 29, Rev. Howard G. Christie, B. A., B. D., preached his farewell sermon to the congregation of Trinity United Church. His sermon was entitled "Continuous Departure", and stressed the thought that progress in the Chirstian life was essentially a question of continuous departure towards better things.

The evening service was followed by a reception in honour of Mr. and Mrs. Christie in the social hall. Following a hearty sing-song led by the Rev. A. F. MacLean, an address on behalf of the congregation, expressing appreciation of Mr. Christie's services in the various phases of the church work during the past four years, and expressing regret at his leaving Trinity was read by Dr. G. D. Steel, Clerk of Session.

A presentation of a purse from the congregation was made by Mr. O. K. Presby, chairman of the Committee of Stewards. Other presentations were made by Mrs. Neil Darrach, on behalf of the Willing Circle of the King's Daughters; by Mrs. Ruby Houle, on behalf of the Senior Women's Auxiliary; and by Mrs. John MacEachern, on behalf of the Junior W. A.

Mr. and Mrs. Christie replied briefly voicing their appreciation of the many kindnesses they had received from the people of Trinity Church.

Rev. A. F. MacLean spoke of the very pleasant relations that had existed throughout the four years in which he and Mr. Christie had worked together.

Refreshments were then served by the ladies of the Women's Auxiliaries of the church. Mrs. G. Taylor, president of the Senior W. A., and Mrs. A. Frank MacLean, poured.

The evening closed with farewells and hearty wishes that God's blessing might be with Rev. and Mrs. Christie as they take up work in their new charge at Marysville, N. B.

Historic Cavendish Church Ends A Week Long Mission

The historic Cavendish Pastoral Charge of the United Church of Canada held an evangelistic mission in the Cavendish United Church, from Monday, the 16th. of June, until Sunday, the 22nd The history of the Cavendish congregation itself, goes back to the year 1790, with the arrival in the area of families from Scotland named Simpson, MacNeill, and Clark.

In deciding to conduct the mission, the Session of the pastoral charge felt that it was to be undertaken as an integral part of The National Evangelistic Mission of the United Church. More directly, it was felt that every effort should be made to reach any people within the area without church affiliation.

Just as important was the call to church members to rededicate themselves to the vows they had made at other times if they personally felt it necessary. Added to this is the fact that all within the Christian Community might, to great effect, in these particular times, assert once more their belief in Jesus as Saviour and Lord.

FINE COOPERATION

The zeal with which so many took up the work of preparation for the mission is due, in no small part, to the heritage to which the people of the charge have fallen heir.

In 1838, the Cavendish Congregation extended its first call to an ordinand of the day, The Rev. John Geddie. As is well known throughout the Maritimes, on the monument of this soldier of the Cross, found on Antietan in the South Sea Islands, are inscribed the following words, "When he came to Antietan in 1848 there were no Christians, and when he left in 1872 there were no heathen."

The mission featured group singing, led by Dr. Peter MacDonald of Crapaud, P.E.I., and worship, conducted by the minister of the charge, Rev. Allison Haley. Special musical selections were rendered by the Men's Octet of Trinity United Church, Charlottetown, Mesdames Burdett, Moore, and MacNeil of Cavendish, Mr. Roy Smallman of Charlottetown, and Mr. Olf Stevenson of Cavendish.

A combined choir of the pastoral charge led in the songs of praise. When it was necessary for Dr. MacDonald to be absent on Friday evening, Rev. Lewis Murray of Kensington kindly took over as song leader, and upheld the high standard of group singing set earlier in the week.

INSPIRING SERMONS

The Rev. Ellis Boyd, of Trinity St. Matthew's Church, Pugwash, N. S., was the missioner. In his own forceful but winsome way, Mr. Boyd convincingly proclaimed the Gospel to all who heard him.

He took as the theme for the mission, the exhortation from Isaiah to, "Behold Your God." Outlining several ways in which men have seen God as He is revealed in Jesus Christ, he cemented them together as the God who is known through the Christ of Experience. Combined Communion Services on Sunday, with appropiate sermons, concluded the mission.

dance between the first and third nights. These goodly numbers returned through the remainder of the mission. Besides good attendance, dozens of Decision and Rededication Cards were signed and returned.

On Friday evening, with no further opportunity to receive and return cards at a later date, many in the congregation stood in response to the missioner's request to declare themselves for Christ.

The Session would like to thank all who helped in this great mission.

Radioactive Cloud Spread

OXFORD, England (Reuters)—A radioactive cloud released by an accident last October at a British atomic plant passed over six European countries, a government scientist said Tuesday.

But Dr. W. G. Marley, chief radiological safety officer for Britain's Atomic Energy Authority, said the cloud was harmless as it floated over Belgium, Holland, Denmark, Norway, Sweden and part of France.

Vaporized radioactive iodine escaped from the Windscale nuclear plant on Oct. 10 when an atomic pile became overheated.
